IN THE CHAIR: ROBERTA METSOLA
President

1. Resumption of the session

1-0004-0000

President. – I declare resumed the session of the European Parliament adjourned on 12 March 2026.

2. Opening of the sitting

(The sitting opened at 15:02)

3. Statements by the President

1-0008-0000

President. – Dear colleagues, before I start the announcements, I wanted to address the death of Quentin Deranque, a 23-year-old who was murdered in February in France in an act that shocked us all. I can let you know that we have been in touch with representatives of his family, and we remain very sensitive to their public appeal not to allow his murder to be instrumentalised politically. So I'd like to inform you that we have passed on our thoughts and condolences to them at this difficult time.

Colleagues, today, we mark the International Day of Solidarity with Belarus, known as Freedom Day. On this day in 1918, Belarus proclaimed independence. For millions of Belarusians, this anniversary has become a powerful symbol of resistance against oppressive dictatorship. We take this opportunity to reiterate our support for all Belarusians fighting for a free and democratic country.

Dear colleagues, I know that we are also all focused on the situation in Iran, the Gulf region and the Strait of Hormuz. Let me underline that this Parliament has been clear in its condemnation of the Iranian regime that continues to oppress and kill its own people, sow instability and attack indiscriminately. This Parliament stands with the Iranian people and will keep up the pressure on their behalf.

Earlier this month, French soldier Arnaud Frion was killed by an Iranian drone while serving in Iraq on an anti-terror training mission. Thousands of Europeans have been stranded in the region. Let me say how grateful we are for all the efforts made by Member States and our partners in the Gulf to repatriate those who needed to return to Europe. I take this opportunity to condemn the Iranian regime's continued brutal and unacceptable attacks on civilians in the Gulf states and across the region. They must end.

I know that we will continue to do everything we can to push for de-escalation, dialogue, respect for international law, a swift conclusion to this conflict, and the right of the Iranian people to choose their own destiny in liberty.

Chers collègues, nous rendons hommage à Lionel Jospin, ancien Premier ministre de la République française et membre de cette Assemblée, qui s'est éteint dimanche à l'âge de 88 ans. Beaucoup se souviendront de lui comme d'un homme d'État empreint d'élégance, convaincu de la vocation supérieure du service public, pour sa foi en une Europe forte, pour des réformes sociales et sociétales qui continuent de façonner la France contemporaine, ainsi que pour tout ce qu'il a légué à des générations de responsables politiques. À travers elles, son héritage continuera de vivre.

Dear colleagues, recent events show how much we must keep addressing the growing threat of rising antisemitism. In recent weeks, an explosion damaged a synagogue in Rotterdam; in Amsterdam, a Jewish school was bombed; in Michigan, a car full of explosives was driven into a synagogue; in London, Jewish charity ambulances were set on fire.

We know that what starts as antisemitism never ends as such. It is a threat to everyone and one that we will not only continue to call out, but one that we will act against. Our Jewish communities are an essential part of the fabric of our European societies, and it is important that they all know that they can count on this Parliament to stand with them.

Our last point, dear colleagues, this Sunday marked ten years since the horrific 2016 terror attacks in Brussels – a senseless day of violence that claimed 32 lives and injured hundreds more, including staff from Parliament and other institutions. It was a day that saw people come together in grief, a moment of extraordinary courage, of Europeans looking out for each other in the worst of times.

Again and again, Europe has demonstrated that humanity prevails in the face of terror with a sense of dignity, resilience and defiance. In this month in 2004, terrorists murdered 193 people in the Madrid train bombings, while yesterday marked eight years since the murder of Gendarmerie Lieutenant-Colonel Arnaud Beltrame by an ISIS-inspired terrorist in France.

Each act of terror is an attack on our way of life, and as we mark this sombre moment, this Parliament remembers the victims and recommits to combating radicalism, hatred and extremism. Europe will not forget. As we, dear colleagues, remember all those we lost, I ask you now to join me in observing a moment of silence.

(The House rose and observed a minute's silence)

4. Approval of the minutes of the previous sitting

1-0012-0000

President. – The minutes and the texts adopted of the sitting of 12 March are available. Are there any comments? I see that is not the case.

Therefore, the minutes are approved.

Ms García Pérez would like the floor. Please, Iratxe, you have the floor.

Iratxe García Pérez (S&D). – Señora presidenta, me reconforta escuchar, de sus palabras, el apoyo de este Parlamento a la defensa de la dignidad de los derechos humanos, a la población civil que está sufriendo y a todos los colectivos que, en este momento, necesitan un mensaje claro de las instituciones democráticas.

Me reconforta mucho escuchar sus palabras, al inicio de este Pleno, condenando el régimen de Irán y los ataques que se están produciendo en algunas ciudades europeas contra la población judía. Me reconforta y me congratula. Pero me congratularía también escuchar esas mismas palabras —porque tienen el mismo sentido— ante los ataques injustificados a la población civil en países como Líbano, donde miles de personas están perdiendo la vida en estos últimos días por una guerra ilegal.

Creo que todos los inocentes civiles que están siendo víctimas de esta guerra ilegal necesitan tener el mismo reconocimiento, y me gustaría que fuera un reconocimiento de toda esta Cámara.

President. – Many thanks, Ms García Pérez.

5. Requests for waivers of immunity

1-0016-0000

President. – The competent authorities of Poland have addressed a request to me for the parliamentary immunity of Grzegorz Braun to be waived.

This request is referred to the Committee on Legal Affairs.

6. Composition of political groups

1-0018-0000

President. – Lukas Sieper is a member of the Renew Europe Group as of 25 March 2026.

Ewa Zajączkowska-Hernik is no longer a member of the ESN Group and joins the PfE Group as of 25 March 2026.

7. Composition of committees and delegations

1-0020-0000

President. – The EPP, ECR, Renew Europe groups and the non-attached Members have notified me of decisions relating to changes to appointments within committees and delegations. These decisions will be set out in the minutes of today's sitting and take effect on the date of this announcement.

8. Negotiations ahead of Parliament's first reading (Rule 72) (action taken)

1-0022-0000

President. – I have received separate requests for a vote in Parliament from The Left, Greens and S&D groups reaching the medium threshold on the decision of the LIBE Committee to enter into negotiations on the following file: Common system for the return of third-country nationals staying illegally in the Union.

The vote will be held tomorrow.

9. Order of business

1-0024-0000

President. – We now come to the order of business. The final draft agenda, as adopted by the Conference of Presidents on 12 March pursuant to Rule 163, has been distributed.

In accordance with Rule 9(9), the following reports are added to the votes on Thursday: Request for the waiver of the immunity of Grzegorz Braun, rapporteur Mario Furore; Request for the waiver of the immunity of Grzegorz Braun, rapporteur Dainius Žalimas; Request for the waiver of the immunity of Nikos Pappas, rapporteur Krzysztof Śmiszek.

Now we move to changes agreed by political groups.

With the agreement of the political groups, I wish to put to the House the following proposals for changes to the final draft agenda.

For Wednesday, this afternoon, the order of debates will change as follows. Council and Commission statements on 'Energy security, independence and supply in the geopolitical context' will be the first item this afternoon, and the European Council and Commission statements on 'Conclusions of the European Council meeting of 19 March 2026' will be the second item.

The oral question on the 'Implementation of the Urban Wastewater Treatment Directive (UWWTD) and risks to the security of supply of medicines' is moved from Thursday and will be the fifth item this afternoon. As a consequence, the sitting will be extended to 22:00.

For Thursday, a joint debate on the EU-US trade deal, with the following reports: 'Adjustment of customs duties and opening of tariff quotas for the import of certain goods originating in the United States of America' and 'Non-application of customs duties on imports of certain goods' will be added as the first item tomorrow.

The following objections pursuant to Rule 114(3) are added to Thursday's voting session: 'Union list of projects of common interest and projects of mutual interest' and 'Certification methodologies for permanent carbon removals activities'. If there are no objections, then these changes are approved.

(Parliament agreed to the proposals)

We move now to changes requested by political groups.

For Wednesday, today, the PfE Group has requested that Council and Commission statements on 'EU-Australia Free Trade Agreement: impact on European agriculture' be added as the third item. As a consequence, the session would be extended to 23:00.

I give the floor to Jordan Bardella to move the request on behalf of the PfE Group.

Jordan Bardella, au nom du groupe PfE. – Madame la Présidente, une fois encore, la Commission européenne entend poursuivre le saccage de notre agriculture au profit des seuls intérêts de l'industrie allemande. La présidente von der Leyen est en train de négocier un nouvel accord de libre-échange avec l'Australie, dont la surface agricole est treize fois celle de la France, deuxième économie d'Europe.

Face au risque d'aggraver la concurrence directe contre nos paysans, déjà écrasés de normes et d'obsessions décroissantistes, nous souhaitons qu'un débat puisse se tenir dans ce Parlement. Dans un contexte international qui nous rappelle la nécessité existentielle d'être souverains sur le plan alimentaire, il va de soi que ce nouvel accord constituerait une énième folie et une trahison envers ceux qui nous nourrissent. Je vous propose donc l'inscription, à l'ordre du jour de notre session, du débat au titre suivant: «Accord de libre-échange Union européenne-Australie: conséquences sur l'agriculture européenne».

1-0026-0000
President. – I have received an alternative proposal from The Left Group, which would have the title as follows: Commission statement on 'EU-Australia Free Trade Agreement and its impacts on agriculture, health and the environment'. Mr Bardella, do you agree with the alternative proposal of The Left Group?

You agree. OK. So we will vote on The Left Group proposal by roll call.

(Parliament rejected the request)

The next proposal is a request by the ECR Group that Council and Commission statements on 'The need to combat antisemitism and protect Jewish life in Europe, following the recent terrorist attacks against the Jewish community in the Netherlands and Belgium' be added as the fourth item in the afternoon.

As a consequence, the sitting would be extended to 23:00.

I give the floor to Bert-Jan Ruissen to move the request on behalf of the ECR Group.

Bert-Jan Ruissen, *namens de ECR-Fractie. – Voorzitter, het houdt maar niet op. En het gaat van kwaad naar erger. Ik bedoel de lange reeks van aanslagen op de joodse gemeenschap – de Voorzitter noemde ze al – zoals recent op een synagoge in Luik, een synagoge in Rotterdam, een joodse school in Amsterdam en ambulances van een joodse vrijwilligersorganisatie in Londen. Waar eindigt dit? Ja, ook vandaag tonen we ons solidair met de joodse gemeenschap en zeggen we nee tegen antisemitisme.

Maar woorden zijn niet genoeg. Er moet gehandeld worden. Wat de EU nu doet, is vooral symptoombestrijding. Het is de hoogste tijd om de grondoorzaken van het groeiende antisemitisme aan te pakken. Denk bijvoorbeeld aan de invloed van de radicale islam. Daarom stellen wij voor aan de agenda een verklaring van de Raad en de Commissie toe te voegen over de noodzaak om antisemitisme te bestrijden en het joodse leven in Europa te beschermen na de recente aanslagen op de joodse gemeenschap in Nederland en België.

'The need to combat antisemitism and protect Jewish life in Europe following the recent attacks against the Jewish community in the Netherlands and Belgium.'

1-0029-0000
Hildegard Bentele (PPE). – Madam President, dear colleagues, let me be very clear from the outset: the EPP Group fully supports the objective of the proposal of colleague Bert-Jan Ruissen. The recent attacks in the Netherlands and Belgium are deeply alarming. These incidents occur more and more often. They are more and more violent. In the meantime, many Jewish citizens in the Netherlands and in Belgium fear for their lives precisely because the situation is so serious.

Debating it leads to attention. Exposing violent antisemitism and debating countermeasures needs daylight, not late night. Therefore, since the agenda of this plenary is extremely packed, the EPP proposes to take this item up in the April plenary to ensure that a comprehensive and impactful discussion is guaranteed.

President. – Thank you, Ms Bentele. Mr Ruissen, would you agree that we move this to April?

1-0031-0000
Bert-Jan Ruissen, *on behalf of the ECR Group. – Madam President, I can agree because then I think we have more time and we can prepare ourselves better for the debate. So I can agree with that proposal.

1-0032-0000
President. – We'll do that. Thank you very much, Mr Ruissen.

The EPP Group has requested that a Commission statement on 'Imminent death penalty threats in Iran in the light of the latest executions including on 18 and 19 March 2026 by the Iranian regime', followed by one round of political group speakers, be added before the debate on combating corruption.

As a consequence, the session would be extended to 23:00.

I give the floor to Ms Bentele to move the request on behalf of the group.

1-0033-0000
Hildegard Bentele, *on behalf of the PPE Group. – Madam President, dear colleagues, I would like to request the urgent inclusion of a Commission statement on the imminent use of the death penalty in Iran.

This matter cannot be postponed until April. Executions are not a distant risk; they are happening now and they are targeting the brave protesters of February. Only last week, the 19-year-old wrestler Saleh Mohammadi was executed. He was subjected to severe mistreatment, his confession extracted under torture.

With these executions, implemented and planned, the regime – even if there might be new people – is sending a signal: 'We continue to oppress relentlessly those who ask for freedom and democracy.'

Colleagues, we stated that we stand on the side of the Iranian people. Let's send this week a clear signal back to Tehran that we do not turn a blind eye to the further murdering of civilians; that we watch; that we condemn; that we call their names.

President. – Thank you very much, Ms Bentele.

I have received an alternative proposal from the S&D Group, which would be a statement on 'The worsening Middle East escalation in light of Israel's planned security zone in Lebanon, the recent strikes on energy infrastructure in the Gulf and the risk of imminent executions in Iran.'

Mr Maniatis, do I understand correctly that you want to speak against the EPP proposal or in favour of yours? Both.

1-0035-0000
Yannis Maniatis, *on behalf of the S&D Group. – Madam President, we believe that the circumstances require to have a more comprehensive debate on what is happening in the Middle East, and not to limit ourselves in just one of the very worrying developments in the area.

Therefore, on behalf of the S&D Group, we would like to propose the following title for the debate, 'The worsening Middle East escalation in light of Israel's planned security zone in Lebanon, the recent strikes on energy infrastructure in the Gulf, and the risk of imminent executions in Iran'.

President. – Thank you very much, Mr Maniatis. Ms Bentele, do you agree with the alternative proposal of the S&D Group?

1-0037-0000
Hildegard Bentele (PPE). – Madam President, no, I would like to stick with the very clear focus of the debate. I propose that we put the urgent human rights situation in the middle of our debate.

1-0038-0000
President. – Thank you very much, Ms Bentele. So I put the request of the EPP Group to a vote by roll call.

(Parliament approved the request)

The agenda is changed accordingly.

For tomorrow, the Greens Group has requested that the report of Ms Sippel on 'Proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Regulation (EU) 2021/1232 as regards the extension of its period of application' be removed from the votes.

I give the floor to Markéta Gregorová to move the request on behalf of the Greens Group.

1-0039-0000
Markéta Gregorová, *on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group. – Madam President, dear colleagues, just last plenary, this Parliament firmly rejected Chat Control 1.0, demanding no mass scanning, strict limitation of scope and full protection of encryption.

Last Monday, when the Council refused to negotiate on the scope, the trilogue ended without an agreement. Yet today, we are being asked to reopen that decision.

The EPP now considers our position too ambitious; talking about children while blocking real help in their governments.

Let me be clear: this is not how parliamentary democracy works. We already voted. Our position has a broad majority and is legitimate. Reopening it sends the wrong signal. It tells the Council that if they hold out long enough, the Parliament will bend.

Voting for this repeat vote would weaken our own mandate and undermine the credibility of this Parliament. So, I urge you to stand by our and your position. Defend our independence.

Lena Düpont (PPE). – Madam President, I think we really need to urgently have a division here between two things. Tomorrow's vote would have been a very easy one – just on a simple date, on the prolongation of the application of the interim regulation. Because it is about protecting children when they're online. And reports on children's sexual abuse online have multiplied by twenty in the last ten years – so from 1 million reports to 20 million reports. So what we are going to vote on tomorrow is the simple technical prolongation – just another date for what we had agreed on.

And what the Greens had actually tried here, together with the support of some here in the House, is to turn the interim regulation into shadow negotiations on the CSAM proposal as such. We will address everything that is up to the point in the CSAM regulation, which is ongoing with the Council and the Commission, but for tomorrow, we need to vote on the application so that we meet the deadline on 3 April, because if not, we fail to prevent a huge legal gap in the protection of children online.

President. – Thank you very much, Ms Düpont. I put the request of the Greens Group to a vote by roll call.

(Parliament rejected the request)

Therefore the agenda remains unchanged.

Therefore, dear colleagues, the agenda is adopted and the order of business is thus established.

Dear colleagues, please listen to the points that will be made. I give the floor to Mélissa Camara.

Mélissa Camara (Verts/ALE). – Madame la Présidente, mes chers collègues, permettez-moi de faire un rappel au règlement sur la base de l'article 202.

Sur quoi nous exprimons-nous demain? Des interdictions d'entrée possiblement à vie sans motif juridique sérieux, des centres de retour, véritables zones de non-droit à l'extérieur de l'Union européenne, une coopération avec le régime des talibans ou encore la détention d'enfants. Nous avons été choqués par la photo du petit Liam aux États-Unis. C'est ce modèle, cette politique, que vous voulez voir s'appliquer en Europe.

Acceptons-nous collectivement l'idée que l'enfermement d'enfants soit un outil de gestion des migrations? Pensez-y avant de voter demain. Et souvenez-vous de qui a activement collaboré pour obtenir cet accord. Le négociateur du PPE s'est allié avec le pire de l'extrême droite européenne, notamment l'AFD.

Aussi, j'aimerais invoquer l'article 72 du règlement intérieur, en vertu duquel le vote aurait dû se tenir en avril. Pour un texte si sensible, il est inacceptable, Madame Metsola, d'accélérer la procédure, de nous priver d'un réel débat démocratique.

Mes chers collègues, je le dis avec gravité. Demain, chacune et chacun d'entre nous devra répondre à une question très simple. Quelle Europe nous voulons? Quelle Europe voulons-nous? Celle du rejet, de la haine, de l'enfermement? Vous avez encore quelques heures pour réfléchir, alors réfléchissez bien...

(La Présidente retire la parole à l'oratrice)

parole avant un vote sur la contestation d'un mandat de négociation, en l'occurrence, ici, celui de l'infâme règlement «Retour»?

Les groupes politiques doivent assumer leurs votes et leurs alliances, aussi honteuses soient-elles. Les Européennes et les Européens ont le droit de savoir ce qui se cache derrière ces décisions. Nous leur devons la transparence, plus encore sur un texte comme celui-ci.

Car ce règlement est le pire texte en matière de droits humains mis aux voix depuis la création de l'Union européenne. Négocié en catimini par la droite extrême du PPE et l'extrême droite, ce texte a été dénoncé à la fois par le commissaire aux droits de l'homme du Conseil de l'Europe et par seize rapporteurs spéciaux des Nations unies. Il entache gravement et durablement l'Union européenne, dont la devise est pourtant «Unie dans la diversité», une devise que certains ici semblent ne vouloir appliquer que si cette diversité est blanche et chrétienne.

Madame la Présidente, je vous demande d'argumenter votre décision de ne pas donner la parole aux groupes politiques pour un débat sur un texte qui engage nos valeurs et notre humanité.

La Présidente. – Vous avez la parole maintenant. Je donne la parole maintenant à Miss Murielle Laurent.

Murielle Laurent (S&D). – Madame la Présidente, j'aimerais moi aussi faire un point, un point d'ordre au règlement, en vertu de l'article 202 du règlement du Parlement européen.

Je souhaite donc faire ce point d'ordre concernant le règlement, le mandat pour le règlement «Retour». Je ne peux que déplorer que nous n'ayons pas une discussion sur l'attitude du PPE, qui est inadmissible. Nous ne pouvons tolérer des négociations avec l'extrême droite, comme l'a dit la collègue. Il est incompréhensible que la position du Parlement soit désormais celle de l'extrême droite sur une question aussi importante que les retours des migrants en situation irrégulière.

Abir Al-Sahlani (Renew). – Madam President, I want to draw this House's attention to a shocking case: a woman in Malta was sentenced to prison after going to hospital with heavy bleeding, and instead of receiving medical care, she was reported to the police.

Just think about that for a moment. A woman seeking medical attention was treated as a criminal. Her sentence must be immediately overturned – because not in Malta, not in Europe a hospital must ever become the first step to a prison cell. Criminalising abortion does not end abortion; it only puts women's lives in danger, and that has no place in Europe.

11. Energy security, independence and supply in the geopolitical context - ensuring market stability and affordable energy for industry and citizens (debate)

1-0053-0000
President. – The next item on the agenda is the debate on the Council and Commission statements on energy security, independence and supply in the geopolitical context – ensuring market stability and affordable energy for industry and citizens (2026/2653(RSP)).

1-0054-0000
Marilena Raouna, President-in-Office of the Council. – Mr President, honourable Members, Commissioner, last week at the spring European Council, European leaders discussed the impact of the situation in Iran and the Gulf region as well as the closure of the Strait of Hormuz on energy security, energy prices and subsequently on the European Union's competitiveness. This debate will be followed by the one with President Costa on the outcome of the European Council.

In today's interconnected world, this war, which is in Europe's Neighbourhood, inevitably impacts Europe. We are witnessing the significant rise in oil and gas prices, and while currently there is no immediate threat to the EU's energy supply, the situation remains volatile and we must be prepared for the scenario that the situation deteriorates further.

There is no simple solution. There is no quick fix to address the spikes in energy prices. However, one thing is clear: to mitigate the risks to our citizens, our security and our competitiveness, we must demonstrate the same unity that we showed during the energy crisis of 2022.

In the short term, the Commission and the Member States are exploring targeted, temporary, and financially and fiscally sustainable measures to ease the pressure on both our households and our industries.

We also know that one-size-fits-all solutions are not the way to go. What works in one Member State may not work in another. For example, different Member States have a different energy mix. At the same time, coordination and solidarity are key. We must also continue to implement the measures proposed by the Commission in its action plan for affordable energy.

In the longer term, we should stay focused on our goals of electrification and decarbonisation in the energy sector. These are not abstract objectives. They are our strongest guarantee aimed at strengthening European energy independence and protect us from future shocks.

Admittedly, some have raised questions on the Emissions Trading System (ETS) and the marginal pricing mechanism that determines electricity prices under the electricity market design. The Council's view is clear: these instruments have played a vital role in driving the progress we have made toward the green transition. We must ensure that the pathway remains ambitious and achievable at the same time.

At the same time, we must recognise that European industry and households are under immense pressure. The conflict in the Middle East underlines that targeted solutions are needed in the short term to ensure affordable energy and to address excessive volatility, taking also, of course, into account technological neutrality and the specificities of Member States in a manner that does not undermine predictability and a level playing field. This includes, amongst others, a review of the ETS by July 2026 at the latest, as was agreed by the last European Council.

If anything, the current crisis has demonstrated that we need to further reduce our dependency on fossil fuel imports. One of the key initiatives supporting this objective is the European grids package. This package will play a crucial role in strengthening our energy infrastructure and enhancing integration across the European energy market, making us more resilient to precisely the kind of external shocks that we are facing today.

The Cyprus Presidency is prioritising the European grids package and is working intensively to reach a general approach on this file by June, paving the way for an early start in trilogue negotiations with the European Parliament. The overall vision of the Cyprus Presidency is a Union that is more autonomous, and this is inextricably linked with energy independence and deeper integration for a true energy Union.

Dan Jørgensen, Member of the Commission. – Mr President, honourable Members, dear friends, in 1956, there was a crisis over the Suez Canal. Fossil fuel markets became unstable, and in Europe, energy prices went up. In the 1970s, there was instability in the Middle East. Fossil fuel markets became unstable, and in Europe, energy prices went up. In 2022, Russia invaded Ukraine and weaponised supplies of gas and oil., markets became unstable, and in Europe, energy prices went up. Now, in 2026, there is another geopolitical crisis. There's more instability in fossil fuel markets. And once again, in Europe, energy prices have gone up. Dear friends, when will we learn? And if we do not learn, who else can we blame if we are condemned to repeat our past mistakes decade after decade, crisis after crisis?

Once again, our citizens and businesses have been exposed to the volatility of fossil markets. The situation in the Middle East and the blockage of the Strait of Hormuz is having a serious impact on global energy security and commodity prices. Two weeks ago, we witnessed the largest ever strategic oil stock release coordinated by the International Energy Agency.

At the Commission, we are in close contact with the Member States on a regular basis to assess the impacts. For the time being, the physical security of energy supply in the EU is assured. However, we must take targeted and temporary measures to address the spikes on imported fossil fuels so that we can protect our citizens, especially the most vulnerable groups in our societies, and safeguard our economy and jobs.

This is exactly what the Commission has set out to do. We will act on all four components that determine electricity prices.

Firstly, on the cost of energy, which accounts for over half of the electricity price on average, we will make State aid rules more flexible, so that Member States can deliver immediate price relief to those most affected, for instance, in energy-intensive industries. We also agreed to work closely with Member States to develop national schemes to further mitigate the impact of fuel costs on electricity generation. We will do so on a case-by-case basis, while preserving our long-term investment signals for clean energy.

The second component is grid charges, which accounts for around 18 % of the price. Here, we will prepare a legal proposal to allow Member States to improve the productivity of grid infrastructure.

The third component of the prices are taxes and levies. We need to lower tax rates on electricity. It is up to Member States to make sure that electricity is taxed less than fossil fuels. We are exploring what can be done, including through legislation.

The fourth and final component is carbon pricing. The emissions trading system (ETS) is working. It has helped us to cut emissions and reduce our gas demand by over 1 000 000 000m³ since 2022, reducing our vulnerability and driving major investments in clean, home-grown European energy. However, we can modernise the system, make it more flexible and provide extra support. For example, we have proposed a EUR 30 billion ETS investment booster, creating more financial resources for clean technology and decarbonisation. On top of this, we will continue to work with Member States on immediate actions that can be put in place here and now to make a positive impact on our citizens' energy bills.

Many of these tools that we have called on before, during the COVID pandemic and the energy crisis of 2022, we might need again. First of all, we strongly encourage Member States to support energy poor and vulnerable households by providing emergency income support to those who need it, by acting to reduce excise duties on electricity, and by implementing further safeguards to prevent consumer disconnections. We also call on Member States to fully harness our citizens' energy package possibilities by supporting consumers to switch to cheaper energy contracts, by enabling consumers to use their electricity with more flexibility and by empowering citizens to produce and share their own clean energy.

Standing on the foundations of these actions, let me say to every person feeling the impact of high energy prices, the European Union is doing everything it can to shield you. But we're also doing everything we can to prevent this from happening again. We must double down on our path to energy independence. We must continue building a true energy union by rolling out more renewables, reinforcing our grids, and creating a genuine single market for electricity. For this, we need to reach a strong agreement on our grids package, and we must do so as fast as possible. I count on the support of this House to have a swift and ambitious agreement, so that we can build the infrastructure and interconnections that we desperately need without delay.

We must also continue to advance energy efficiency, boost electrification and diversify our supplies. In the coming months, the Commission will present a revised framework for energy security, alongside an electrification action plan and a heating and cooling strategy, and we must never go back to fossil dependency. REPowerEU remains our strategy. The phase-out of Russian fuels will go ahead.

Honourable Members, if we do not learn from our past mistakes, then we are doomed to repeat them over history. But, if we do learn from our mistakes, we can build a new future – a future of clean, affordable, home-grown energy, a future of economic security and social stability, a future of true European independence.

When this Parliament meets in 50 years' time, will they speak of 2026 as just another year in a chain of crises, or will they speak of this as a turning point, a moment when Europe finally took control of its own fate and its own future? That is the choice we have to make. For the sake of Europe and all our people, let's choose wisely.

Massimiliano Salini, a nome del gruppo PPE. – Signor Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, noi abbiamo sicuramente una grave crisi, determinata dal fatto che, non tanto vi sia per l'Unione europea una dipendenza dalle forniture provenienti dal Golfo – minima, come è noto, ma la generale dipendenza dell'Unione europea produce una particolare sensibilità agli sbalzi di prezzo che in questo momento vediamo.

E siamo peraltro in un momento particolarmente critico perché, come noto, come ogni anno, dopo l'inverno le riserve sono praticamente vuote o comunque a circa il 30 % e tra la primavera e l'estate dovremmo riempirle. Le riempiremo a un prezzo molto alto e questo, il prossimo inverno, produrrà i suoi effetti.

Quindi abbiamo un tema legato al fatto che al TTF europeo oggi il megawattora costa circa 70 €. Dobbiamo capire come affrontarlo.

Nelle parole del commissario ci sono molti degli elementi decisivi per noi, perché a medio o lungo termine un sistema come quello europeo, basato su una economia che io mi auguro rimanga anche manifatturiera, ha bisogno di sicurezza energetica. Per averla, dobbiamo investire necessariamente sull'autonomia energetica, quindi su rinnovabili, sul nucleare, su tutto quello che ci consente di essere forti e non totalmente dipendenti.

Le rinnovabili devono essere accompagnate anche da strategie di investimento sugli accumuli e gli stoccaggi perché chi ha una manifattura forte ha bisogno di sicurezza energetica. Ma nell'immediato dobbiamo lavorare anche sul prezzo.

Quello che dicevo sul riempimento delle riserve ci costringe a fare i conti su uno dei grandi temi, tra i tanti toccati dal commissario, che oggi occupa l'agenda politica di questa casa: e cioè il tema dell'ETS.

Io non credo che l'ETS debba essere abolito o sospeso muscolarmente. Non mi associo a questo tipo di dibattito, che rischia di essere poco realistico, ma abbiamo il dovere di neutralizzare, soprattutto ora, l'impatto che l'ETS ha sul prezzo dell'energia. Questo credo sia un dovere che possiamo assumerci insieme.

Mohammed Chahim, namens de S&D-Fractie. – Voorzitter, onze verslaving aan fossiele brandstoffen voedt instabiliteit en oorlog. Zolang we vastzitten aan fossiele energie, blijven we niet alleen kwetsbaar voor prijsschokken, maar ook medeverantwoordelijk voor een systeem dat conflicten aanwakkert en zorgt voor inflatie, op inflatie, op inflatie. We vergroten onze afhankelijkheid van fossiele brandstoffen, in plaats van deze af te bouwen.

We blijven namelijk ieder jaar honderden miljarden overmaken naar het buitenland als het gaat om fossiele energie. Dat geld hadden we ook kunnen investeren in onze eigen Europese energievoorziening. Wat wel beschermt, zijn zonnepanelen, een warmtepomp, een elektrische auto. De mensen die dat al hebben, hebben geluk. Dat werkt, maar is helaas niet voor iedereen bereikbaar. Daar ligt onze taak, want pas wanneer we onze onafhankelijkheid doorbreken, pas als we zorgen voor een Europees energiesysteem, beschermen we Europeanen echt.

elle prend à la gorge des millions de nos concitoyens. Notre politique énergétique n'est pas seulement l'otage d'une pression fiscale insoutenable, elle est également le fruit de décisions hasardeuses prises au niveau européen et dont vous êtes beaucoup, ici, à être responsables.

Je veux m'adresser à la Commission européenne. Vous suggérez, à juste titre, de baisser les taxes sur l'électricité pour accélérer l'électrification des usages. Mais en même temps, vous maintenez un mode de calcul absurde, qui indexe le prix de notre électricité sur celui du gaz. Ainsi, la France est privée des bénéfices de son parc nucléaire, qui devrait en théorie lui accorder l'électricité la moins chère et la plus décarbonée d'Europe.

Vous osez aujourd'hui faire la promotion du nucléaire, après avoir torpillé la filière depuis 2019 sous la pression des Verts, tout en maintenant dans le même temps la directive sur les énergies renouvelables, parmi les plus défavorables au nucléaire. Vous dites vouloir protéger les consommateurs de l'inflation, mais en même temps, vous alimentez le coût de l'alimentation en pénalisant nos agriculteurs avec la taxe carbone sur les engrais. Vous appelez les États à faire un geste sur la fiscalité des carburants, mais en même temps, vous maintenez la directive encadrant la TVA, qui empêche de faire baisser pleinement les prix à la pompe.

Nous, Français, sommes bien placés pour savoir que le «en même temps» n'a jamais été un gage d'efficacité politique. L'heure est pourtant très grave. La crise inflationniste est devant nous et l'énergie en est la principale cause. Si rien n'est fait et que ce conflit s'éternise, il n'est pas impossible que nous atteignions des niveaux d'inflation proches de ceux connus en 2022, lors de l'invasion de l'Ukraine par la Russie. Une réalité que des millions de nos compatriotes ne pourraient supporter.

Il est donc urgent d'agir et de faire sauter les verrous qui pèsent sur notre politique énergétique. Rétablir un prix national de l'électricité, soutenir le nucléaire, assouplir les réglementations ETS qui pénalisent nos industries et modifier de toute urgence les directives «Énergies renouvelables» et sur la TVA.

Elena Donazzan, a nome del gruppo ECR. – Signor Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, signor Commissario, lei ha richiamato le crisi, le crisi energetiche che ci sono, che sono storiche; ha dato anche dei buoni consigli ai governi. Però pensiamo a cosa dobbiamo fare noi qui. I governi si arrangiano e hanno la loro sovranità in queste scelte.

Ma cosa può fare la Commissione? Beh, può fare molto. Ed è vero che di fronte a crisi continue, sono fattori di geopolitica che noi abbiamo... comunque sulle quali possiamo fare ben poco.

Che cosa possiamo fare noi oggi è modificare ciò che ci spetta e ciò che ci spetta è considerare quanto un certo tipo di costi – dal punto di vista ideologico molto spinti – rappresentano per il nostro mondo dell'impresa.

Primo tra tutti, e dissento dal collega Salini quando dice che l'ETS è velleitario da modificare: no, l'ETS è uno dei sistemi che oggi produce più costi che valutazioni positive.

E allora ciò che può fare la Commissione non è dare buoni consigli ai governi; è intanto quello di fermare questo sistema perché se è un sistema che costa, non sta producendo l'effetto ambientale che vorremmo, sta solo danneggiando le nostre imprese.

Christophe Grudler, *au nom du groupe Renew. – Monsieur le Président, Monsieur le Commissaire, l'Europe paye encore aujourd'hui le prix de ses dépendances.

La fermeture du détroit d'Ormuz déclenche un choc énergétique mondial et l'ambassadeur américain nous menace d'un accès restreint au GNL si le Parlement modifie l'accord commercial avec les États-Unis. C'est un chantage inacceptable. L'Europe doit cesser de subir et doit passer à l'offensive pour défendre ses citoyens et ses entreprises. Avec Renew, nous demandons la relance immédiate de l'instrument «AggregateEU»: acheter en commun pour casser la spéculation et contenir les prix.

Mais la seule réponse durable, c'est d'en finir avec notre dépendance aux énergies fossiles importées. La transition énergétique, ce n'est pas seulement une nécessité climatique; c'est un impératif de souveraineté pour nous protéger des chocs. Cela passe par trois priorités: accélérer les renouvelables et le nucléaire, électrifier nos usages et produire davantage chez nous.

Bas Eickhout, *on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group. – Mr President, again we are having an energy debate. Barely four years after the Russian invasion of Ukraine, we are once again being hit by this same shock, this time in the Middle East. Different aggressors, same consequences. European citizens are paying the price for our fossil fuel dependence.

After 2022, Europe chose the easy path and avoided real change. Rather than breaking free from fossil fuels, we merely swapped suppliers, locking ourselves into new dependencies. Today, half of our LNG comes from the United States, and that's probably the clearest example of how much Trump's 'drill, baby, drill' approach has paid off.

The only real course for freedom and independence has been started in 2019, and it's the Green Deal. The Green Deal is our climate, our economic and our security agenda. We need to accelerate this agenda to become free from fossils.

So, European Commission, be careful with your promises on changing the key tool to drive us away from fossils – our emissions trading system. ETS has done the most in making us less dependent on gas. Attacking the system is just serving the fossil autocrats of this world. And for those who are blaming ETS, the ETS price has gone down 30 % since January. How can that explain the price rises that we are seeing now?

But, disappointingly, the industry giants are shielded, citizens and small businesses are left exposed. Fossil fuel giants are cashing in on this crisis, just like they did in 2022.

So, Commission, it's time you tax these windfall profits, and the revenues should be used to protect the most vulnerable and accelerate the energy transition. No more excuses, no more half measures and deregulation. This must be Europe's final wake-up call to end its dependence on fossil fuels and finally commit to building an energy system that is clean and affordable for everyone.

Questo bisognava comunicare ai cittadini nel 2019: che l'Europa, povera di idrocarburi e di uranio, doveva rapidamente attrezzarsi per mantenere sovranità politica ed economica.

Ci siamo invece affidati al GNL statunitense e qatarino per non usare più il gas russo, passando ad altre dipendenze più costose e ancora più incerte e insicure, come dimostrano gli eventi di questi giorni, con il Caligola di oltreoceano che minaccia ripetutamente tutto il mondo e noi stessi e vorrebbe obbligarci a comprare solo il suo gas.

L'Europa, se vuole sopravvivere, torni a fare i suoi propri interessi, delle sue industrie, dei suoi cittadini. Si torni ad acquistare il gas da chiunque ce lo offra al prezzo migliore. Eventualmente si riparino i gasdotti sabotati dai nostri veri nemici. Liberiamo risorse per realizzare rapidamente l'autonomia energetica, elettrica, rinnovabile europea, che troppi qui dentro hanno fino a oggi ostacolato, portandoci loro a questa assurda situazione.

Milan Uhrík, za skupinu ESN. – Vážený pán komisár, po tom, čo ste tu pred chvíľou prehlásili, nám je všetkým úplne jasné, že v Komisii ste sa museli načisto zblázniť a rozhodnúť sa spáchať s Európskou úniou energetickú samovraždu. A viete čo? Je mi to jedno, ale nás do toho neťahajte. Vyzývam vás v mene všetkých Slovákov, ale dovolím si povedať aj Maďarov, aby ste obnovili dodávky energií z východu, pretože odkiaľ inakial chcete dovážať ropu a plyn. Hovoríte, že Rusko je nestabilný partner. A arabské krajiny nie sú nestabilný partner? Trumpova Amerika nie je nestabilný partner? Veď celý svet je v chaose. My jednoducho musíme odniekiaľ nakupovať ropu a plyn, kým nevybudujeme alternatívne zdroje energie. Teraz sme v Slovenskej republike obmedzili pre cudzincov možnosť nakupovať benzín, ktorý je vyrobený z našich vlastných ropných strategických zásob. Hneď ste sa z Bruselu ozvali, že to je obmedzovanie slobodného trhu a obmedzovanie slobodného obchodu. A nie je už obmedzovanie slobodného obchodu to, že nám tú ropu nechcete dovoliť nakupovať? Vyzývam vás, naozaj prestaňte likvidovať strednú Európu týmito nezmyselnými opatreniami.

Virgil-Daniel Popescu (PPE). – Domnule președinte, domnule comisar, v-am ascultat cu foarte mare atenție discursul. Da, trebuie să învățăm din greșelile trecutului. Toate crizele care au trecut ne-au arătat că dependența de combustibili, de importuri din alte părți nu este bună.

Dar oare am învățat acest lucru? Mergem înainte, mergem cu energie regenerabilă și continuăm dependența. Continuăm dependența de import de tehnologie, de data aceasta. De unde de import de tehnologie? Din țări care nu ne sunt aliate, din țări care poate, la un moment dat, vor face ceva și nu vor putea închide strâmtoarea Ormuz, dar vor putea închide o producție, vor putea închide producția de panouri solare, vor putea închide producția de componente.

Și avem un exemplu foarte clar. Poate a fost un test acel microprocesor pentru industria auto care a dispărut pentru moment și ne-am trezit cu o criză în brațe foarte mare de producție.

Oare este bine ce am făcut, că ne uităm doar la preț, ne uităm doar la faptul că dacă producem în Europa este mai scump? Uităm că poate că ar trebui să învățăm europenii, să învățăm populația, că există și un cost de securitate? Poate totuși reușim să ne trezim în al 13-lea ceas și să facem cât mai multă producție de tehnologie pentru energia noastră, că e regenerabilă, că e nucleară, că este de alt tip, în interiorul Uniunii Europene, pentru că numai astfel putem spune că am învățat din greșelile trecutului și nu le vom mai repeta.

Nicolás González Casares (S&D). – Señor presidente, todos estamos preocupados por los altos precios de la energía. Yo veo dos certezas: la primera es que una guerra ilegal, que algunos aquí apoyan, está afectando a nuestras economías; la segunda es, qué curioso, que son los mismos que apoyan la guerra los que crean el problema y presionan para seguir consumiendo caros, volátiles y nocivos fósiles.

Hagamos ver a toda Europa a quién apoyan realmente los populistas. No a Europa. No son patriotas europeos; tampoco son patriotas de sus países. Ser patriota en Europa, en España o en cualquier Estado miembro a día de hoy es apoyar las renovables y rechazar las guerras. Ser patriota europeo pasa por apoyar el Pacto Verde Europeo, incluido el RCDE. Hay una cierta sensación de déjà vu con lo ocurrido en Ucrania hace unos años.

Pero, créanme, algunos países están mejor preparados: han aprovechado para invertir en renovables. Hoy en día tienen precios más asequibles y menos volatilidad en sus mercados, en el mercado eléctrico. El mío, por ejemplo, es uno de ellos. Y creo que eso es lo que debemos hacer: perseverar en soluciones europeas, en tecnologías limpias. Es más predecible el sol o el viento que cómo se levanta Trump cada mañana.

Paolo Borchia (PfE). – Signor Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, è simpatico prendere atto di come chi ci ha condotto allo schianto adesso ci spiega come uscirne.

Io ho una domanda da sottoporvi: ma veramente pensiamo che a livello di sicurezza degli approvvigionamenti energetici stiamo meglio rispetto al 2022? La risposta mi sembra evidente, ma ancora una volta non siamo stati ascoltati.

Voi avete pensato di uscire da una dipendenza, quella dal gas russo, ma contestualmente ci avete infilato in una lunga serie di altre dipendenze: dalle tecnologie e dalle materie prime cinesi necessarie per il Green Deal fino alle importazioni di gas liquefatto dal Qatar.

E allora, visto che siamo tutti bravi ad analizzare i problemi, iniziamo anche a parlare di soluzioni. Pensiamo ad esempio alla sospensione dell'ETS, un lusso che la nostra industria non si può più permettere. Lo sospendiamo e poi tra cinque anni ne riparliamo.

(L'oratore accetta di rispondere a una domanda "cartellino blu")

Thomas Pellerin-Carlin (S&D), *domanda "cartellino blu". – Onorevole Borchia, vorrei avere la sua opinione sul ricatto fatto dall'ambasciatore degli Stati Uniti sul GNL che viene dagli Stati Uniti. Vorrei avere la sua opinione sul fatto se dobbiamo accettare questo ricatto fatto dall'ambasciatore di Trump verso l'UE.

Paolo Borchia (PfE), *risposta a una domanda "cartellino blu". – No, non dobbiamo. Grazie per la domanda. Non dobbiamo accettare ricatti, dobbiamo pensare all'Europa, ai consumatori europei, all'industria europea.

E dobbiamo anche avere la lucidità di ragionare non in termini ideologici, perché noi usciremo da questo stato di dipendenza se abbiamo la capacità di ragionare su un mix energetico che sia flessibile, dove le rinnovabili aumentino e magari vedano anche il carico burocratico ridotto.

Ma poi soprattutto, il tema del nucleare, il tema del gas e il tema di ampliare il mix energetico e di avere dei piani B e delle alternative penso che sia una soluzione dalla quale non possiamo prescindere per il futuro.

Beata Szydło (ECR). – Panie Przewodniczący! Panie Komisarzu! Systemy ETS zniszczyły europejską gospodarkę. Kolejne firmy bankrutują, ludzie tracą pracę, przenoszona jest produkcja poza Unię Europejską. To dzieje się w czasie, kiedy obowiązuje już od dawna system ETS, a wy chcecie jeszcze dalej go pogłębiać. Niedługo ludzie nie będą już mieli szans na to, żeby płacić za prąd, za ogrzewanie, bo przecież rozmawia się tutaj również o ETSie drugim. To jest droga donikąd. Tego nie da się naprawić, tego nie da się poprawić.

Jeżeli dzisiaj mówimy o kolejnym kryzysie, który wywołany jest również oczywiście i sytuacją globalną, to należy się na to przygotować i zabezpieczyć. Do tej pory próbowano ratować się jeszcze bardziej, pogłębiając drogę, którą idziemy prosto na ścianę. ETS trzeba po prostu zlikwidować.

Brigitte van den Berg (Renew). – Mr President, 33 days ago, I quit smoking. And from an expert by experience, I can say that the first step in getting away from your dependence is admitting that you're dependent and admitting that this dependence is hurting you. But I can also say that what is far easier and what I see here a lot is denial – because we are denying that it is fossil fuel prices that are hurting our industries and are making our normal people pay. We need to get over this.

We need to face the truth – that it's time to start listening to the courageous. It's time to start listening to the people that want to change and that know how to change. It's time that we start believing that Europe is strong enough to build a healthy future – a future where we are in charge of our own cheap, clean and independent energy.

President. – Thank you very much and congratulations for not smoking.

1-0072-0000
Ville Niinistö (Verts/ALE). – Mr President, President Trump is jeopardising much with his illegal war on Iran. Russia is gaining billions of euro every week with the freeze of American oil sanctions, while Ukraine is missing out on weapons support that is being used in the Gulf.

Now, we are also facing a huge risk of a global recession due to the fossil energy price hike with the closure of the Strait of Hormuz.

First of all, we all need to remember that first we need to convince the Americans to de-escalate and normalise the trade supply in the Gulf.

Secondly, we in Europe must reinforce the green energy transition. Wind and solar cannot be stopped at the Strait of Hormuz. Electrification, grid investments, energy efficiency and energy savings must be encouraged. Member States that are furthest in the transition feel the least of this shock.

Thirdly, we also must be prepared, in a continued price hike, to tax windfall profits. That income can then be used to support citizens and businesses that are most vulnerable. But we cannot meddle with the market mechanism by supporting fossil fuels, because that would only prolong the dependency. Energy independence is the way out of the crisis.

Jussi Saramo (The Left). – Mr President, Donald Trump is an exceptionally ruthless and simple-minded leader, but this is not the first time the EU pays the price for US wars.

We may not be able to stop Trump or Putin from killing innocents, but we must break free from our dependence on their fossil fuels and their wars. It is not only electricity and fuel costs that are rising. Food prices and inflation in general are affecting ordinary people.

Fortunately, a green transition has already started in Europe. Thanks to clean energy, in my home country Finland, the price of electricity is now the lowest in Europe. Another excellent example is Spain – they have built a future with solar and wind power. Now, Spain is safer, more affordable and more independent.

Unfortunately, many other leaders in Europe are unable to lead the change. They want to look to the past and not to the future. We need immediate action. We need to consistently oppose the illegal actions of Trump, Netanyahu and Putin. We need to accelerate the green transition, to accelerate our freedom.

Zsuzsanna Borvendég (ESN). – Elnök Úr! Úgy tűnik, a globális mélyállam utasította az Unió vezetését, hogy gazdasági harakirit hajtson végre, Önök pedig túlbuzgó igyekezettel engedelmeskednek. A nyilvánvalóan nem működő szankciók mellett a közös eladósítással is lábon lövik az EU-t, és azt gondolják, hogy ezzel Oroszországot fogják térdre kényszeríteni. Nyakunkon az energiaválság, és Önök az Északi Áramlat felrobbantóját pénzelik, ahelyett, hogy a vezeték helyreállításával foglalkoznának. Mi a terv?

A Barátság kőolajvezeték elzárása és a Török Áramlat támadása zsarolás és nemzetbiztonsági fenyegetés két tagállam ellen, de még ezt is eltűrik, remélve, hogy befolyásolhatják a magyar választásokat. Mi lenne, ha nem hatalmi játszmákkal szórakoznának, hanem a válságkezelésre összpontosítanának? Az atomenergia kapcsán már belátták tévedésüket, jó lenne, ha ezúttal nem akkor térnének észhez, amikor már késő.

Diana Iovanovici Şoşoacă (NI). – Domnule președinte, nu știu dacă știți, dar România este cea mai bogată țară în resurse din toată Uniunea Europeană. Rusia este cea mai bogată țară în resurse din Europa și pe primele trei locuri din lume.

Înțeleg că la acest moment sunt războaie, numai că aceste războaie sunt și provocate. În Ucraina a fost provocat de Statele Unite ale Americii în 2014, prin așa-zisa revoluție Maidan, susținută de Uniunea Europeană.

Acum am ajuns ca țara cu cele mai multe resurse din Uniunea Europeană, România, să fie cea mai săracă. Avem cea mai mare producție de petrol și gaz, dar care nu ne mai aparține, pentru că este preluată de Statele Unite ale Americii, de Austria, de Israel și așa mai departe.

Noi nu mai avem nimic. Peste jumătate din populația României a plecat în străinătate. Proiectul Neptun Deep, dacă știți de el, va putea livra primele molecule de gaz în rețeaua europeană începând cu anul 2027, astfel că va fi obligatoriu pentru Comisie să integreze aceste resurse în strategia de stabilitate a prețurilor la nivelul întregului bloc și să sprijine operațional zona hub-ului de securitate maritimă la Marea Neagră, care acum este afectată inclusiv de războiul cu Iran, pentru că acolo avem o bază militară americană, Kogălniceanu, care, dacă va fi bombardată, inclusiv centrala nucleară de la Cernavodă, va exploda.

Pilar del Castillo Vera (PPE). – Señor presidente, señor comisario, el conflicto de Oriente Medio vuelve a tensionar los mercados energéticos y Europa vuelve a mostrar su vulnerabilidad: no habrá verdadera autonomía estratégica sin un profundo cambio de enfoque.

Primero, es imprescindible acelerar el despliegue de tecnologías de almacenamiento.

Segundo, debemos preservar y reforzar las fuentes de generación estable, como la energía nuclear. En ese sentido, resulta esencial que los 200 000 millones de euros comprometidos por la Comisión para el desarrollo de reactores modulares pequeños se traduzcan en soluciones reales, comerciales y estables. Por ello, quiero señalar también que constituye una gran irresponsabilidad cerrar centrales nucleares operativas y seguras, como pretende el Gobierno de España.

En tercer lugar, en relación con la seguridad de suministro, es imperativo adoptar una visión a largo plazo con contratos estables y duraderos.

Y por último, es necesario acelerar las interconexiones y simplificar los procedimientos de autorización.

En definitiva, la cuestión ya no es qué debemos hacer sino con qué rapidez y con qué determinación lo tenemos que hacer.

Annalisa Corrado (S&D). – Signor Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, in Spagna la scorsa settimana il prezzo all'ingrosso dell'energia elettrica è stato di 35 € al megawattora, in Italia 148 €. Perché? Perché, a parità di meccanismo, da noi il prezzo lo fa il gas, mentre in Spagna no.

Da qualche anno a questa parte, grazie alla strategia di Pedro Sánchez e Teresa Ribera, il prezzo lo fanno le rinnovabili. Quindi il nostro problema sono le fossili, non i modi che abbiamo per smettere di usarle. Le fossili.

Le stesse fossili per cui Trump va in giro con un carrello della spesa armato e dichiara una guerra illegale al Venezuela, minaccia la Groenlandia, aggredisce l'Iran assieme al genocida Netanyahu, infiammando il Medio Oriente e mettendo noi in una condizione critica mai vista.

Le stesse fossili che per qualcuno continuano a essere una buona idea, tanto da smontare i principali sistemi che abbiamo per andare nella direzione giusta, ossia la decarbonizzazione.

Le stesse fossili che rispondono a interessi che non sono quelli dei cittadini e delle imprese europee, arricchiscono molto pochissime tasche, mentre il costo ricade su famiglie e sistema produttivo.

Concludo: voltiamo pagina. Non possiamo rimanere attaccati alle fossili come la ministra Santanchè alla sua poltrona.

Csaba Dömötör (PfE). – Elnök Úr! Mostanra brutálisan nehéz helyzetbe hozták Európát. Beszűkítették az energiabeszerzési lehetőségeket az atomenergia üldözésével, a kötelező zöldítéssel és a keleti import tiltásával. A következmények itt vannak: az árak elszálltak, a többletszámlát a családok állják. De az itteni nagykoalíciót ez nem érdekli. Mint ahogy az sem érdekli őket, hogy mi a helyzet a tagállamokkal. Támogatólag nézik, hogy Ukrajna zsarolja Magyarországot, blokkolja a Barátság olajvezetéket és támadja a déli gázvezetéket.

Vannak, akik persze csendben tűrik, hogy felrobbantsanak vezetékeket, például az Északi Áramlatot, de mi nem fogjuk tűrni. Lehet, hogy Weber urat nem érdekli, hogy Németországban egy év alatt 124 000 álláshely szűnt meg az iparban, de minket érdekel, hogy megmaradnak-e a magyar munkahelyek, és mekkora lesz a rezsiszámla, ezért megtesszük a szükséges lépéseket. Az olajblokád és az államközi terrorizmus minden határ átlépése, főleg ha egy tagjelölt műveli egy tagországgal szemben. Zsarolások helyett több józan észt követelünk, törődjenek végre az európai családokkal is!

Claudiu-Richard Târziu (ECR). – Domnule președinte, stimați colegi, Europa nu are doar o problemă de preț pentru energie, ci mai ales o problemă reală de securitate a aprovizionării, ceea ce ne creează o insecuritate generală. Dacă accesul la petrolul sau gazul natural lichefiat din Golf este perturbat, nu vorbim doar despre facturi mai mari, ci și despre un risc direct pentru funcționarea economiei noastre.

Gazul lichefiat a devenit foarte important pentru economia Uniunii Europene, dar el nu mai poate fi procurat astăzi decât din Statele Unite ale Americii, cu prețurile cunoscute și riscurile asumate. Această dependență ne expune unor șocuri externe pe care nu le putem controla.

În același timp, sistemul european de comercializare a certificatelor de emisii de carbon crește costurile exact în momentul în care ar trebui să ne protejăm industria. Fără energie sigură și accesibilă, nu există competitivitate, nu există deci nici industrie și nici autonomie strategică.

Tranziția verde nu trebuie să continue cu orice preț și nu ignorând realitatea geopolitică. Ea nu este un scop în sine, ci este menită să ne facă o viață mai bună. Dacă ne face viața mai grea, trebuie să fie oprită.

Emma Wiesner (Renew). – Mr President, right now, we are living some really hard-earned lessons.

For decades, we built our economy based on fossil fuels when we should have known better. We should have known better when Russia invaded Crimea and cut the gas flows. We should have known better, changed our tax system and phased out oil instead of hoping for Iran to keep the Hormuz Strait open. We should have known better than to let the US threaten us to comply in order for them not to cut our gas supply.

We were wrong, wrong, wrong, wrong. We were wrong on getting dependent on Russia, wrong on getting dependent on the Middle East and wrong on getting dependent on the US.

So, my question is to the governments across Europe: how dare you challenge the EU climate policies when that is the only way, the only path to get rid out of these harmful dependencies? When will Europe learn?

President. – Dear colleague, you were wearing a t-shirt with a political message, which is not allowed.

I will take note and I will send a message to the Bureau.

Benedetta Scuderi (Verts/ALE). – Signor Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, il nostro continente non ha né gas e né petrolio. E questa non è ideologia, è geologia.

I prezzi dell'energia sono alle stelle perché l'importazione obbligatoria è soggetta a tutti gli shock esterni e i prezzi crescono.

E qual è la soluzione della destra? Compriamo più gas e petrolio e fermiamo la transizione. Sapete perché continuano a propinarci i fossili come unica soluzione? Perché mentre le persone spengono i caloriferi, le industrie spengono gli altiforni e i lavoratori perdono il lavoro, Descalzi, l'AD di Eni, ci dice che con prezzi greggio e grassi elevati ci saranno dividendi straordinari.

Quindi loro si arricchiscono e l'Europa muore. E quegli extraprofitti non ci sogniamo nemmeno di tassarli.

Ma lo vogliamo capire che la transizione è l'unica strada per l'autonomia, per la libertà dell'Europa?

Noi dobbiamo fare delle cose molto semplici: efficientamento delle nostre case, efficienza dei processi produttivi, elettrificazione e reti elettriche, teleriscaldamento, stoccaggio e tante, tantissime rinnovabili. Perché, spoiler, a differenza dei fossili, di sole e di vento ne abbiamo in abbondanza.

(L'oratrice accetta di rispondere a una domanda "cartellino blu")

Lukas Sieper (Renew), *domanda "cartellino blu". – Cosa cambierebbe per noi nei confronti dell'Iran se non fossimo dipendenti dal petrolio?

Benedetta Scuderi (Verts/ALE), *risposta a una domanda "cartellino blu". – Chiaramente noi potremmo prendere una posizione geopolitica molto più forte se non fossimo dipendenti completamente dai combustibili fossili.

Il ruolo dell'Europa come costruttore di pace, come difensore del diritto internazionale, non è possibile se tutta la nostra energia arriva da regimi autoritari ed è dipendente da Putin, Trump, Iran e gli Stati arabi e diversi regimi autoritari.

L'autonomia dell'Europa vuol dire anche costruzione di pace, autonomia energetica, difesa del diritto internazionale e permetterci di avere uno standing a livello internazionale per poter costruire la pace e poter difendere il diritto internazionale.

Елена Йончева (NI). – Г-н Председател, пред заплахата от глобална енергийна криза заради войната в Близкия изток Европа трябва да вземе решение и то веднага. Нямаме време да чакаме изграждането на нови атомни централи, след като изгубихме десетилетия в недалновидна политика.

Войната в Близкия изток не ви ли показа за пореден път, за пореден път, че икономиката е тази, която страда от недалновидни политически решения? Между избора да сме гладни и свободни или сити или ограничени избирам да сме умни, умни и далновидни, да укрепим свободата си чрез икономически мерки.

В това отношение България трябва да бъде за пример. Разширяваме ядрената си енергия, строим газопроводи и сме постигнали отдавна процент енергия от възобновяеми източници. Но България притежава нещо, с което може да помогне на Европа да не изгуби напълно силата, която има — въглищната енергия. Не я унищожавайте с цената на въглеродни квоти. Замразете търговията с емисии и нека преосмислим нейния ефект.

Wouter Beke (PPE). – Voorzitter, de situatie waar we voor staan is ernstig. Het Internationaal Energieagentschap spreekt niet voor niets over de moeder van alle energiecrisissen. Deze crisis zal dieper snijden en langer duren, onder andere omdat in het Midden-Oosten cruciale energie-infrastructuur is vernield.

Europa moet zijn rol spelen, maar de echte hefbomen liggen nog steeds bij de lidstaten. Daarom denk ik dat de Commissie tijdelijke gerichte maatregelen moet nemen om gerichte staatssteun mogelijk te maken en ruimte te creëren om de gas- en elektriciteitsprijzen te drukken. Aan de lidstaten wil ik zeggen: ik denk niet dat het tijdperk is aangebroken om onbeperkt miljarden uit te geven. Maar dat betekent niet dat er niets kan gebeuren, wel dat het gericht moet gebeuren om de meest kwetsbaren te beschermen. Geef steun aan gezinnen en kmo's die het echt nodig hebben, maar geef geen blanco cheques en schuif geen facturen door naar morgen.

Deze crisis toont andermaal aan dat onze afhankelijkheid van fossiele energie onze welvaart ongelooflijk kwetsbaar maakt. Laten we daarom verstandig omgaan met het emissiehandelssysteem. Het opblazen, zoals sommige collega's hier gezegd hebben, is geen oplossing voor de toekomst. Wel moeten we het waar nodig bijsturen, zeker voor de energie-intensieve industrie, met bijkomende flexibiliteit en meer ademruimte. Maar het systeem opblazen, zou een historische fout zijn. De burger rekent op ons. De bedrijven rekenen op ons. Laten we onze verantwoordelijkheid nemen.

Thomas Pellerin-Carlin (S&D). – Monsieur le Président, Donald Trump a provoqué un nouveau choc pétrolier. Nos dirigeants européens n'ont pas choisi cette guerre, mais ils ont choisi de maintenir la dépendance aux énergies fossiles. C'est un choix politique, qui enrichit les géants du pétrole et du gaz en appauvrissant les Européens.

Quand le prix du pétrole augmente, c'est l'auxiliaire de vie qui paie. Quand le prix du gaz augmente, c'est le boulanger qui paie. L'Europe n'a ni pétrole ni gaz, mais elle a du vent, du soleil, du nucléaire et surtout beaucoup d'idées.

Alors, pour sortir de cette crise des énergies fossiles, nous devons enfin sortir des énergies fossiles. Dans les mois à venir, faisons preuve de bon sens. Rejetons cette extrême droite nostalgique des énergies fossiles qui voue l'Europe à un enfer énergétique. Garantissons la stabilité réglementaire pour que les constructeurs automobiles puissent investir dans la voiture électrique. Soutenons l'investissement dans les énergies renouvelables. Devenons enfin une puissance écologique qui protège nos boulangers, nos auxiliaires de vie, notre environnement, en nous aidant à passer à l'électricité.

(L'orateur accepte une question carton bleu)

Davor Ivo Stier (PPE), *blue-card question. – Dear colleague, half of the energy that we consume in Europe is for heating and cooling, and the Commission is about to publish a strategy on heating and cooling, and within that, an action plan for geothermal energy – the first action plan. What are your expectations? What do you expect from these strategic documents?

Thomas Pellerin-Carlin (S&D), *blue-card answer. – Thank you very much, colleague. I am happy that we are pursuing a conversation on energy security.

Indeed, if we want to achieve energy security in Europe, we need to have secure access to heating and cooling. I think we need the Commission to be bolder in investing in all the domestic and home-grown energy sources that we have in Europe. Geothermal is actually one. We can do more for geothermal in the short and medium term, and that is very helpful for the debate we are having today.

We need also to invest in research for enhanced geothermal systems that will allow to have deeper access to geothermal in the 2030s and the 2040s all over Europe, not only in the areas that are currently, let's say, 'good' for geothermal development with the current technologies.

Anders Vistisen (PfE). – Hr. Formand! Hvis man ønsker at forstå, hvorfor Europa ikke er selvforsynende med energi, skal man bare kigge sig omkring her i rummet.

Det er her, man har presset på for at afskaffe atomkraft i lande som Tyskland og Sverige. Det er her, man har presset på for at gøre Europa afhængig af ustabile energiformer som sol og vind, og det er her, man har presset på for at lave en alt for dyr grøn omstilling, der gør, at europæiske virksomheder, forbrugere og borgere ikke har råd til at få hverdagen til at hænge sammen.

Det kunne man jo have valgt at gøre på andre måder. Man kunne have valgt som USA at satse på energiuafhængighed, sådan at man ikke var i lommen på hverken Putin eller Mellemøstens mullaher, men man fortsætter ned ad den samme dyre og fordummende grønne omstillingsvej, hvor man ikke har noget som helst blik for, hvad energien kommer til at koste, så længe det føles godt i maven og intentionerne er rigtige.

Og så længe det er det, der definerer Europas energipolitik, så bliver vi ikke uafhængige af udenlandske aktører, uanset om de er despoter i Mellemøsten eller mod øst.

(Taleren accepterede at besvare et blåt kort-spørgsmål)

Sigrid Friis (Renew), blåt-kort-spørgsmål. – Det dyreste og det dummeste, det er ikke den grønne omstilling. Det dyreste, dummeste og dårligste for Europa, det er da at fortsætte med at være så afhængig af sort energi.

Så du taler jo mod bedre vidende, hvis du tror, det ikke kan betale sig at investere i vedvarende energikilder. Hvis du tror, det ikke vil gøre os både rigere og sikrere som kontinent at sætte flere vindmøller eller solceller op.

Hvor længe vil du blive ved? Hvor mange geopolitiske kriser skal der til? Hvor mange krige i Ukraine eller Iran? Hvor mange udenrigspolitiske chok til det europæiske energimarked skal der til, før du åbner øjnene og tør træde ind på den grønne omstillingvej?

Anders Vistisen (PfE), blåt-kort-svar. – Sigrid Friis, jeres energipolitik i Det Radikale Venstre har været en katastrofe for Danmark og for Europa. I har lukket ned for olie og gas i Nordsøen, og det gør, at man nu skal købe det hos Mellemøstens mullaher eller i Rusland. Det er jo fuldstændig tudetosset.

I sagde, at havvind ville blive en kæmpe god forretning. Sandheden er, at I nu putter hundredvis af milliarder i statsstøtte i røven af det for at få det til at fungere.

Det er jo en pinlig tilståelsessag, at De Radikale er nødt til at betale og bestikke med skattekroner for at få jeres håbløse energipolitik til at hænge sammen. Det er jo sandheden. Og sådan er det jo, når Finansministeriet regner det igennem, og sådan er det, når alle andre ser på det udefra.

Selv tænketanken Kraka har sagt, at jeres energiøer er et fatamorgana og et kæmpe hul i jorden rent økonomisk.

Diego Solier (ECR). – Señor presidente, señor González Casares, señora Corrado, no habrán querido poner como ejemplo la política energética española. ¿Que es lo que quieren, un apagón aún más grande?

Señor comisario, ¿sabe quién gana cuando sube el precio de la energía? El Estado, a través de los impuestos. ¿Y sabe quiénes lo pagan? Lo pagan las familias, lo pagan los autónomos, lo pagan las pymes y lo paga la industria europea.

Mientras tanto, en España, el Gobierno de Pedro Sánchez está tomando decisiones que van justo en la dirección contraria al sentido común. España no tiene gas. Y, aun así, Sánchez quiere cerrar las nucleares, para hacernos más dependientes del gas extranjero. Es difícil hacerlo peor.

Y lo hace después del apagón del 28 de abril. Y lo hace ignorando a los expertos. Y lo hace ignorando a la Comisión Europea. Y lo hace sabiendo que el resultado será muy claro: energía más cara, más dependencia y menos industria.

Esto no es una transición energética: es una ideología impuesta contra la realidad. Y los que lo terminan pagando son los ciudadanos.

Elsi Katainen (Renew). – Arvoisa puhemies, kriisi toisensa jälkeen vyöryy päälle, eikä tilannetta tunnu hallitsevan kukaan. Venäjän hyökkäyssota Ukrainaan jatkuu viidettä vuotta, ja Iranin sota on jo nyt aiheuttanut vakavia seurauksia maailman energiamarkkinoille. Tuomme edelleen melkein 60 prosenttia EU:n ulkopuolelta meidän energiastamme. Sodan pitkittyessä on aivan selvää, että vaikutukset ulottuvat laajalle talouteen aiheuttaen inflaatiota ja korkojen nousua.

Energian ja polttoaineiden hinnan nousun vuoksi myös ruokaturvamme vaarantuu. Myös lannoitteiden kallistuminen tulee väistämättä nostamaan ruoan hintaa. On tärkeää löytää ratkaisuja viljelijöiden tulovirran vahvistamiseksi, mutta myös kulujen hillitsemiseksi.

Biotalouden roolia on vahvistettu, mutta parlamentin vaatima lannoitestrategia on saatava kiireesti komissiosta käsittelyyn ja toteutukseen. Meidän on päästävä irti riippuvuuksista ja vahvistettava omavaraisuutta myös biopohjaista energiaa lisäämällä. Viimeistään nyt on aika herätä todellisuuteen ja irrottauduttava fossiilisista energialähteistä.

Michael Bloss (Verts/ALE). – Herr Präsident, Herr Kommissar! Wenn es irgendwo auf der Welt knallt, dann zahlen wir hier die Rechnung. Das haben wir vor vier Jahren gemerkt, als Putin uns in die Gaskrise gestürzt hat. Und das merken wir heute. Dabei gibt es einen wichtigen Unterschied zwischen Trump und uns in Europa: Trumps Gas-Buddys verdienen sich gerade jeden Tag dumm und dämlich. Und wir in Europa zahlen den Preis. Wir haben kein Öl, wir haben kein Gas. Wir haben Familien, die Angst haben vor der nächsten Gasrechnung. Wir haben Unternehmen, die sich den Sprit nicht mehr leisten können bis zur nächsten Baustelle. Wir haben Supermarktpreise, die nur eine Richtung kennen, und zwar nach oben.

Und da müssen wir uns doch jetzt mal wirklich von der Ideologie verabschieden. Öl und Gas sind das Problem. Darauf können wir uns doch mal alle einigen. Und nennen Sie es, wie Sie wollen: Sonne und Wind, erneuerbare Energien, Freiheitsenergien – das sind die Lösungen. Es ist in jedem Fall klar: Wir müssen jetzt raus aus der fossilen Abhängigkeit, denn die ist einfach – pardon my French – arschteuer. Und sie treibt die Unternehmen und die Familien in den Ruin.

Danuše Nerudová (PPE). – Mr President, crazy old men are messing with our energy bills. Putin is blackmailing us with fuels, and now the Iranian leader is sending rockets across the Middle East and blocking trade routes. And us, Europe? Again and again, we are just bystanders.

When energy becomes a weapon, it is our citizens who pay the price first. We have a duty – not just political, but moral – to act, to protect. If we can shield households by lowering taxes, let us do it. If we can fix the pricing of emission allowances, let us do it.

But in the long term, we need to build renewables and nuclear to have stable and independent resources, and to tell those crazy old men: 'Europe is no longer at your mercy.'

Jens Geier (S&D). – Herr Präsident! An Frau Ministerin Raouna für ihre Stellungnahme: Ich unterstreiche, was Sie gesagt haben, dass Europa den Weg aus Abhängigkeiten herausfinden muss. Das unterstütze ich. Die Fossilen stehen da an Nummer eins. Aber wenn ich hier der Debatte folge und dann immer wieder höre, dass wir zur breiteren Anwendung von Nuklearenergie zurückfinden müssen, muss ich mich fragen: Führen wir denn nicht auch Uran ein? Sind wir nicht auch abhängig von Uranimporten? Oder machen wir uns das seit Neuestem in Europa selber?

Laut den Zahlen des Wissenschaftlichen Dienstes dieses Hauses ist im Jahr 2023 – das sind die aktuellsten Zahlen, die zu finden waren – rund ein Viertel der Uranimporte, die in Europa verwendet worden sind, aus Russland gekommen. Also haben wir damit auch die russische Kriegsmaschine mitfinanziert. Und einige Atomkraftbetreiber haben sich sogar noch nach Kriegsbeginn eingedeckt, damit sie das dann auch lange verwenden können. Ich glaube, dass der Weg, den die Kommission uns beschrieben hat, der richtige ist. Wir müssen an der Stelle beschleunigen. Wir müssen energieunabhängig werden, aber eben auch von Nuklearenergie.

Marion Maréchal (ECR). – Monsieur le Président, chers collègues, l'envolée des prix à la pompe provoquée par la crise au Moyen-Orient jette dans le désarroi nos compatriotes qui ont de plus en plus de mal à boucler les fins de mois. Elle met également en péril des filières entières de notre économie. Pêcheurs, transporteurs, agriculteurs, petits indépendants: tous sont exposés à une augmentation brutale des coûts qui menace leur activité.

Dans cette situation, le seul souci de nos dirigeants devrait être de prendre d'urgence des mesures pour baisser la facture énergétique. Le gouvernement de Meloni l'a fait avec son «décret carburant». La Hongrie l'a fait en bloquant les prix à la pompe. La Suède l'a anticipé en baissant plusieurs taxes sur l'essence et le diesel depuis 2024, de même que le Portugal.

À l'inverse, le gouvernement français se distingue par son inaction. Et pourtant, des solutions simples existent. À court terme, instaurer la TICPE flottante, c'est-à-dire une taxe ajustable. À moyen terme, relancer les forages d'exploitation de gaz et de pétrole dans nos zones économiques exclusives, développer une filière de production décarbonée d'engrais, relancer la filière des biocarburants et celle du nucléaire de quatrième génération et, enfin, engager la grande révolution géothermique.

Sigrid Friis (Renew). – Hr. Formand! Et hundrede millioner euro. Det er Europas ekstra energiregning hver eneste dag, for det er rigtig, rigtig dyrt at være afhængig af importerede fossile brændsler.

Og alligevel ser vi det ske igen og igen. Iran er bare den seneste geopolitiske krise og konsekvenserne - vi kender dem allerede: skyhøje regninger, enorm usikkerhed.

Det rammer borgere, industri og erhverv. Og så er der sikkerhedsspørgsmålet. Hvor længe vil vi være så sårbare? Vil vi virkelig fortsætte den her sorte afhængighed?

Det behøver jo ikke at være sådan her. I lande, hvor gas dominerer, så er prissvingene voldsomme, men når vedvarende energi får plads, så er vi også bedre rustet.

For grønne energikilder er ikke bare god klimapolitik. Det er sikkerhedspolitik som aldrig før. Og energipolitikken kan være et økonomisk instrument.

Derfor har jeg egentlig et ret simpelt spørgsmål: hvornår skal vi sende nogle sunde prissignaler, hvor grøn energi ikke bliver beskattet højere end importeret sort fossil energi? Lad os nu ægte få den grønne energipolitik i centrum for Europa.

Andrea Wechsler (PPE). – Sehr geehrter Herr Präsident, sehr geehrter Herr Kommissar! Energiesicherheit ist kein abstrakter Begriff. Man spürt sie, wenn in Berlin plötzlich Strom, Heizung und Netze ausfallen. Und man spürt sie, wenn die Preise an Tankstellen dramatisch steigen infolge des Iran-Schocks. Und unsere Unternehmen spüren es jeden Tag, wenn sie sich die Frage stellen, ob es in Europa verlässliche und bezahlbare Energie gibt. Und zu oft lautet die Antwort „Nein". Und wenn die Antwort „Nein" ist, dann gehen Investitionen, dann gehen Jobs.

Und die Wahrheit ist: Unser System funktioniert nicht. Wir sind zu abhängig von außen, von fossilen Energieträgern, und zu zersplittert im Inneren. Und deshalb brauchen wir jetzt einen echten europäischen Energiebinnenmarkt, mehr Netze, schnellere Genehmigungen, mehr Verbindungen, mehr Erneuerbare und keine Tabus. Wir müssen alles überprüfen, was Preise treibt und Versorgung behindert, auch dort, wo Regulierung praktische Risiken schafft. Denn wenn Energie nicht frei durch Europa fließt, dann gehen die Lichter aus. Und wenn die Lichter ausgehen, dann steht mehr auf dem Spiel als Strom. Dann steht Europas Stärke auf dem Spiel.

Sofie Eriksson (S&D). – Herr talman! Tack för ordet! Vi måste frikoppla gas- och elpriserna, för de gnuggar ju handflatorna nu, i takt med grafer som pekar uppåt. Amerikanska och ryska oligarker, oljemäklare, de som redan har så att det räcker och blir över. De gör just nu övervinster på bekostnad av oss. Det kan inte få fortsätta.

Europas hushåll ska inte betala priset för andras krig. Inte för geopolitiska spel, inte för en marknad som tillåts löpa amok när krisen slår till. EU har agerat tidigare. Vi har infört pristak, vi har gått efter övervinster, vi har stöttat hushåll. Nu står vi inför en ny kris. Vi måste bryta beroendet av diktaturer. Det handlar om sunt förnuft. Men vi måste också koppla bort gaspriset från elpriset. Tack.

Matej Tonin (PPE). – Gospod predsednik, kolegice in kolegi!

Si predstavljate v državi Republiki Sloveniji, kjer vlada trdi, da imamo dovolj goriva za naslednje tri mesece? Vlada zaradi katastrofalne slabe komunikacije povzroči paniko, da na bencinskih črpalkah zmanjkuje dizla. Neverjetno, ampak ta primer vam govori v prid temu, da je včasih za cene energije odgovorna ali zelo velikokrat odgovorna tudi država članica, vlade posameznih držav članic s svojo davčno politiko in pa svojo komunikacijsko politiko.

Evropska unija pa lahko za naše konkurenčne cene energentov naredi največ, če bomo intenzivno stavili na obnovljive vire energije in pa na jedrsko energijo. Samo miks obnovljivih virov in pa jedrske energije je tista stvar, ki nam zagotavlja strateško avtonomijo v prihodnosti in zmanjša volatilnost cen na trgu energije.

Sérgio Gonçalves (S&D). – Senhor Presidente, Caro Comissário, o conflito no Médio Oriente volta a expor a vulnerabilidade da Europa a choques externos.

É fundamental que continuemos o investimento em energias renováveis e na descarbonização das nossas economias, não apenas pela necessidade de combater as alterações climáticas, mas também como uma forma de reduzir a nossa dependência do exterior.

No imediato, a Comissão Europeia e os Estados-Membros têm de agir com medidas para compensar a perda de rendimentos e reduzir os impostos que afetam o preço da energia. Estas medidas devem ser direcionadas às famílias e empresas mais vulneráveis, sem esquecer setores específicos que estão a ser desproporcionalmente afetados por esta crise, como o setor das pescas, ou as regiões ultraperiféricas, como a Madeira, que dependem exclusivamente de transportes aéreos e marítimos.

Não podemos permitir que um conflito externo comprometa a nossa economia e coesão social. Hoje, mais do que nunca, é preciso reforçar a resiliência e a autonomia das nossas economias e regiões.

Jüri Ratas (PPE). – Suur tänu, austatud president! Head ametikaaslased, volinik! Me räägime siin täna väga tõsisest teemast, energiajulgeolekust. See puudutab igapäevaselt meie peresid. See puudutab Euroopa ettevõtteid. See puudutab meie varustuskindlust.

Kuid reaalsus on see, et paljude liikmesriikide seas, samuti ka minu koduriigi Eesti jaoks on tegemist täiesti uue kriisiga. Eestis on olukord praegu tõsine. Nii tööstus kui ka kodumajapidamised seisavad silmitsi kiiresti kasvavate hindadega ja see kõik suurendab igapäevast ebastabiilsust. Meie ettevõtete konkurentsivõime üle Euroopa on löögi all ning inimesed on sunnitud tegema igapäevaseid valikuid kütte ja toidu vahel.

Ma tahan küsida siin Euroopa Parlamendi ees päris konkreetselt, et kui me räägime turu mingisugusestki stabiilsusest ja taskukohasusest, siis kus on tegelikult konkreetsed, kus on kiired lahendused, ja me vajame konkreetseid ja kiireid lahendusi. Me vajame selliseid mehhanisme, mis kaitsevad väiksemaid, mis kaitsevad haavatavamaid liikmesriike ka ootamatute kriiside puhul. Nii et seetõttu ma loodan, et Euroopa tõesti juba täna hommikul tegelikult, aga hiljemalt õhtul, suudab astuda ühiseid samme, et pakkuda kindlustunnet meie perekondadele ja meie ettevõtlusele.

Γιάννης Μανιάτης (S&D). – Κύριε Πρόεδρε, κύριε Επίτροπε, οι διεθνείς κρίσεις αναδεικνύουν συνεχώς τη διαχρονική εξάρτηση της Ένωσης σε εισαγόμενες πηγές και τεχνολογίες ενέργειας που την εκθέτουν σε γεωπολιτικούς εκβιασμούς. Ως αποτέλεσμα έχουμε: υψηλές τιμές για οικιακούς και βιομηχανικούς καταναλωτές, ιδιαίτερα σε περιοχές όπως η Νοτιοανατολική Ευρώπη και η Ελλάδα, χαμηλή ανταγωνιστικότητα και ενεργειακή φτώχεια, καθώς και απώλεια εγχώριας παραγωγής και θέσεων εργασίας.

Με στόχο την ενεργειακή δημοκρατία και την προστασία των καταναλωτών, η Ένωση χρειάζεται άμεσα περισσότερους πόρους για δίκτυα, αποθήκευση και εγχώρια παραγωγή ανανεώσιμης ενέργειας, ιδιαίτερα από ενεργειακές κοινότητες, ταχύτερη αδειοδότηση, οργάνωση και εποπτεία των αγορών, αξιοποίηση των πρώτων υλών, της τεχνολογίας και της επιχειρηματικότητας της Ευρώπης.

Δεν επιτρέπεται να αντικατασταθεί η εξάρτησή μας από τους ρωσικούς αγωγούς και το πετρέλαιο της Μέσης Ανατολής από το συνεχώς ασταθές LNG των spot διεθνών αγορών και την Κίνα σε κρίσιμα ορυκτά και πράσινες τεχνολογίες. Η ενεργειακή αυτονομία είναι ζήτημα κοινωνικής δικαιοσύνης, αλληλεγγύης και ευρωπαϊκής κυριαρχίας.

Seán Kelly (PPE). – A Uachtaráin, a Choimisinéir, whether we like it or not, we are going to need oil and gas for many years to come, and that means we should be utilising the oil and gas resources within Europe ourselves. Rather than leaving it in the ground, we should be utilising it. That means Corrib and Barryroe in Ireland should be utilised immediately.

But more important than that is to ramp up the deployment of renewables. That is the future. That means implementing, as soon as possible, the grids package, which is complete and which is accurate. Also, we will have to look at some of the obstacles in relation to the deployment of renewables, particularly planning and permitting. When a project is in the public good, like a renewable project, wind or solar, then it should get priority in planning, priority in permitting and we should ensure that that public good is delivered. If we do that, then we won't have to be worrying about geopolitical shocks into the future.

The solution is in our hands. Let's do it. Let's back the commissioner and make it happen.

Андрей Новаков (PPE). – Г-н Председател, като гледам цените на горивата, много скоро ще бъде по-евтино да зареждаме колите си с френско шампанско, отколкото с дизел. И тогава единствената мобилност, която ще видим, е на гласоподаватели от нормалните проевропейски партии към радикалните, защото те съвсем нормално ще използват справедливия гняв на хората. Ще предлагат прости решения на сложни въпроси. Доста опасно упражнение.

Аз имам предложение за това как да постъпим в тази ситуация, защото гласоподавателите – нормално, всички хора в Европа очакват нашите решения, а не просто остро да обсъдим даден проблем. И в момента има мисия на Европейския съюз, която се нарича ASPIDES. Тя е в Залива, разполага само с два кораба, вместо осем. Нейната цел е да пази търговски кораби от набези. Трябва да я въоръжим достатъчно с фрегати и минни ловци, които да правят така, че пратките на петрол за Европа да пристигат без всякакъв проблем. Тогава цените на горивата ще паднат и хората ще разберат, че Европейският съюз се грижи за тях и за техния джоб.

Davor Ivo Stier (PPE). – Poštovani predsjedavajući, moram reagirati na izjavu koja je izrečena u ovoj raspravi da je ugrožena opskrba naftom za Mađarsku i Slovačku. To nije točno.

Točno je da ruski naftovod Družba ne radi, i to zbog ruske agresije na Ukrajinu, ali nije točno da je ugrožena opskrba u Mađarskoj i Slovačkoj jer oni imaju alternativu i oni već koriste tu alternativu, a to je Jadranski naftovod. Danas je stigao već sedmi tanker od kada Družba ne radi do Omišlja, dakle do terminala na sjevernom Jadranu. I ta nafta se isporučuje Mađarskoj i Slovačkoj.

Stoga ne stoji da je ugrožena njihova opskrba naftom, već postoji alternativa, a ta alternativa je Jadranski naftovod.

Juan Fernando López Aguilar (S&D). – Señor presidente, señor comisario Jørgensen, ha hecho usted bien en comenzar su intervención señalando antecedentes históricos causantes del encarecimiento exponencial de los combustibles: desde la crisis de Suez hasta la última agresión de Trump y Netanyahu en Irán, pasando por la agresión de Putin contra Ucrania, todas con consecuencias catastróficas en el conjunto de la población y, particularmente, en la clase media y trabajadora.

La segunda lección de su intervención es que es absolutamente imprescindible no solo dar recomendaciones a los Estados miembros, sino señalar buenas prácticas, como la española con la excepción ibérica, un escudo social que protege contra el encarecimiento del combustible, lo cual es especialmente sensible en regiones que dependen enteramente del transporte aéreo y marítimo, como es el caso de Canarias.

Pero la tercera es la más importante: no hay modo de afrontar esto si no es acelerando la descarbonización de la economía europea y, por tanto, la transición verde y justa, y no lo contrario. Se trata, exactamente, de romper con nuestra dependencia tóxica de combustibles fósiles que se encarecen fácilmente.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Arvoisa puhemies, Euroopan sinisilmäisyys hakee vertaistaan. Riippuvuus venäläisestä kaasusta oli kallis oppitunti siitä, mitä tapahtuu, kun sidomme itsemme vihamielisiin toimijoihin. Mutta mitä teemme nyt?

Vihreän siirtymän kiimassa olette purkaneet toimivia energialaitoksia ja rakentaneet tilalle uuden riippuvuuden kiinalaisista kriittisistä mineraaleista ja teknologiasta. Nämä Euroopan sinisilmäiset päättäjät vievät meidät ensin ojaan ja sieltä sitten allikkoon. Ratkaisu ei voi olla se, että Eurooppa siirtyy Venäjä-riippuvuudesta kiinalaiseen materiaaliriippuvuuteen ja kahlitsee itsensä kettingillä puihin, kun omalle takapihalle avattaisiin kaivos.

Vuosikausia jatkunut vihreä amputaatio kaventaa kansalaisten taloudellista liikkumavaraa. Vihreiden puolueohjelman toteutuminen ei tee tavallista kansalaista tyytyväiseksi. Tavallinen kansalainen on tyytyväinen, kun turve palaa kattilassa, atomi halkeaa reaktorissa ja energialasku on kohtuullinen.

Oihane Agirregoitia Martínez (Renew). – Señor presidente, con la guerra en Irán y los vaivenes de Donald Trump, estamos todos y todas conteniendo el aliento y viendo cómo podemos paliar las subidas de precios de la factura de la luz, de los combustibles, de la compra. Hoy escuchábamos que esto va a afectar también al mercado de la vivienda, y volvemos a los eternos debates de seguridad y autonomía estratégica. Tenemos y sabemos de diferencias que son inaceptables en el precio de la energía en los Estados miembros.

Hoy hay una petición que es muy concreta: ¿cuál es la lista de barreras concretas que la Comisión Europea cree que los Estados miembros deben eliminar para llegar realmente a un mercado energético que sea unificado? Lo que pedimos es información que sea pública, transparente y objetiva sobre cuál es la combinación energética que necesitamos y qué barreras hay que eliminar para ir directamente a exigírsela a los ministros de los Estados miembros.

Sara Matthieu (Verts/ALE). – Mr President, colleagues, let me ask you a very simple question: is there a solar energy crisis? No. Is there a wind energy crisis? No. But we do again have a fossil fuel crisis.

Trump's illegal war in Iran is costing our citizens and our industries a hell of a lot of money. And who next to Trump is also responsible for this? It is his right-wing puppets like Orbán, like Meloni, that want to protect fossil fuel, that are actually trying to sabotage our climate laws that are going to protect us against these high energy prices. They are not protecting our European industry. They are protecting the fossil fuel gains.

And so, colleagues, the answer is staring us right in the face. It is wind. It is solar. Those are the only energies that we actually own where autocrats cannot blackmail us or raise the prices. It is time we grow a spine. It is time we stop begging at the feet of the autocrats. Let's double down on renewables. That is how we win.

Sunčana Glavak (PPE). – Poštovani predsjedavajući, kolegice i kolege, ove okolnosti od politike očekuju zapravo snagu i brzinu reakcije i zato ću s vama podijeliti reakciju Vlade Republike Hrvatske.

Donijela je već deseti paket mjera vrijedan oko 450 milijardi eura, usmjeren upravo na ublažavanje rasta cijena energije i zaštitu standarda građana. Glavni fokus ograničavanje je cijena goriva i struje kako bi se spriječio veći udar na kućanstva i gospodarstvo. Bez ovih mjera cijene bi bile više, a ovako se djelomično rast amortizira.

Za građane cijene električne energije u Hrvatskoj ostaju iste do listopada ove godine uz dodatne uštede na računima, a najugroženiji dobivaju 70 eura mjesečno. Poduzetnicima se također ograničava cijena struje kako bi ostali konkurentni. Država osigurava stabilnost cijena plina. Paket uključuje potpore za javni prijevoz, poljoprivredu, studente te ulaganja u obnovljive izvore energije.

Politički gledano, mjere su odgovor na globalnu energetsku krizu i rast cijena, na socijalnu zaštitu i očuvanje ekonomske stabilnosti. To će biti dobar primjer i za mnoge zemlje u okruženju.

Maria Grapini (S&D). – Domnule președinte, domnule comisar, am aflat astăzi din partea Consiliului că nu ar fi un pericol, că nu trebuie să ne înspăimântăm că nu există un pericol pentru securitatea energetică.

Domnule comisar, haideți să fim realiști. Ieri m-am întâlnit cu 11 ramuri ale industriei din România: industria cimentului, siderurgie, metalurgie, industria îngrășămintelor, construcții, materiale de construcții. Toți au ridicat problema costului energiei.

Și înainte de războiul din Iran aveam de trei ori mai mult costul energiei în Uniunea Europeană.

Trebuie să terminăm cu dependențele, trebuie să avem o politică și, într-adevăr, un plan al producerii energiei în Uniunea Europeană. Sigur că trebuie să avem ambiții, dar eu cred că ambițiile trebuie să fie legate de obiective realiste.

Și spunea Consiliul de prețuri accesibile. Domnule comisar, prețul accesibil nu este același în Luxemburg cu România. În România avem pensii de 400 de euro, avem salarii de 800 de euro și nu poate să suporte cetățenii aceste prețuri ridicate la energie.

Lukas Sieper (Renew). – Mr President, thank you, it's a whole different feeling up front here.

Japan takes 60 % of its energy from imports. And they use ships for this. And these ships, they travel through a very narrow strait.

And recently, the so-called maritime militia of China gathered thousands of boats there. And they did concentrated manoeuvres showing how vulnerable Japan is when a geopolitical opponent decides to block a maritime straight for their fossil fuel imports, and how bad this is for Japan's geopolitical situation.

Fortunately, we are not in that situation.

Dan Jørgensen, *Member of the Commission. – Honourable Members, thank you for a very good debate. I am grateful that it seems like there is a clear majority in this House who shares the analysis that the real problem for us in Europe, when it comes to energy, is our dependency on fossil fuels. It is a problem for our security, it is a problem for our prosperity and it is a problem because we need to get rid of it to fight climate change.

Now, to those of you who argue that the way to solve the present crisis is to go back to more fossils, I'll say that is like trying to prevent diabetes by telling the patient to eat more sugar. It will do the opposite. It will hurt us. It will make us more dependent.

Every year, we import more than EUR 370 billion worth of fossils. Maybe it is a good idea to change that. Maybe it is a good idea to, instead of doing that – buying fossils, using them, buying some new, using them – let's grow our own clean energy, renewable energy.

And to those who say let's start buying Russian gas again, I will say no more. Never again. Not one single molecule ever again. Russia has used energy against us, weaponised it against us. Russia has blackmailed Member States of this European Union, and the worst thing, of course, is Russia has used the profits from selling energy to us to finance its terrible war in Ukraine. Never again.

Marilena Raouna, *President-in-Office of the Council. – Mr President, honourable Members, Commissioner, thank you very much for this important debate, for the valuable insights. I think that, across the board in this debate, there has been agreement that we need to act with urgency on energy independence for our Union.

The Commissioner referred to successive crises and I would say that at every crisis we have learned a lesson. This is also the time to act on the lessons we are learning from this crisis.

There were a number of you that referred to the ETS. Let me be clear: the ETS has played an essential role when it comes to energy transition. Competitiveness and the green transition are not opposing forces or objectives. I would say they are mutually reinforcing.

At the same time, we do not operate in a vacuum. We need to be honest about the context in which we are in. European industry and our households are under immense pressure from the energy costs rising also in light of this war in Iran and the situation in the Gulf. So, we must act without lowering our ambition to the destination, but at the same time while being flexible and while modernising.

The European Council, last week I believe, marked significant progress when it comes to addressing high energy prices in the short term and then in the long term also for advancing energy independence. At the same time, we are well aware that there is important work ahead of us. A key part of that will be carried by the Council.

What I can assure you is that, under the leadership of the Cyprus Presidency, we will continue working intensively, closely monitoring developments in energy prices, with the core objective to mitigate risks to security of supply in close coordination, of course, with Member States.

Nikola Bartůšek (NI), in writing – Every passing day in the current geopolitical context reminds us how wrong we were in the past.

About what?

About nuclear power, of course.

For years, Europe turned away from a reliable and low-carbon source of energy, leaving itself exposed to external shocks, unstable suppliers, and rising prices. Energy security is no longer an abstract concept. It is a matter of sovereignty, economic stability, and social welfare.

If we are serious about ensuring affordable energy for both our industry and our citizens, we must act now. Nuclear power offers a stable, scalable, and clean solution that can anchor Europe's energy system for decades to come.

The European Union must not only start building new nuclear power plants but also invest heavily in research and innovation, from next-generation reactors to safer and more efficient technologies.

We have already fallen behind in green energy research, where China has leaped further ahead. We cannot afford to miss this opportunity again. Nuclear energy must become a cornerstone of Europe's energy security and independence in the future.

Vilija Blinkevičiūtė (S&D), raštu – Energetika šiandien yra tapusi vienu svarbiausių geopolitinės galios ir saugumo veiksnių. Tai nebe vien infrastruktūros ar kainų klausimas – tai mūsų gebėjimo veikti savarankiškai, apsaugoti savo ekonomiką ir užtikrinti politinį stabilumą pagrindas. Pastarojo laikotarpio krizės aiškiai atskleidė, kaip lengvai energijos tiekimas gali būti panaudotas kaip spaudimo priemonė, todėl energetinis saugumas turi tapti strateginiu Europos prioritetu.

Lietuva, kaip ir kitos Baltijos valstybės, savo patirtimi įrodė, kad energetinė nepriklausomybė yra pasiekiama. Diversifikuoti energijos šaltiniai, investicijos į atsinaujinančią energetiką bei infrastruktūros stiprinimas leidžia ne tik užtikrinti tiekimo saugumą, bet ir didinti atsparumą išorės grėsmėms.

Tačiau kartu turime spręsti ir kitą esminį iššūkį – energijos prieinamumą. Aukštos kainos daro tiesioginį poveikį mūsų pramonės konkurencingumui ir piliečių gerovei. Todėl Europos Sąjunga privalo siekti rinkos stabilumo, skatinti ilgalaikes investicijas ir užtikrinti, kad energijos transformacija būtų socialiai teisinga.

Turime veikti vieningai: stiprinti bendrąją energetikos rinką, plėsti tarpvalstybinius tinklus ir mažinti priklausomybę nuo importuojamų iškastinių išteklių. Tik taip galėsime sukurti tvarią, saugią ir įperkamą energetikos sistemą visiems Europos piliečiams.

Erik Kaliňák (NI), písomne – Hovoríme o energetickej bezpečnosti v geopolitickom chaose. Pozrime sa na realitu optikou Slovenska.

Máme jeden z najčistejších energetických mixov v EÚ – viac ako 85% elektriny vyrábame vďaka jadru. Vyrábame viac, ako spotrebujeme. A napriek tomu platíme za elektrinu výrazne viac, pretože Brusel tlačí GreenDeal, ETS a pravidlá, ktoré zdvíhajú ceny.

Brusel zakázal ruskú ropu po mori. Cez Družbu sme ju ešte mohli dovážať vďaka výnimke. Dnes je dovoz prerušený. Komisia odkladá úplný zákaz, ale cieľ je jasný: koniec v roku 2027. Pri plyne je situácia ešte horšia.

Výsledok? Prechádzame na nespoľahlivé alternatívy. Ceny plynu pre slovenské domácnosti pôjdu hore. Elektrina pre priemysel aj pre ľudí bude ďalej rásť. Toto nie je energetická bezpečnosť. Toto je zdražovanie s cieľom dostať Rusko na kolená, ktoré ničí konkurencieschopnosť slovenského priemyslu a útočí na peňaženky obyčajných ľudí.

REPowerEU mal priniesť nezávislosť. Realita? EÚ je stále závislá od dovozu fosílnych palív, len za ne platíme viac Američanom a Kataru. Keď príde ďalší šok – v Hormuze alebo inde – ceny vyletia a Brusel nám ponúka nanajvýš ďalšie „nástroje“ na papieri.

Kroky Bruselu neprinášajú stabilitu ani lacnú energiu. Naopak, zvyšujú zraniteľnosť ekonomiky, oslabujú priemysel a prinášajú vyššie účty.

Potrebujeme pragmatizmus. Lacná a spoľahlivá energia musí byť absolútnou prioritou.

Katri Kulmuni (Renew), kirjallinen – Euroopan energiapolitiikka ja sitä myöten koko taloudellinen toiminta on kokonaisuudessaan perustunut liikaa fossiilisiin polttoaineisiin. Kaasuputkien sulkeutuminen Ukrainan sodan myötä ja myös viime päivien tapahtumat Hormuzinsalmella ovat osoittaneet, kuinka riippuvaisia edelleen olemme fossiilisista polttoaineista. Otetaanko tämä nyt vakavasti?

Suomi ja Pohjoismaat ovat toimineet tässä edelläkävijöinä. Täällä Belgiassa, missä omakin asuntoni lämpiää maakaasulla, ajattelen kotimaassani tehtyjä kaukonäköisiä päätöksiä, joilla jo vuosikymmenten ajan on otettu määrätietoisia askeleita pois fossiilisten polttoaineiden käytöstä. Tietysti tekemistä on vielä meilläkin. Kotimaisuus ja omavaraisuus olkoon meidän päämäärämme myös energiapolitiikassa - niin jokaisessa jäsenmaassa kuin unionin tasolla.

13. Conclusions of the European Council meeting of 19 March 2026 (debate)

President. – The next item is the debate on Council and Commission statements on conclusions of the European Council meeting of 19 March 2026 (2026/2623(RSP)).

I will start by giving immediately the floor to the President of the European Council, António Costa. Thank you for being here.

António Costa, President of the European Council. – Madam President, dear Commissioner Dombrovskis, honourable Members, a lot has happened since our last plenary discussion two months ago. The world around us has become even more geopolitically unstable.

We are now faced with the direct and indirect consequences of developments in Iran and the Middle East. Meanwhile, none of the other challenges around us have gone away, especially as Russia's war of aggression in Ukraine continues into its fifth year.

However, in the midst of this geopolitical context, Europe is continuing to pursue an ambitious economic agenda. And in fact, that agenda is becoming more urgent by the day.

I come to you just a few days after a European Council that took decisive action on Europe's competitiveness. In doing so, European leaders delivered on the spirit of Alden Biesen – a meeting that had provided a new momentum for the European Union's economic strategy. European leaders delivered through clear, concrete targets and with ambitious and measurable timelines.

I am talking about the One Europe, One Market agenda the European Council launched last week. This is an ambitious action plan to be implemented until the end of 2027, but mostly during this year of 2026. Let me outline some of the priorities we agreed on.

We will focus on the completion of the single market, in particular by tackling the already identified 'terrible 10' barriers by 27 March. Furthermore, leaders want to see swift progress to improve the mutual recognition of professional qualifications to ensure the mobility of workers in Europe.

By the end of 2026, the leaders expect the endorsement of the Commission's newly presented proposal to create a single voluntary 28th regime for all companies wishing to adopt it, to help them to operate seamlessly and with a single set of rules within the European Union.

Concrete decisions are also needed by the end of the year on the savings and investments union, in order to mobilise savings, increase private investment and create a truly integrated European capital market.

We also need to urgently continue with our ambitious simplification agenda, to reduce existing red tape, but also ensuring that new initiatives are in line with the 'simplicity by design' principle. Simpler rules and less gold-plating by Member States: that is also why European leaders have called for regulations to be favoured over directives.

Beyond the single market and simplification, the European Council underlined that we need to take determined action to increase our strategic autonomy and reduce dependencies. In strategic sectors and technologies, a targeted and proportionate European preference is needed, and in this regard, the Industrial Accelerator Act should be agreed by the end of the year.

Last but not least, it is clear that high energy prices are one of the biggest challenges for the competitiveness of the European Union. The current crisis in the Middle East and its impact on global energy supply confirm that the path we have chosen is the right one: decarbonisation and the acceleration of homegrown energy sources, in a technologically neutral way, remain the right way forward to limit dangerous dependencies and lower energy prices in the long term.

There was no ambiguity on this in last week's European Council. However, it was clear that at the same time we need to take immediate action to protect our citizens and businesses. In this regard, the Commission will present a set of temporary and targeted measures, taking into account the specific situations of Member States, and the particular vulnerability of certain energy-intensive industrial sectors, in order to counter the risk of relocation and to protect jobs.

Honourable Members, in short, the One Market, One Europe agenda is ambitious, it is concrete and it is urgent; and it represents a real policy acceleration towards a more competitive Europe.

But, let me be clear: this change of pace and ambition will not bear fruit without you. The Parliament, together with the Council, will be the institution turning this agenda into tangible changes and benefits for European citizens and businesses. The Parliament will have its full say in shaping these decisions.

We are working together towards a common objective: a more competitive and more innovative Europe. But this agenda is much more than that. It provides the solid foundation we need to protect and develop our prosperity and our social model. It means quality jobs. It means affordability. And it means leaving no one behind as Europe deals with harsh global competition.

At the same time, this economic strength is also a strategic imperative. It will allow us to eliminate harmful dependencies, to ensure our sovereignty even when it comes at a cost, to increase and sustain our growing investment in defence, and to support Ukraine as long as it takes. We need to act together to ensure that we have the economic muscle to do all this.

The current geopolitical context is acting as a catalyst for our competitiveness agenda. But it is also putting our values to the test. And we must continue to defend the rules-based international order and uphold the principles enshrined in the United Nations Charter and our Treaties. Violations of international law must not be accepted anywhere. The European Union must continue to stand firm on this.

In the meeting with the United Nations Secretary General, António Guterres, during the European Council, it was once again clear that the European Union is – and will continue to be – a staunch defender of multilateralism. In fact, the European Union must become one of the main driving forces of a network of multipolarity, in support of multilateralism, international law and the United Nations. That is the European Union's international vocation. And that is in the European Union's interest.

Honourable Members, the European Union will continue to be a force for stability, standing up for the international rules-based order. And we will take firm action to ensure our capacity to act in an unstable world. The implementation of the One Europe, One Market agenda is key in this regard, and I look forward to continuing to work closely with this Chamber to achieve this.

Valdis Dombrovskis, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, President Costa, honourable Members, President von der Leyen is in Australia for the signature of the EU-Australia Security and Defence Partnership and Trade Agreement, so I will represent the European Commission in today's debate.

Let me begin with Ukraine.

The EU remains Ukraine's biggest donor. Our total support reached EUR 194.9 billion this month. Last week, 25 heads of state and government reaffirmed their continued and unwavering support to Ukraine. In December last year, the European Council took the decision to provide Ukraine with a EUR 90 billion support loan for 2026 and 2027. The Commission appreciates the high level of urgency that this House has given to this file. This has allowed swift adoption of two of the three necessary legislative proposals underpinning the Ukraine support loan.

We regret that the European Council could not reach the decision on the Ukraine support loan. When the European Council made the decision to support loan in December, there was one condition – that three countries would not participate in the loan, and this condition has been fulfilled. As President von der Leyen underlined after the European Council and I quote, 'the loan remains blocked because one leader is not honouring his word'. But we will not be deterred. President von der Leyen has been very clear: we will deliver one way or another.

At the same time, the Commission is progressing on the technical work for the implementation of the loan. We will be prepared to move swiftly to provide the support once there is agreement in the Council. We have already received the financial strategy from Ukraine and are working on conditions for this funding, including on the memorandum of understanding linked with the macro-financial assistance programme. These conditions include structural reforms to strengthen the resilience of Ukrainian economy, anti-corruption reforms and further measures to speed up the accession process and facilitate Ukraine's integration in a single market.

Ukraine's future is in the EU, and our overall strategy on Ukraine remains the same: to provide maximum support to Ukraine and exert maximum pressure on aggressor Russia. The European Union is determined to continue weakening Russia's war economy, and this goal is even more important now, as we can see that Russia is benefiting from the war in Iran and the corresponding increase in the oil and gas prices.

The European Commission has prepared the 20th sanctions package, and it is important to move forward with it. It focuses on further reducing Russia's energy revenues, targeting Russia's banking system and limiting operations of its shadow fleet. We are also intensifying our engagement with international partners concerning their financial support for Ukraine.

The European Council also discussed the latest developments in the Middle East, including Iran, Gaza and Lebanon. The situation in the region is extremely serious. Developments in Iran and the wider region threaten regional and global security. I will condemn Iran's indiscriminate military strikes against countries in the region. We need de-escalation and maximum restraint, the protection of civilians and civilian infrastructure. The European Commission stands with its partners and friends in the region in a spirit of solidarity and friendship.

Cyprus has been directly impacted by this war more than any other Member State. The security of Cyprus, as of any Member State, is the security of the European Union. We stand firmly in support of Cyprus, and we therefore welcome the deployment by Member States of military assets in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The European Council also expressed its deep concern about the increase in hostilities in Lebanon and its severe impact on civilians, including large-scale displacement, suffering and loss of life. We will continue to stand by Lebanon, its authorities and people.

The European Council also discussed the deteriorating situation in Gaza. Calling on Israel to allow immediate, unimpeded access and sustained distribution of humanitarian assistance at scale into and throughout Gaza. Earlier this month, the Commission announced EUR 458 million in humanitarian aid for Palestine, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt in 2026.

The war's most immediate impact on Europe is through energy. The Council called on the Commission to present a toolbox for targeted, temporary measures to address recent spikes in the prices of imported fossil fuels arising from the crisis in the Middle East.

The Commission will act across all four components that determine electricity prices.

First, on energy costs themselves, Member States can already make use of State aid measures to compensate for the cost increases of energy, and the Commission will further flexibilise the use of State aid for this purpose.

Second, on grid charges, the Commission will prepare a legal proposal to improve the productivity of grid infrastructure and allow Member States to reduce grid charges for energy-intensive industries.

Third, on taxes and levies, the Commission will propose to mandate lower tax rates on electricity and to make sure that electricity is taxed less than fossil fuels.

Fourth, on carbon pricing, the emissions trading system is working and delivering on its promise to massively reduce gas consumption, but we need to modernise it and make it more agile. We are preparing measures, including updating the benchmarks for free allocations and taking into account concerns of industry, increasing the firepower of market stability reserve to reduce price volatility, and this will be followed by the broader review of the ETS system.

The Commission will continue to report to the Council on the potential impact of recent developments for the EU in terms of energy security and energy prices, supply chains and migration and will propose appropriate measures. Energy is just one element of Europe's overall competitive position.

Leaders also discussed how to further deepen the single market. To this end, the Commission will soon present its one Europe, one market roadmap. The roadmap will set out key legislative measures, with a very clear timeline, targets, milestones for delivery by the end of 2027.

Last week, the Commission presented the proposal for the EU-INC. This is a foundation and starting point for the EU's 28th regime. This makes it easier, faster and cheaper for our companies to start, scale and do business across the EU. Here we count on co-legislators to swiftly proceed with the adaptation of this file.

Our simplification agenda continues apace. The European Council called on the Commission, the co-legislators and the Member States to continue to ambitiously simplify rules and reduce administrative burdens at the EU, national and regional level. We have set an ambitious target of 25 % cut in administrative burdens for all businesses and 35 % for SMEs.

Last year, the Commission tabled 10 omnibus proposals. These proposed measures have potential for EUR 15 billion reduction of recurring administrative costs and EUR 6 billion in one-off savings. These are real savings that contribute to boosting the competitiveness of EU companies. The European Council called on the co-legislators to agree all pending omnibus proposals before the end of 2026.

This year, more than half of the legislative initiatives in the Commission's work programme have a strong simplification focus. This means that they must deliver net administrative savings. In addition to further omnibus proposals, the Commission will introduce 'simplicity by design' approach to future rules so that we improve the governance and development of legal texts.

Finally, in the broader context of a further deteriorating geopolitical environment and Russia's war of aggression against Ukraine remaining an existential challenge for the European Union, the European Council also reaffirmed its determination to decisively ramp up Europe's defence readiness by 2030.

The leaders also took stock of the progress on migration and held a lunch with UN Secretary-General Guterres.

And finally, leaders decided that the discussions on the next multiannual financial framework would be postponed to the informal meeting of heads of state and government on 23 and 24 April in Cyprus.

To conclude, honourable Members, we must continue to act with determination and focus to address the challenges we face. This is the only way that we can ensure that Europe remains resilient, prosperous and sovereign in a rapidly changing world.

Dolors Montserrat, en nombre del Grupo PPE. – Señora presidenta, señor presidente, señor comisario, el Consejo Europeo ha sido claro: en la Unión Europea no hay ningún Gobierno que defienda la guerra, pero solo hay uno, el de Sánchez, que lo utiliza como altavoz de propaganda electoral.

Nuestra prioridad ha sido y será siempre la estabilidad, la seguridad y la paz. Europa tiene claro quiénes son nuestros socios y quiénes son una amenaza. El régimen de Teherán es una dictadura que viola los derechos humanos, reprime a su pueblo, asesina a mujeres y desestabiliza Oriente Medio. El régimen iraní y todos sus grupos terroristas son los responsables de la fractura de Oriente Medio.

Frente a eso, Europa no puede limitarse a reaccionar: debe fortalecerse. Y por ello aplaudimos que, en el Consejo, se dijera que necesitamos más competitividad, porque eso empieza aquí, en Europa, eliminando barreras, simplificando normativas, armonizando legislaciones en un verdadero mercado único.

Muchas de las barreras que frenan Europa no vienen de fuera, están dentro, en forma de veintisiete legislaciones distintas y un proteccionismo nacional que pone trabas al crecimiento de Europa. Por eso también apoyamos firmemente el 28.º régimen, porque necesitamos menos burocracia para más competitividad: debemos convertir a Europa en el mejor lugar del mundo para emprender, invertir y crear.

La historia lo demuestra una y otra vez: Europa crece ante las crisis, y esta vez también lo hará. Reforzaremos nuestra autonomía estratégica, reduciremos dependencias externas y garantizaremos energía barata con un mercado único que nos permita competir con gigantes.

El Partido Popular Europeo liderará este avance una vez más, como ya hemos hecho en el pasado. Europa no puede permitirse otra década de indecisión. La elección es clara: ¿fragmentación o integración? ¿Retraso o ejecución? ¿Veintisiete sistemas independientes o un verdadero mercado único?

Este es el momento de Europa, una Europa que escribe su destino, que no espera a que otros la protejan, que no mendiga su lugar en el mundo. Una Europa que ya no obedece, sino que decide por sí misma.

Iratxe García Pérez, *en nombre del Grupo S&D. – Señora presidenta, señor presidente, señor comisario, ¿cuánta destrucción más hace falta para que se admita la realidad? ¿Cuántas pruebas más se necesitan para condenar una guerra ilegal que nunca debió empezar?

Señora Montserrat, todo el empeño y el esfuerzo que hacen por decir que el señor Sánchez está solo se convierte en una confrontación con la realidad. Y es que los que están cada vez más aislados son ustedes, cuando el presidente Sánchez se ha convertido en la persona que lidera la respuesta clara de la ciudadanía europea en la defensa del multilateralismo y en la defensa del derecho internacional.

Porque, un mes después de que Trump prometiera una guerra rápida, una guerra de cuatro semanas, ¿dónde está la libertad del pueblo iraní que tanto se aplaudió? ¿Cuál es el resultado? No ha caído la dictadura de los ayatolás, pero sí han caído más de 4 000 iraníes, más de mil civiles en Líbano, hay 800 000 desplazados, Gaza sigue siendo arrasada en silencio, Irán ataca a los países del Golfo, el estrecho de Ormuz está cerrado y el mundo entero se asoma a una crisis energética sin precedentes.

Ese es el resultado. Y yo pregunto a quienes hasta ahora han estado callados: ¿van a condenar de una vez la violación del derecho internacional por parte de Trump y Netanyahu, sí o no? Porque el silencio es complicidad.

Y no nos engañemos, esta guerra no solo destruye vidas allí, también golpea con fuerza a nuestros ciudadanos aquí. El petróleo ha alcanzado ya los 120 dólares por barril; el gas, los 60 dólares por megavatio. Y con el encarecimiento de la energía llegan la inflación, el desplome del consumo, el cierre de empresas y la desigualdad.

En medio de esta tragedia escuchamos a Trump decir que, si sube el petróleo, mejor para los Estados Unidos. ¿Mejor para quién? ¿Para las familias que no pueden llenar el depósito? ¿Para los trabajadores que ven cómo sube la cesta de la compra? No, mejor para las grandes petroleras. Porque esta es la verdad incómoda: estamos ante una guerra que beneficia a unos pocos y empobrece a la mayoría.

Por eso decimos basta: basta de hipocresía, basta de mirar a otro lado. Porque hay que proteger a nuestras familias y a nuestras pymes antes de que sea demasiado tarde.

Y hay que decirlo alto y claro: desmantelar el Pacto Verde, como quieren el Partido Popular y la extrema derecha, no es una solución, es el problema. Es condenarnos a seguir dependiendo de combustibles fósiles que financian guerras. La única salida es acelerar la transición verde, las renovables, la autonomía energética y la energía limpia. No aceptaremos que utilicen esta crisis como excusa para debilitar el sistema del comercio de emisiones. No lo desmantelen. No trasladen el coste de la contaminación a los ciudadanos.

Y, mientras hablamos de responsabilidades, no podemos ignorar a quienes bloquean la solidaridad europea: el veto de Orbán al préstamo de 90 000 millones a Ucrania es una verdadera vergüenza.

Señorías, Europa no puede ser rehén ni de autócratas externos ni de cómplices internos. Esta Unión no nació para inclinarse ante los poderosos. Si renunciamos a defender nuestros principios cuanto más se ponen a prueba, dejamos de ser lo que decimos ser.

Porque la paz no es debilidad. La paz es el mayor acto de coraje político. Y Europa debe estar a la altura de ese coraje.

Kinga Gál, *a PfE képviselőcsoport nevében. – Elnök Asszony! Mi, Patrióták azt várjuk el a Bizottságtól és a Tanácstól, hogy döntéseikkel garantálják az európai polgárok biztonságát. Megvédjék őket a terrorista, antiszemita cselekményekkel szemben, egy lehetséges újabb migrációs hullámmal szemben, és garantálják Európa energiabiztonságát. Mindez továbbra is hiányzik. A közel-keleti konfliktus okozta energiaválságot csak súlyosbítja a Barátság kőolajvezeték szándékos elzárása az ukránok részéről, súlyosan veszélyeztetve Magyarország és Szlovákia energiaellátását.

Ezért hiányoljuk, hogy elmaradt az európai kiállás e két tagállam mellett, egy ilyen kiélezett helyzetben. Hiányoljuk, hogy elmaradt az egyértelmű elítélése azoknak a halálos fenyegetéseknek, amik a magyar miniszterelnököt és családját érik ukrán részről. Ahogy hiányoljuk, hogy elmaradt egy látványos elítélése annak, hogy lehallgatják Magyarország külügyminiszterét. Micsoda felháborodás lenne Önök részéről, ha ez bármelyik másik tagállammal történne meg! Nyíltan elhangzik, kormányváltást akarnak Magyarországon, leváltani a nemzeti érdekekért kiálló miniszterelnököt, ezért azt hiszik, minden megengedett, legyen az pénzek visszatartása, zsarolás, olajblokád, fenyegetések és lehallgatás.

Tizennyolc nappal a választások előtt, ma arról döntött a Bizottság, hogy egyelőre egyedül Magyarország, egy háborúban álló ország szomszédja marad ki az európai védelmének megerősítésére szánt pénzekből. Mi ez, ha nem nyílt beavatkozás a magyar választásokba? Ennél jobban ártani az európai együttműködésnek nem is lehetne. Teljesen hiteltelenné válik az Európai Bizottság. Mi, Patrióták pedig még tovább fogunk erősödni április 12-én Magyarországon.

Patryk Jaki, *w imieniu grupy ECR. – Pani Przewodnicząca! Panie Komisarzu! Panie Przewodniczący! Na zakończonej Radzie straciliście najlepszą okazję, aby zniszczyć tego raka, który nazywa się ETS. I teraz uważnie posłuchajcie, co ten ideologiczny podatek spowodował w Europie. Kiedy ETS wprowadzano, koszty uprawnień wynosiły 15 euro za tonę. Dziś wynoszą 67 euro za tonę, czyli ponad 250 proc. więcej.

Miało to doprowadzić do transformacji energetycznej i niższych cen za energię. I pytam Was, no i co? Kiedy ETS wprowadzano, średnia cena hurtowa za energię elektryczną w Europie wynosiła 30–40 euro za megawatogodzinę. Dziś wynosi 85 euro, czyli ponad 100% więcej. Kiedy ETS wprowadzano, średnia cena energii dla rodziny wynosiła około 12 eurocentów za kilowatogodzinę. Dziś wynosi 29 eurocentów za kilowatogodzinę, czyli ponad 100 proc. więcej. Więc pytam: ETS dał tańszą energię, tak jak obiecywaliście, czy droższą?

Zanim wprowadzono ETS, Unia Europejska była potęgą gospodarczą ze średnim dochodem na mieszkańca oraz wzrostem gospodarczym takim jak w Ameryce. Dziś dochody na osobę w Stanach Zjednoczonych, które odrzuciły tę szaloną zieloną politykę, są dwa razy wyższe niż w Europie i wzrost gospodarczy również dwa razy wyższy.

Więc tak: ETS miał spowodować, że będziemy bogatsi, jesteśmy biedniejsi. Miał spowodować, że będziemy mieć tańszą energię. Mamy prawie najdroższą energię na świecie. Miał sprawić, że będziemy konkurencyjni. Straciliśmy konkurencyjność i właśnie wygaszamy przemysł. Ale wreszcie ETS miał spowodować, że emisja dwutlenku węgla na świecie poprzez przykład, jaki daje Unia Europejska – i wszyscy z nas mieli dawać przykład – sprawi, że emisja będzie niższa na świecie. Tymczasem zwiększył emisję, bo inni nie poszli za naszym przykładem, tylko przejmują nasze branże i w tych branżach emitują jeszcze więcej dwutlenku węgla. Więc gratuluję całego tego procesu myślowego.

Nazwijmy rzeczy po imieniu. ETS, jak i ta cała Wasza zielona polityka jest po prostu trupem, a Wy wypieracie ten fakt i próbujecie na trupa założyć spódniczkę, szpilki, wymalować i posłać na bal. Tylko to jest bal zombie, a Europa zasługuje na nowe życie. Europa zasługuje na wolny rynek energii. Europa zasługuje na wolny rynek bez ideologicznych podatków, który znów może stać się najbardziej konkurencyjnym na świecie.

Valérie Hayer, *au nom du groupe Renew. – Madame la Présidente, Monsieur le Commissaire, Monsieur le Président, vous avez rappelé les avancées majeures sur la feuille de route «compétitivité». Je veux vous dire, et même vous redire, le soutien plein et entier du groupe Renew sur cette question.

Mais ce soir, je voudrais me concentrer sur le fait marquant de ce Conseil. Ce Conseil européen aurait dû être celui de la clarté, de la fermeté et de l'unité. Face à nos défis géopolitiques, face à la guerre en Ukraine, face aux pressions extérieures, l'Europe devait parler d'une seule voix. Mais une fois encore, ce n'est pas ce que nous avons vu. Parce qu'au sein même de notre Union, un État membre choisit délibérément de bloquer notre réponse collective, de marchander son ralliement à notre aide à l'Ukraine.

Et chers collègues, la Hongrie de Viktor Orbán – puisque c'est d'elle dont on parle – ne se contente pas de défendre une ligne politique différente; elle organise un véritable sabotage de l'unité européenne. Et disons-le clairement: à qui profite ce sabotage? Ce sabotage, il profite à Vladimir Poutine et uniquement à Vladimir Poutine. Et ça, on le soupçonnait. Désormais, on en a la preuve, avec le ministre des affaires étrangères hongrois.

Alors, Monsieur le Président, ce qu'il faut dire aujourd'hui, c'est qu'on ne parle pas ici d'un désaccord. Non. On parle ici d'un problème politique majeur pour notre Union. La question, elle est claire: comment être crédible dans le monde si, à l'intérieur même de nos institutions, certains jouent contre leur camp? Et comment on pèse dans ce nouvel ordre mondial si chaque décision peut être prise en otage par un seul gouvernement?

Alors, les élections du 12 avril prochain en Hongrie vont peut-être tourner la page de Viktor Orbán, mais elles ne régleront pas le problème que nous pose l'unanimité. Parce que cette règle, elle nous paralyse, elle nous affaiblit, mais pire encore, elle expose l'Europe à toutes les influences extérieures.

Chers collègues, il faut avoir la lucidité de le dire: aujourd'hui, nos institutions sont vulnérables. Elles sont testées, contournées et parfois noyautées par des puissances étrangères qui veulent détruire l'Europe de l'intérieur.

Alors, il est temps de sonner l'alarme. Il est temps de pointer du doigt ceux qui se disent, ici, patriotes ou souverainistes, mais qui roulent en vérité pour Trump, pour Poutine ou encore pour Xi Jinping. Et on les connaît. La presse le révèle chaque jour: c'est l'AFD, le Rassemblement national, le Fidesz, Vox, Chega ou encore le PVV. Ils siègent à l'ESN, à l'ECR et chez les soi-disant Patriotes.

Mais quand on vote contre le soutien à l'Ukraine, quand on vote contre les sanctions pour la Russie, c'est cela être patriote? Quand on soutient la politique MAGA de Donald Trump, quand on soutient les géants du web américain contre le DSA, c'est cela être patriote? La vérité, c'est que ces partis ne défendent pas leur pays, ils ne défendent pas leur peuple; ils défendent des intérêts étrangers en affaiblissant l'Europe. Et je le rappelle au passage, de tels agissements dans nos États membres seraient passibles de condamnation pour haute trahison, d'intelligence avec l'ennemi ou d'atteinte aux intérêts fondamentaux de la nation.

Alors, chers collègues, je le dis avec gravité: nous devons cesser la naïveté. Nous devons cesser de considérer banals de tels scandales d'espionnage. Ces révélations révoltantes, on les doit à une presse libre et on comprend pourquoi ces partis veulent museler les journalistes chez eux. Alors, pour la crédibilité de notre projet européen, ces agissements doivent être sanctionnés.

Terry Reintke, *on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group. – Madam President, colleagues, Orbán is blocking urgently needed European support for Ukraine. Trust me, millions of Europeans are asking themselves how much longer the European Union, and especially the Member States, will just let this happen.

Honestly, maybe some on the right of EPP think that what Orbán is blocking is a left and green agenda, but this is nonsense. It is your agenda, it is EPP's agenda, your political demands, your credibility that Orbán attacks every single day – and quite successfully, I must say, as you stand there and let it happen.

More than that, you cooperate with these people. The people on the far right are not your potential allies. They are your political enemies. They despise what you have built in the European Union. They want to destroy your political movements, your political legacy. Yet still, you work with them.

After this European Council, everyone must ask themselves, when will you finally make a cut in working with these people, instead of moving ever closer to all of those who not only betray Ukraine, but Europe and everybody who believes in democracy and freedom?

Özlem Demirel, *im Namen der Fraktion The Left. – Frau Präsidentin! Als die USA und Großbritannien den Irak bombardierten, wurde dies mit angeblichen Giftgaswaffen begründet. Als die USA und alle europäischen NATO-Staaten Afghanistan bombardierten, geschah dies angeblich im Namen von Demokratie und Frauenrechten. Und die aktuellen Bombardierungen des Iran werden begründet damit, das Land habe Atombomben. Nachweislich sind das alles Kriegslügen. Iran hat keine, Israel hat welche. Den USA geht es auch nicht wirklich um Demokratie oder Menschenrechte, ihnen geht es um die Neuordnung des Nahen Ostens. Israel eskaliert gezielt und weitet den Krieg auf den Libanon aus. Die USA wollen ihre globale Dominanz hier verteidigen. Dafür zahlt aber die Bevölkerung weltweit: steigende Preise, Tod, Leid, Zerstörung für die Menschen im Nahen Osten.

Und die EU? In ihren Schlussfolgerungen sagt sie kein Wort zu den USA, schweigt zu Israel, aber verurteilt lediglich den Iran. Das ist Ihre Doppelmoral, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen. Sie könnten handeln. Sie könnten die Militärbasen für diesen Krieg aus Europa schließen. Sie könnten endlich keine Waffen an Israel liefern. Sie könnten das Assoziierungsabkommen mit Israel kündigen. Das tun Sie nicht. Das ist Ihre Doppelmoral. Sie sind erneut Komplize bei diesem Krieg!

René Aust, *im Namen der ESN-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin! Benzin und Diesel über 2 Euro, hier und heute. Alle sagen: wegen des Irankriegs. Das stimmt teilweise. Aber es ist nur die halbe Wahrheit. Was ihnen niemand sagt: Brüssel hat bereits beschlossen – schwarz auf weiß –, dass der CO_2-Preis ab 2028 weiter steigen wird. Bürger und Unternehmen werden für Energie noch tiefer in die Tasche greifen müssen. Experten rechnen nochmal 40 Cent obendrauf auf den Liter – zusätzlich. 3 Euro pro Liter Sprit sind dann schon bald in Reichweite – 3 Euro der Liter Diesel und Benzin!

Und die fallen nicht vom Himmel. Das ist von den Mainstream-Parteien politisch gemacht und gewollt. Alle reden vom Iran, während von der Leyen, die Grünen, die SPD, die CDU still und leise die nächste Preisexplosion vorbereiten. Wir sagen: Nein, der Bürger hat genug gezahlt. Jegliche CO_2-Bepreisung muss abgeschafft werden, und zwar jetzt. Das müsste Thema beim Europäischen Rat sein. Nicht die Flucht in die Weltpolitik, sondern die Alltagssorgen der Bürger müssen endlich im Mittelpunkt stehen.

Paulo Cunha (PPE). – Senhora Presidente, o aumento significativo dos preços dos combustíveis fósseis está a ter um impacto sistémico imediato e notório, contaminando as cadeias de produção com o efeito final de encarecer os preços de bens e serviços. O impacto de choques conjunturais como este alastra-se a grande velocidade, e o que é sistémico dificilmente pode ser resolvido ou mitigado por abordagens nacionais. É justamente por isso que a Europa deve agir de forma coordenada, consequente, solidária e, sobretudo, célere.

Este choque energético que vivemos deriva também de um caminho que se encontra incompleto, o da descarbonização da economia, da redução da dependência de combustíveis fósseis, com o desígnio de alcançar as tão desejadas autonomia, soberania e segurança energéticas. Momentos como o atual devem ser tidos como os motores para que a vontade europeia seja reforçada, indefetível na conclusão deste esforço de transformação energética.

No seguimento da invasão da Ucrânia, a União Europeia trilhou um caminho ambicioso de redução progressiva da dependência energética face à Rússia. Desta feita, a guerra no Médio Oriente deve ser também tida como um fator de renovação dessa ambição de soberania energética e autonomia estratégica.

Portugal, em particular, tem feito um caminho notável no desenvolvimento de infraestruturas de produção de eletricidade a partir de fontes renováveis, que correspondem a cerca de 80 % do total de energia elétrica produzida em Portugal em 2025. Urge, por isso, desbloquear entraves à criação de conexões elétricas em toda a Europa, reforçando assim a sua soberania energética.

Christel Schaldemose (S&D). – Madam President, well, I have decided not to read out my speech. I want to speak more freely because I really think that what Council President Costa said was so important.

We are living in challenging times. Europe is threatened. We have war around us. The war in Ukraine is threatening us as well, but I do believe that there is hope.

Yesterday, we had an election in Denmark. 12 parties were elected to the parliament. It is a very fragmented political landscape. I am happy to say that my Prime Minister was doing well – my party is the biggest – but we are divided on a lot of questions. Yet, we have decided that we want to sit down and find political solutions together because we need to work together.

We need to solve the problems that people have and we need to have peace, but the only way to deliver on that is to find ways to work together. Therefore, I have to say that Hungary needs to come into the fight. We need to have them on board. They have to realise that we need to help Ukraine, for instance, but we need to work together, otherwise we will not solve the problems.

I think that I am happy to say that Denmark can maybe be the role model for how we do it in Europe.

Gilles Pennelle (PfE). – Madame la Présidente, dans les conclusions du Conseil européen du 19 mars, il est indiqué qu'il faut, je cite, «réduire nos dépendances». De qui se moque-t-on?

Après le funeste traité du Mercosur imposé par un coup de force dès le 1er mai par la Commission européenne, voilà la signature, le 24 mars, dans la foulée, du traité de libre échange avec l'Australie. Comme dans le traité avec l'Amérique du Sud, c'est notre agriculture qui va payer une sévère note. 30 000 tonnes de viande bovine, 25 000 tonnes de viande ovine, 35 000 tonnes de sucre, de la poudre de lait, du beurre vont être importés.

Méthodiquement, l'Union européenne organise la mort de notre agriculture. Le cumul de ces traités de libre échange, des contraintes imposées à nos agriculteurs et l'annonce d'un effondrement du budget futur de la PAC le confirment.

Il y a quelques jours, la Commission européenne a reconnu que réduire la part du nucléaire était, je cite, ouvrez les guillemets, «une erreur stratégique». Il faudra encore combien de temps, combien d'années pour que l'Union européenne reconnaisse l'erreur majeure de nous faire perdre notre souveraineté alimentaire et donc d'aggraver notre dépendance?

Méfiez-vous, la colère gronde dans les campagnes contre vos politiques mortifères. Nous vous aurons prévenus.

Carlo Fidanza (ECR). – Signora Presidente, signor Commissario, presidente Costa, onorevoli colleghi, l'Europa è sotto pressione su più fronti e non può più permettersi risposte lente né tantomeno ideologiche.

La crisi in Medio Oriente ci impone realismo e rapidità di azione perché incide direttamente sul costo dell'energia, l'approvvigionamento di materie prime critiche, i traffici commerciali e, se dovesse perdurare, anche sulla sicurezza interna europea con possibili nuovi flussi migratori. Un rischio che dobbiamo prevenire se non vogliamo farci male, come fu con la folle gestione dei flussi dalla Siria nel 2015.

E mentre si attende l'apertura concreta di uno spiraglio negoziale che possa portare alla fine del conflitto e alla rinuncia definitiva dell'Iran ai suoi piani nucleari, l'Unione europea dovrebbe fare la propria parte con più coraggio nel sostenere la sicurezza energetica dei suoi Stati membri e la competitività delle proprie imprese.

Per questo è stata importante l'iniziativa del governo italiano, che ha visto l'adesione di dieci governi per richiedere una profonda revisione del sistema ETS, che impatta sulla formazione del prezzo dell'energia elettrica e si ripercuote in modo differente tra paese e paese; per alcuni è diventato insostenibile. A maggior ragione nella sua combinazione con il CBAM, l'ETS finisce per essere una tassa ambientale che mina la competitività e favorisce la delocalizzazione delle nostre industrie.

È stato quindi significativo avere ottenuto per la prima volta l'apertura a interventi nazionali per sterilizzare l'impatto dell'ETS sulle bollette e finalmente il venir meno di un totem, un pilastro di quel Green Deal ideologico che ha distrutto la competitività europea.

Noi riteniamo che si debba fare però ancora di più e che, in questa fase di crisi, l'ETS debba essere sospeso.

Poi, nella proposta di revisione del prossimo luglio, la Commissione sarà chiamata a estendere le quote gratuite per le industrie energivore, essere coraggiosa nella difesa dell'industria di base e affrontare finalmente con determinazione il tema della speculazione finanziaria sulle quote di carbonio.

Il tempo per evitare la desertificazione industriale del nostro continente sta per scadere. Chi sceglierà ancora una volta la strada delle mediazioni al ribasso, della burocrazia o dell'ideologia ne sarà responsabile davanti ai cittadini.

Billy Kelleher (Renew). – Madam President, I welcome the conclusions of the Council regarding competitiveness and the single market – One Europe, One Market. I certainly welcome the commitments in the areas of the 28th regime and deepening the single market and removing obstacles to our competitiveness and innovation.

Reference was made to our dependency on energy and listening to the debate here, I think we live in parallel universes. The people who are complaining about our moves to reduce our dependency on fossil fuels are the same people that have been championing Orbán and Putin inside in this Chamber and, even more recently, President Trump.

The fact of the matter is that the increases in energy prices are primarily because of the war in Ukraine that Putin started five years ago and in the context of Netanyahu and President Trump invading Iran. They are simple, indisputable facts.

The idea that we would be more dependent on fossil fuels simply would mean that we would have craven people like Orbán, who would be kowtowing consistently to Putin, trying to ensure that he can receive cheap oil and gas from that dictatorship.

It is clearly important that we stand firm with the people of Ukraine, with the government of Ukraine in providing the EUR 90 billion loan for 2026 and 2027 and, more importantly, that we deal with people who are treacherous to the principles and the values of this particular Parliament, of the European Union in general, and the people of the European Union. It is shameful that people are justifying Orbán's most recent kowtowing to Putin. It is a sinful, shameful act of treason to European values.

Marie Toussaint (Verts/ALE). – Madame la Présidente, chers collègues, notre dépendance aux énergies fossiles détruit le climat, porte atteinte à notre souveraineté et coûte extrêmement cher aux citoyens européens. L'envolée des prix à la pompe le montre encore clairement aujourd'hui.

Avec le pacte vert, nous avions fait un pas vers la décarbonation: efficacité énergétique, réduction de la consommation de gaz et soutien aux renouvelables plutôt qu'aux lobbies des fossiles. Ce n'est pas le moment de reculer.

Or, la Commission européenne nous propose aujourd'hui de développer de nouvelles infrastructures fossiles pour près de 80 milliards d'euros, de financer Melita malgré le scandale entourant l'assassinat de Daphne Caruana Galizia, de financer EastMed qui puiserait dans les eaux disputées entre Israël et la Palestine. En tout, moins de la moitié des financements de la liste PCI sont prévus pour l'électrification, moins de la moitié incluant des projets dévastateurs pour la nature comme BarMar, Kaunertal ou Kemijärvi.

Nous, députés européens, pouvons relancer le pacte vert, nous pouvons refuser le gaspillage d'argent public. Réclamons des investissements 100 % verts, 100 % souverains et 100 % pouvoir d'achat.

Isabel Serra Sánchez (The Left). – Señora presidenta, señorías, Irán, bombardeado por petróleo; Venezuela, intervenido por petróleo; Cuba, asfixiada sin luz; el estrecho de Ormuz, arde... Las guerras ilegales de sus jefes de Estados Unidos e Israel nos están llevando a una crisis energética como la de los años 70.

El petróleo supera ya los 120 dólares, suben la gasolina, la luz, la comida... ¿Y quién paga? ¿Ustedes? No. ¿Los jefes de las grandes petroleras? No. Paga siempre la gente trabajadora, las familias trabajadoras y la gente humilde.

En España, llenar el depósito de gasolina supera los dos euros el litro mientras Josu Jon Imaz rinde pleitesía a Trump para hacer negocio en Venezuela, y ustedes, encima, les quieren bajar los impuestos.

Donde la mayoría sufre hay una minoría que se está enriqueciendo y que se está beneficiando. Ustedes son responsables del genocidio contra el pueblo palestino y en el Líbano, son responsables de la guerra y son responsables de esta crisis. Están entregando el futuro de nuestros pueblos por obedecer a la OTAN, a Netanyahu, a Trump.

Y lo diremos alto y claro las veces que haga falta: no a la guerra, no a la OTAN.

Λευτέρης Νικολάου-Αλαβάνος (NI). – Κυρία Πρόεδρε, στο Συμβούλιο η Ευρωπαϊκή Ένωση αναμάσησε τα ψεύτικα προσχήματα ΗΠΑ και Ισραήλ για τον βρώμικο πόλεμο στο Ιράν, ενώ άφησε ανοιχτό το ενδεχόμενο ακόμα μεγαλύτερης συνδρομής από αυτήν που δίνει ήδη, όπως με την επιχείρηση «Ασπίδες».

Στο επίκεντρο είναι μονοπωλιακά συμφέροντα για ενεργειακούς δρόμους, επενδύσεις στην «παλαιστινιακή ριβιέρα» με τον εκτοπισμό των Παλαιστινίων, ανοικοδόμηση της Ουκρανίας, ο ινδικός δρόμος, κόντρα στους ανταγωνιστές Κίνα, Ρωσία αλλά και Ηνωμένες Πολιτείες. Καταδικάζουμε την κυβέρνηση της Νέας Δημοκρατίας, τα άλλα κόμματα, που βαφτίζουν «εθνικό συμφέρον» την επικίνδυνη εμπλοκή της χώρας στον πόλεμο με Πάτριοτ στη Σαουδική Αραβία, φρεγάτες στην Ερυθρά, δεκάδες βάσεις-στόχους αντιποίνων. Να κλείσουν τώρα οι βάσεις και να επιστρέψουν οι ένοπλες δυνάμεις που είναι εκτός συνόρων.

Εκφράζουμε την αλληλεγγύη μας στους λαούς του Ιράν, της Παλαιστίνης, της Κούβας, του Λιβάνου που βρίσκονται στο στόχαστρο.

Ο ελληνικός λαός και οι λαοί της Ευρώπης που «ματώνουν» για την πολεμική οικονομία, να μην συρθούν στο πολεμικό σφαγείο, να μην πληρώσουν τις συνέπειες του πολέμου. Καμιά θυσία για τα κέρδη και τους πολέμους των ιμπεριαλιστών. Κλιμάκωση του εργατικού λαϊκού αγώνα, απεμπλοκή της Ελλάδας από τους ιμπεριαλιστικούς πολεμικούς σχεδιασμούς, από το ΝΑΤΟ και την Ευρωπαϊκή Ένωση, με τον λαό κυρίαρχο.

Michael Gahler (PPE). – Frau Präsidentin, Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Wie so häufig in jüngster Zeit wurde auch dieser Europäische Rat, der sich eigentlich primär mit der Steigerung der Wettbewerbsfähigkeit befassen sollte, von der Wirklichkeit eingeholt. Wenn ein amerikanischer Präsident so ist, wie er ist, wenn bei verschiedenen außenpolitischen Themen Ziele, Methoden, Argumente gewechselt werden wie das tägliche Hemd, dann darf das für uns kein Grund sein, überall hinterherzuhecheln oder zu versuchen, dort eine Logik oder gar Strategie zu entdecken, die in Wirklichkeit gar nicht existiert.

Der Krieg mit dem Iran ist in der Tat nicht unser Krieg. Weder nehmen wir teil noch wurden wir konsultiert, und wenn, dann hätten wir sicher abgeraten. Das ist nicht nur deswegen kein NATO-Fall, aber wir sehen nicht nur an unseren Tankstellen, dass die Konsequenzen dieses Krieges uns unmittelbar betreffen. Unsere Solidarität gilt dem iranischen Volk, das seit Jahrzehnten unter dem Mullah-Regime leidet, dem wir aber ehrlicherweise derzeit keine Hoffnung machen können, dass sich dieses Regime durch diesen Luftkrieg von außen beseitigen lassen wird. Ich denke auch an die Bürger in den Golfstaaten, die unverschuldet ins Visier des iranischen Regimes geraten sind, aber auch an die Menschen in Israel, die beschossen werden, auch wenn dieser Beschuss seitens des Irans nicht wirklich überraschend ist.

Danke, Kommissar, dass Sie die Situation in Gaza angesprochen haben. Der Vollständigkeit halber hätten Sie auch noch das unakzeptable Vorgehen radikaler Siedler in der Westbank ansprechen können. Das ist kein Beitrag zum Friedensprozess. Und ich danke Ihnen aber für die Klarheit, die erneute Klarheit in Sachen Ukraine. Die Fünf-Fraktionen-Ukraine-Koalition in diesem Haus steht felsenfest.

Estelle Ceulemans (S&D). – Madame la Présidente, vendredi, les 27 chefs d'État et de gouvernement se sont penchés sur les répercussions des attaques lancées par les États-Unis et Israël contre la République islamique d'Iran. Si le Conseil a appelé toutes les parties à une désescalade, juste constater que cette guerre n'est pas notre guerre n'est pas suffisant, car il faut condamner fermement, même si cette guerre vise une dictature sanguinaire.

Cette guerre a aussi des répercussions inconsidérées sur toute la région, le monde entier et sur l'Europe. Les risques sur la sécurité d'approvisionnement et les coûts énergétiques sont colossaux, alors qu'il s'agit d'une question cruciale pour assurer notre autonomie stratégique, pour sauvegarder notre autonomie, nos industries et nos emplois, et pour garantir une énergie abordable à tous et à toutes.

On ne peut accepter qu'aucune solution ne soit envisagée aujourd'hui au niveau européen. Il faut agir sans plus attendre, en prenant des mesures harmonisées. Et cette crise démontre aussi que la décarbonation est un enjeu crucial qu'il est urgent de renforcer, en l'accompagnant de mesures sociales pour soutenir, quand c'est nécessaire, les entreprises et les ménages dans cette transition.

Tamás Deutsch (PfE). – Elnök Asszony! Brüsszel és Kijev is durván beavatkozik a magyar választásokba. Ez törvénytelen, és ez az, ami szégyenteljes. Önök innen Brüsszelből a folyamatos politikai zsarolással és a Tisza Párt kampányát segítő hálózat finanszírozásával, Ukrajnából pedig Zelenszkij olajblokáddal, titkosszolgálati dezinformációs akciókkal és a magyar miniszterelnököt és családját érintő életveszélyes fenyegetésekkel. Önöknek és Zelenszkijnek is az a céljuk, hogy megbuktassák a nemzeti kormányt és egy, a brüsszeli hatalmi központ parancsait és Kijev elvárásait is szervilisen teljesítő, háborúpárti és ukránbarát, tiszás bábkormányt ültessenek a magyarok nyakába.

A napokban ráadásul lelepleződött egy döbbenetes politikai skandallum, egy tiszás ügynökbotrány is. Kiderült, hogy Magyar Péterék egy külföldi titkosszolgálatokhoz bekötött újságírókémmel dolgoznak együtt, aki aktívan közreműködött a magyar külügyminiszter külföldi titkosszolgálatok általi lehallgatásában. Ez az ember elmondta azt is, megállapodott a Tisza Párt külügyminiszter-jelöltjével, hogy egy esetleges kormányváltáskor minden külügyminisztériumi anyaghoz korlátlanul hozzáférhet majd, és teljes beleszólást kap a személyi döntésekbe. Illő tisztelettel mondom Önöknek, minden külső támadással szemben továbbra is megvédjük Magyarországot, és minden, amit most csinálnak, az a választások után nem maradhat következmények nélkül.

Lukas Sieper (Renew), Frage nach dem Verfahren der „blauen Karte“. – Herr Kollege, wir haben ja heute schon über die Ideen und mentalen Wirren des US-Präsidenten Donald Trump gehört. Ich habe da in Ihrer Rede einiges wiedererkannt von dem, was er so normalerweise erzählt. Und deswegen wollte ich fragen: Das, was Sie hier gerade gemacht haben, ist das entweder eine Vorbereitung darauf, dass, wenn Orbán dann die Wahl verloren hat, Sie etwas von dieser großen Lüge der gestohlenen Wahl erzählen können? Oder ist es umgekehrte Psychologie, weil die Regierung Orbán selber über Jahre und Jahrzehnte die Wahlen manipuliert hat und Sie jetzt in Trump'scher Manier das Ganze den prodemokratischen Kräften in die Schuhe schieben möchten?

Tamás Deutsch (PfE), kékkártyás válasz. – Kedves Képviselő Úr! Az élet az nem egy le Carré-regény, és amit Ön itt összehordott, az lehet, hogy egy tetszetős gondolatkísérlet, de a valóság, a hús-vér valóság sokkal brutálisabb. Az derült ki, hogy Magyarország legnagyobb ellenzéki pártja együttműködik egy olyan emberrel, aki magáról azt állítja, hogy újságíró. Valójában a saját bevallása szerint külföldi titkosszolgálatokhoz bekötött kém, és ez az ember a Tisza Párt egyik embere, közreműködik a magyar külügyminiszter titkosszolgálati lehallgatásában. Ez a valóság, kedves képviselő úr, csodálkozom, hogy ez Önt nem háborítja föl.

Tamás Deutsch (PfE), kékkártyás viszontválasz. – Tudja, kedves képviselő úr, én nagyon sajnálom, hogy Ön azon kacag, hogy az Európai Unió egyik szuverén tagállamának külügyminiszterét titkosszolgálatok ellenérdekeltségtől vezetve lehallgatják. Ha ez bármelyik ország külügyminiszterével fordulna elő, mi, magyar patrióta fideszes képviselők elsők között tiltakoznánk. Ja, hogy ez honnan derült ki? Egy nyilvánosságra került hangfelvételről, amiről az ott elhangzottakról az illető magát hamis módon újságírónak beállító ember, aki valójában külföldi titkosszolgálatokhoz bekötött kém, elismeri, hogy amit ő ott mondott, az megfelel a valóságnak. Tehát ez egy önbevallás, kedves képviselő úr!

Alexandr Vondra (ECR). – Madam President, ladies and gentlemen, I think we have to admit one thing: our problem is not the climate. Our problem is our weakness. Our problem is that we are losing the competitiveness.

To correct this, we need two things: to have lower prices of electricity and energy in the short term, and nuclear embracement in the strategic long term. And here, we have a problem.

On nuclear, I welcome the admission of Ursula von der Leyen that abandonment of nuclear was a strategic mistake. If this is a strategic mistake, we should correct this.

A week ago, I asked Ms Ribera when will you submit the delegated act as a Commission to put nuclear on equal footing. No response. So again, I am asking: when will you do this?

And on ETS, we really need a serious reform, not a cosmetic one. So please, we must do this now and we must do a deep reform.

Gerben-Jan Gerbrandy (Renew). – Madam President, President Costa, Commissioner, the world today requires Europe to develop into something it is not yet – develop into a political giant, develop into a military force and develop into the most innovative economy with high tech and very low energy prices.

Development – for that, we look at our heads of state. The European Council shall, and I quote the Treaty on European Union, 'provide the Union with the necessary impetus for its development.' This responsibility is not met. National, short-term interests damage European strength, corrupt national governments, frustrate decision-making and countries that fall behind economically ask the EU to weaken its standards, pulling it down.

That is not development. That is paralysis. President Costa, please pick up the current challenge. Work with those Member States that want a stronger, more united Europe and make Europe develop into what is so badly needed.

(The speaker agreed to take a blue-card question)

Sander Smit (ECR), *"blauwe kaart"-vraag. – Meneer Gerbrandy, het is eigenlijk bizar. U spreekt hier over Europese actie, maar uw kabinet zit op zijn handen. Actie in deze crisis blijft uit. Vissers, huishoudens en bedrijven gericht helpen: het komt er niet van. Waardoor komt dat? Een ongelijk speelveld in de Europese Unie dreigt en dat komt door het talmen, het wachten van uw eigen regering.

Dus ik zou zeggen: ga aan de slag in uw eigen partij, met uw coalitiepartners in het minderheidskabinet en kom met steunmaatregelen in deze dreigende crisis. De gasvoorraden zijn leeg, kernenergie is jarenlang geblokkeerd. We staan voor een enorme crisis. Mijn vraag aan u is: wat voor actie stelt u voor?

Gerben-Jan Gerbrandy (Renew), "blauwe kaart"-antwoord. – Dank voor deze vraag, zeker omdat die komt van iemand wiens partij de afgelopen periode in het kabinet zat. Een kabinet dat er pas vier weken zit, is dus niet verantwoordelijk voor lege gasvoorraden. Dat is het vorige kabinet, waar uw partij in zat. Daarnaast heeft het totaal geen zin om nu aan de pomp allerlei compenserende maatregelen te nemen. U weet net als ik: de rijke mensen profiteren daar het meest van. Het is tijd voor hele gerichte maatregelen en de enige echte oplossing is nog urgenter naar duurzame energie overgaan. Want neem Spanje, dat land is nu veel beter gewapend tegen deze stijgende energieprijzen dan veel andere landen in Europa.

Sander Smit (ECR), "blauwe kaart"-reactie. – Ja, dat is wel bizar, want het vorige kabinet zetelde niet tijdens de grootste energiecrisis ooit waarvoor Shell en het Internationaal Energieagentschap waarschuwen. Zij vragen inderdaad om gerichte maatregelen en die gerichte maatregelen blijven uit. De vissersvloot in Nederland staat aan de kant, ligt aan wal. Dus kom met gerichte maatregelen. Ik spreek helemaal niet over specifieke generieke maatregelen. Die kunnen ook niet uitblijven, want het ongelijke speelveld in Europa ontstaat daardoor wel. Dat heeft u terecht gezegd. Maar gaat u komen met gerichte steun voor de vissersvloot? Die staat aan de kant. Gaat u komen met steun voor boeren als de voedselzekerheid wordt bedreigd? Het is hier net ook gezegd: onze voedselsoevereiniteit staat ook op het spel.

Gerben-Jan Gerbrandy (Renew), "blauwe kaart"-reactie. – Dit wordt een herhaling van zetten, meneer Smit. Het enige wat echt helpt, dat is wat in de Green Deal stond – maar die neemt u niet serieus – namelijk energie-efficiëntie. Energiebesparing is het allerbelangrijkste om dit soort schokken te voorkomen. Zolang de Europese Unie zo afhankelijk blijft van fossiele brandstoffen die van buiten Europa komen, zal geen enkele noodmaatregel structureel helpen. Dus doe met mij mee, omarm eindelijk de Green Deal en dan gaan we samen werken aan een veel goedkopere energieprijs, ook voor de vissers.

Reinier Van Lanschot (Verts/ALE). – Madam President, colleagues, Trump demands that we follow him into war. International law is ignored again. Groceries are more expensive. Businesses struggle with high energy prices. A tank of gas costs more than ever. And the profits are flowing directly into Putin's pockets. All because of another reckless war the US Government started.

That same United States raises tariffs, threatens to invade Greenland and has a security strategy that aims to destroy the EU.

And now that same United States demands our help. Well, if you want our help, act like the ally we once knew – support Ukraine, show some respect for international law, and stop this destructive war.

Europe, these are things we can demand when we are united. We can achieve so much more without a veto, without a traitor wannabe dictator in Hungary. Let's create a United States of Europe and speak with one voice.

Karlo Ressler (PPE). – Poštovana predsjedavajuća, poštovani predsjedniče Europskog vijeća, kolegice i kolege, žestoko globalno preslagivanje karata od Europe traži više političke odlučnosti, više hrabrosti i više samopoštovanja.

U vremenu opasnih ratova u našem neposrednom susjedstvu, energetskih šokova i ucjena, ali i hibridnih napada na našem teritoriju potrebnije nego ikada nam je jedinstvo oko jasnog smjera i veće neovisnosti našeg kontinenta - kroz ulaganja u vlastitu obranu, otpornost i zaštitu vanjskih granica. Otpornost uključuje, prije svega, gospodarski jaču i konkurentniju Europu.

Naše gospodarstvo, naši poduzetnici trebaju manje administrativnih prepreka, snažnije unutarnje tržište i više prostora za rast, za ulaganje i za inovacije.

Ne manje važno, migracije ostaju jedno od ključnih političkih pitanja našeg vremena na kojem se i ovoga tjedna testira ozbiljnost i odgovornost Europe. Novi ratovi pojačavaju migracijske rizike prema našem kontinentu, a još uvijek se suočavamo s prevelikim brojem ljudi koji u Europu ulaze protuzakonito i u njoj protuzakonito i ostaju.

Europski građani zbog toga s pravom od nas očekuju rezultate, a to sada, ovoga tjedna imamo priliku postići i kroz uredbu o povratcima.

Thijs Reuten (S&D). – Madam President, Commissioner, Council, colleagues, Trump's policies once again derailed European security. Rising oil prices, sanction relief, dwindling deliveries of military aid to Ukraine are risks for Ukraine and thus also risks for us.

Meanwhile, the Member States' inability to deliver the loan to Ukraine is frankly appalling. They should have avoided giving Putin's Budapest assets the chance to block. They opted for easy – narrow, short-term national interest once again mean we lack a strong European solution.

The illegal and botched Iran war shows us Trump's so-called peace negotiators are only interested in own financial gain.

Please, Council, abandon naïve beliefs that this approach can end Russia's aggression. Form a united front. Take serious action against Putin's assets in the Council. Provide Ukraine with deep strike capability and an air-protection zone over uncontested areas. Crack down on European companies still benefiting and enabling Putin's war. And deliver the loan to Ukraine through whatever means necessary.

Harald Vilimsky (PfE). – Frau Präsidentin, meine sehr geehrten Damen und Herren! Ob das hier die Debatte über den Rat ist, ob es hier die Parlamentsdebatte ist – eine Sache bestimmt das Handeln und die Redebeiträge, nämlich: Wie können wir – und wenn ich „wir" sage, meine ich die EU-Kommission und die linke Mehrheit hier im Hause –, wie können wir verhindern, dass Viktor Orbán tunlichst nicht wiedergewählt wird? Wie können wir es schaffen, dass wir möglichst rasch 90 Milliarden an unseren Freund Selenskyj überweisen können? Das ist der völlig falsche Weg!

Und die Vorwürfe, die gegen Viktor Orbán und die Ungarn erhoben werden, sind immer absurder, wie zum Beispiel, dass der ungarische Außenminister Kontakt hat zu anderen Außenministern. Ja, selbstverständlich muss er diese Kontakte haben! Es war auch niemand Geringerer als der ungarische Premier Orbán selbst, der Kontakte in das Weiße Haus unterhält. Erinnern Sie sich an die Bilder, wo Viktor Orbán im Weißen Haus saß, bei einem Exklusivtreffen mit dem US-Präsidenten, während alle anderen Staatschefs – von der Leyen, Merz, Macron – wie eine Schulklasse im Weißen Haus saßen und kaum ernst genommen wurden?

Ich appelliere an Sie: Hören Sie auf, die Ungarn und die ungarischen Wähler zu manipulieren. Hören Sie auf, den Ungarn Gelder vorzuenthalten. Lassen Sie freie und unbeeinflusste Wahlen zu. Niemand anderer weiß besser, was für die Ungarn gut ist, als die Ungarn selbst.

Sander Smit (ECR). – Voorzitter, de brandstof- en energieprijzen exploderen. Onze vissers en boeren staan met de rug tegen de muur. De EU moet meer doen en snel. Maar vooral het Nederlandse minderheidskabinet laat het volledig afweten. Terwijl andere landen wel steunmaatregelen nemen voor hun vissersvloot en bedrijven, kiest Den Haag voor stilte, afwachten.

De Europese Commissie moet er nu voor zorgen dat er geen ongelijk speelveld ontstaat, zodat Nederlandse vissers en bedrijven niet de dupe worden van hun eigen trage regering. Ik roep de Commissie en de Raad op: kom met Europese en gecoördineerde nationale steunmaatregelen, onder andere voor de stilgelegde visserijvloot. Overweeg opschorting van het ETS, omarm de ETS-herziening. Maak die fundamenteel en vergroot de gratis emissierechten voor het behoud van onze industrie. Vergeet de dreigende kunstmestcrisis niet. De blokkade van de Straat van Hormuz door Iran veroorzaakt tekorten aan peperdure kunstmest. Herzie nu met spoed de nitraatrichtlijn. Geef boeren meer ruimte voor dierlijke mest, zodat ze hun grasland en akkers nog kunnen inzaaien. Onze voedselzekerheid kan niet langer wachten. Eurocommissaris voor Milieu Roswall, ga aan de slag, vandaag nog.

João Cotrim De Figueiredo (Renew). – Senhora Presidente, Caro Comissário, Caro Presidente Costa, o Conselho Europeu da semana passada inovou numa coisa: tem prazos concretos em vez de intenções. Diz que o diagnóstico já está feito e que agora o que é preciso é fazer, e fazer em prazos que marca e que são curtos. Enfim, são curtos, pelo menos, para os padrões europeus.

Mas faz mais: liga fortemente os temas da energia, da defesa e da política industrial ao crescimento económico; e diz claramente que a fragmentação e as barreiras dentro do mercado único são o primeiro e o principal motivo do nosso atraso. E isso — tem de ser dito — é culpa dos Estados-Membros que ainda não perceberam que o seu interesse nacional depende mais do sucesso do projeto europeu do que dos seus próprios umbigos.

Agora que vamos construir essa «Uma Europa, um mercado», eu penso que é uma boa altura para reafirmar que a autonomia estratégica que tanto defendemos não pode ser uma desculpa para dirigismo ou protecionismo estatal. Não pode haver derivas intervencionistas no Industrial Accelerator Act ou subsídios que distorçam a concorrência.

O Conselho pede-nos uma preferência europeia. Eu acho mais eficaz uma performance europeia, e essa performance depende de as nossas empresas ganharem escala, de terem acesso a capital e de terem um verdadeiro mercado único. Porque a verdade — todos sabemos — é que se as nossas empresas forem competitivas, não precisam de proteção, e se não o forem, não é a proteção que as salvará, ou pelo menos não as salvará sem prejuízo para os concorrentes ou para os contribuintes.

Reinhold Lopatka (PPE). – Frau Präsidentin, meine sehr geehrten Damen und Herren! Die Staats- und Regierungschefs in ihren Schlussfolgerungen – aber auch heute zu Beginn unserer Sitzung Präsidentin Metsola – haben richtigerweise festgehalten, dass der Krieg im Iran und die Angriffe auf die Golfstaaten natürlich keine regionale Krise sind. Sie sind ein Stresstest – nicht nur für Europa, sondern für die Weltwirtschaft. Sie stellen nicht nur unsere Energieversorgung infrage, sondern sie heizen auch Debatten an.

Wie kann man richtig auf solches Vorgehen einer solchen Diktatur, wie es das Mullah-Regime ist, hier die richtigen Antworten finden? Meines Erachtens kann unsere Antwort nur sein: eine engere Zusammenarbeit mit den Golfstaaten, hier nicht nur Freihandelsabkommen abzuschließen, sondern auch wirkliche strategische Partnerschaften einzugehen. Denn gerade im Bereich der Energie werden wir weiterhin diese Region brauchen. Und wir sehen es ja, dass wir hier selbst in Europa ein Standortproblem haben, was Energiepreise betrifft. Und Gratis-Zertifikate im EHS sind hier kein Privileg, sondern eine Notwendigkeit. Das heißt für mich, wir brauchen hier eine belastbare Partnerschaft mit diesen Golfstaaten. Das ist die richtige Antwort auf das totalitäre Regime im Iran. Und diese Antwort müssen wir geben.

Juan Fernando López Aguilar (S&D). – Señora presidenta, señor presidente Costa, señor comisario Dombrovskis, en este debate sobre las conclusiones del Consejo hay dos elefantes en la habitación.

El primero es, evidentemente, la guerra en Irán, que desestabiliza no solamente Oriente Medio, sino el conjunto de la Unión Europea comprometida globalmente. Y hay que llamar a las cosas por su nombre, Consejo y Comisión: estamos hablando de una guerra ilegal, y hay que llamar por su nombre a Trump y a Netanyahu, que son los que la han causado.

El segundo elefante en la habitación es su impacto social catastrófico sobre las economías de hogares, familias y pequeñas y medianas empresas y, por tanto, la urgencia de acelerar la transición verde y justa en la descarbonización de la economía europea, para que nos haga menos dependientes de combustibles fósiles y tóxicos, pero, sobre todo, para que haya un escudo social.

En ambas cuestiones está la identidad europea, porque en la primera está el compromiso de la Unión Europea con el Derecho: el Derecho internacional es la primera determinación de la política exterior de la Unión Europea, con los derechos humanos y el derecho humanitario a cuestas. Pero, además, es identidad de la Unión Europea el pilar social. Por tanto, nos va la vida en ello.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Madam President, last week we saw the true face of the EU again – the face of a coward that hides behind diplomacy because it lacks the guts to act when it matters. You once again criticised military intervention in Iran while hiding behind the very security this intervention guarantees. Where is the will to shape outcomes? The readiness to act? Not visible. Because of this, Europe is not a serious power; it is a spectator handing the world to actors like the IRGC, to those who institutionalise violence, export terror and spit on every norm you claim to defend.

If Europe wants to be a geopolitical actor, it must act, decide and yes, use force when required. But right now, Europe equals weakness. That's a shame for us and that's a shame for the ordinary people in Iran.

Oihane Agirregoitia Martínez (Renew). – Señora presidenta, señor presidente Costa, el otro día el Consejo Europeo lanzó mensajes de unidad importantes para este proyecto en materia de mercado único, acuerdos comerciales, competitividad y protección de la industria.

Hace un rato hemos podido hablar del mercado energético, así que voy a poner el foco en el drama humanitario que estamos y vamos a seguir viviendo si se prolonga el conflicto en Oriente Medio, ya que va a generar millones de desplazados en condiciones precarias, por no decir inhumanas: Irán, Líbano, Gaza, Cisjordania... y no olvidemos Ucrania.

Mañana, cuando toque hablar de la Directiva de retorno de personas migrantes, lo que pedimos es que, por favor, se hable con la humanidad y dignidad que lo que estamos viviendo merece, porque, orden en los procesos migratorios, sí, pero dignidad, también.

Michał Szczerba (PPE). – Szanowny Panie Przewodniczący! Przede wszystkim nie możemy milczeć w sytuacji takiej, kiedy państwo członkowskie, Węgry, a tak naprawdę rząd Orbána, blokuje pomoc dla walczącej Ukrainy. Te 90 miliardów jest bardzo potrzebne i trzeba znaleźć sposób, żeby Ukraina otrzymała środki, które będą potrzebne na jej obronę i funkcjonowanie.

Wczoraj we Lwowie spadły drony, niszcząc zabytki wpisane na światową listę UNESCO. To kościoły z XVIII wieku – kościół św. Andrzeja i bernardynów. 80 kilometrów od granicy z Rzeczpospolitą Polską. Dzisiaj kolejna skandaliczna decyzja rządu Orbána dotycząca zatrzymania możliwości dopływu gazu do tego kraju. Musimy podejmować decyzje, mając pełną świadomość, że koń trojański Putina jest w Europie i jest nim skorumpowany rząd Orbána.

Irene Montero (The Left). – Señora presidenta, señores comisarios, señor presidente del Consejo, Israel ha anunciado la conquista del sur del Líbano y aquí no pasa nada. Su ministro de Finanzas pide la anexión del 10 % del territorio tras semanas de bombardeos ilegales y aquí no pasa nada. Han usado fósforo blanco, han desplazado forzosamente a 700 000 libaneses, han destruido puentes, autovías, ¿y ustedes qué hacen? ¿Qué dicen, señores comisarios?

Gaza, Venezuela, Cuba, Irán, los precios de la energía disparados. Y ustedes podrían parar esto, pero no, ustedes están permitiendo guerras ilegales. Guerras por petróleo. Guerras por negocios. Mucho peor: son cómplices. Porque sin su apoyo, Trump y Netanyahu no podrían estar sembrando el terror en el mundo.

¿Por qué no dejan de arrodillarse? ¿Qué están haciendo? ¿Por qué no dejan de ser un grupo de burócratas incapaces de hacer algo justo, de dar alguna solución, de topar el precio de los alimentos, de la energía, de defender la paz?

Por favor, que Europa tiene en su mano cambiar el rumbo, que hay que abandonar ya a Estados Unidos y a Israel. Hay que pararles ya, porque, si no, mañana será tarde y lo sufrirán nuestros pueblos.

Lukas Sieper (Renew). – Madam President, in this House we often honour great statesmen. And sometimes it's only fair to prepare an eulogy for their career, maybe just a little early.

We praised the man who calmed the press with grace by gently putting questions in their place.

Who cherished votes, the ritual, the show, as long as all results were safe to know.

Who built the rule of law so firm, so tight, that law would always bend to power's might.

Who spoke of freedom proudly, loud and clear, while making sure dissent would disappear.

Who guarded tradition as a sacred art by redrafting history to play his part.

Who promised strength, stability, control, and slowly centralised the state, the soul.

Who called it patriotism, bold and grand, when fewer voices shaped the public land.

And so, dear colleagues, let us not complain, but wish Viktor Orbán a well earned rest from strain.

Europe, I am sure, will gladly entertain the thought he'll soon have time for himself again.

Valdis Dombrovskis, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, President Costa, honourable Members, well, to start on a lighter note, I have been attending European Parliament plenaries since 2004 and I think it is the first time that I hear a Member's intervention as a poem.

But in any case, thank you, honourable Members, for your valuable contributions to today's debate. Across all the issues we discussed today, one message stands out clearly: the European Union must act with determination in an increasingly unstable and challenging world.

Our unwavering support to Ukraine remains at the core of our efforts. As Ukraine continues to defend its sovereignty and territorial integrity, the European Union will stand firmly by its side politically, financially, economically and militarily as long as it takes. At the same time, we remain committed to increasing pressure on the aggressor Russia and to further weaken its capacity to sustain its war economy.

The European Union is also responding to the deeply concerning developments in the Middle East. The situation in the region is extremely serious, with risks that extend far beyond its borders. We call for de-escalation, maximum restraint and the protection of civilians. At the same time, we are stepping up our humanitarian support to those affected while standing in solidarity with our partners in the region and also our Member States that have been directly impacted.

These external challenges have direct consequences for Europe, not least in the field of energy. This is why we are taking targeted and practical measures to mitigate high energy prices for citizens and businesses. From greater flexibility in state aid to action on grid charges, taxation and carbon pricing, the Commission is working across all levels to ensure a more affordable, secure and resilient energy system.

At the same time, we know that Europe's strength in the world depends on its economic foundations at home. Deepening the single market, cutting unnecessary administrative burdens and creating better conditions for companies to innovate and grow remain our core priority. With initiatives such as One Europe, One Market and the EU Inc. proposal, we are moving decisively to unlock Europe's full economic potential and boost its global competitiveness. Simplification remains at the heart of these efforts, delivering tangible savings and real benefits for businesses and citizens alike.

Taken together, these actions form part of a broader strategy to ensure that Europe remains resilient, sovereign and capable of acting in a rapidly changing world. This means reducing strategic dependencies, strengthening our industrial and technological base, and addressing critical capability gaps. In this context of the further deteriorating geopolitical environment, with Russia's war of aggression against Ukraine continuing to pose an existential challenge to the European Union, the European Council has reaffirmed its determination to decisively ramp up Europe's defence readiness by 2030. We will continue to act with unity, urgency and purpose.

António Costa, President of the European Council. – Madam President, I will focus on the four main issues that the Members raised during the debate.

Señora presidenta, para empezar, voy a hablar sobre la situación en Oriente Medio. Europa tiene que tener una posición clara, no puede tener dobles estándares: debe ser clara en la defensa del Derecho internacional cuando Rusia invade Ucrania o cuando Irán ataca a sus vecinos en los países del Golfo o en Oriente Medio.

Europa tiene que promover la paz, y por eso estamos diciendo que todos tienen que desescalar el conflicto, que Israel tiene que hablar con las autoridades libanesas para coordinar el desarme de Hezbolá y respetar la integridad territorial del Líbano.

Estamos promoviendo la paz cuando mostramos agradecimiento a Grecia, Francia, Italia, España y Holanda, que han enviado medios militares para defender a Chipre, un Estado miembro de esta Unión Europea que ha sido afectado por el ataque de Hezbolá.

Pero sabemos que decir «no» a la guerra es decir «sí» a una paz justa y sostenible en Ucrania. Eso quiere decir que Rusia tiene que respetar la soberanía, las fronteras internacionalmente reconocidas de Ucrania y su integridad territorial. Pero quiere decir también que tenemos que tener una solución efectiva de dos Estados que permita a los palestinos tener una Palestina libre e independiente que pueda vivir en paz con sus vecinos israelíes.

Tenemos que defender los derechos humanos, pero los derechos humanos son los derechos de todos los hombres y mujeres en todos los puntos del mundo, por lo que defendemos los de los ciudadanos de Irán y defendemos también los de los gazatíes.

Desde o primeiro momento que, quer a Comissão Europeia, quer eu próprio, tomámos boa nota da situação da segurança energética resultante da destruição do pipeline Druzhba pela Rússia. A primeira preocupação foi garantir que a Eslováquia e a Hungria tinham a sua segurança energética assegurada — e está assegurada —, quer porque podem utilizar um pipeline que provém do Adriático, quer porque há um pipeline alternativo com origem em Odessa.

A segunda preocupação foi garantir que havia condições de reparar o pipeline, e não só manifestámos apoio técnico e financeiro à Ucrânia para o poder reparar, como temos a garantia escrita do presidente Zelensky de que que o pipeline estará reparado nas próximas semanas. É um ato de grande generosidade por parte da Ucrânia, porque corresponde ao compromisso que assumiu com a Europa de manter o pipeline operacional e à deliberação que tomámos de excecionar, até ao final de 2027, a Hungria e a Eslováquia da obrigação de cessar a importação de gás russo. Mas é uma enorme generosidade, porque cada unidade de gás comprada à Rússia é mais dinheiro que se dá à Rússia para financiar a guerra contra a Ucrânia.

Agora, esta situação o que nos recorda é que nós temos de ser autónomos do ponto de vista da energia, porque, quando a Rússia ataca o pipeline Druzhba, ou quando ocorre a guerra no Médio Oriente, e o Irão bloqueia o fecho de Ormuz, sim, nós temos uma quebra no fornecimento de energia e os preços da nossa energia sobem dramaticamente.

Não é a reforma do ETS que vai resolver este problema, é a descarbonização e a libertação que temos da energia fóssil que não produzimos, e a sua substituição pela energia que podemos produzir. Podemos produzir pelo nuclear, podemos produzir pelas renováveis, mas temos de produzir nós próprios a nossa energia, e essa é a única forma de reduzir e controlar e sermos autónomos a garantir a nossa segurança energética. De qualquer forma, não ignoramos que é necessário proceder a uma reavaliação do mecanismo do ETS que tem provado bem e a Comissão comprometeu-se até junho a apresentar uma revisão do ETS.

Mas, para a situação concreta que resulta da situação no Médio Oriente, o que pedimos à Comissão — e a Comissão se comprometeu a fazer — é para apresentar um conjunto de medidas de curto prazo que possam minorar o impacto que estamos a sofrer no preço dos combustíveis.

Oui, c'est vrai, la position de la Hongrie, c'est politiquement inacceptable. Et du point de vue juridique, c'est une claire violation du traité sur l'Union européenne et du traité sur le fonctionnement de l'Union européenne.

Tout d'abord, c'est politiquement inacceptable parce que personne n'a le droit de nous prendre en otage ou de faire du chantage sur l'Union européenne. Ou de nous utiliser en tant qu'outils d'une campagne électorale. Mais là aussi, la dimension juridique. Parce que quand les traités demandent l'unanimité, ils n'offrent à personne le droit de veto. Parce qu'on doit conjuguer les différentes normes du traité. Et le traité nous impose à tous le devoir de coopération loyale. Cela veut dire le devoir qu'on a tous de faire un effort, d'arriver à un accord.

Le traité nous oblige aussi à la coopération sincère entre les différentes institutions. Et quand le Conseil européen prend une décision par consensus le 18 décembre; quand le Conseil demande par unanimité au Parlement européen la permission de changer le budget; quand le Parlement européen donne ses permis pour changer le budget, personne ne peut arrêter une décision qui est en cours et qui manque seulement sa formalisation finale. Parce que le Parlement européen a donné son consentement dans les précis termes que le Conseil avait demandés.

Et finalement, on doit agir de bonne foi. Et ce n'est pas agir de bonne foi quand on nous pose une condition qui ne dépend ni de quelques États membres, ni d'aucune institution, mais de la capacité de l'Ukraine à réparer le pipeline et la volonté de la Russie de le détruire une fois encore, ou de ne pas détruire une fois encore. Et il faut rappeler que la Russie a déjà attaqué 23 fois ce pipeline et qu'on ne peut pas être dépendants de nos décisions, des décisions de la Russie. Cela, on ne peut pas accepter.

Pour notre compétitivité et pour notre croissance, pour les emplois des Européens, c'est essentiel, notre politique commerciale. Et aussi pour notre agriculture. Parce que par la politique commerciale, on ouvre de nouvelles, de nouveaux marchés pour nos fromages, pour nos vins, pour nos productions agricoles. Et dans nos traités de commerce, évidemment, il nous faut protéger nos intérêts, notamment dans l'agriculture. C'est ce qu'on a fait dans le Mercosur. Parce qu'on parle du Mercosur, mais on oublie souvent que, quand on parle par exemple de bœuf, il y a un quota de 1,5 %. Quand on parle du sucre, il y a un autre quota de moins de 2 %. Quand on parle du lait, il y a un quota de moins de 2 %.

Et c'est la même chose avec l'Australie, parce qu'avec l'Australie aussi, il y aura un quota. Finalement.

We are not paralysed. In spite of the world instability, we keep our focus on our own agenda and it's what we have done last week in the European Council – because in spite of the crisis in Iran, or the war in Ukraine, we keep our focus to launch 'one Europe, one market' agenda with concrete measures and a very clear timeline, a very demanding timeline – because we need to deliver until the end of 2027. Many of these measures we need to take this year of 2026. I don't repeat again what I have said in my first speech, but we need to deliver on this in order to sustain our social model, in order to create quality jobs, in order to ensure affordability in our society, for our citizens, and to invest in our own security and our own defence.

We have an agenda, we have a clear commitment from the European Commission, and now it's up to us, the Council and the European Parliament, to deliver in this concrete time because Europe – our economy, our citizens – cannot wait for more time.

Die Präsidentin. – Als nächster Punkt der Tagesordnung folgt die Aussprache über die Europäische Bürgerinitiative mit dem Titel „Verbot von Konversionsmaßnahmen in der Europäischen Union" (2026/2539(RSP)).

Marina Kaljurand, author. – Madam President, Commissioner, colleagues, I am pleased today to intervene on behalf of the LIBE Committee to introduce the European Citizens' Initiative calling for a ban on conversion practices in the European Union.

On 2 March, the LIBE Committee, together with the PETI and FEMM committees, hosted a public hearing on the Citizens' Initiative. We heard presentations by the association Against Conversion Therapy and first-hand accounts of victims of conversion practices.

We also heard from the representatives of the Cyprus Presidency and the European Economic and Social Committee's rapporteur on banning conversion practices. The Commission committed to issue a study on the practices and support Member States' bans, per the LGBTIQ+ equality strategy for 2026 to 2030.

Conversion practices are interventions aimed at changing, repressing or suppressing the sexual orientation, gender identity, and/or gender expression of LGBTIQ+ persons, causing severe pain, long-standing psychological and physical damage. They are rooted in the dangerous, unfounded belief that a person's identity can be inferior and in need of remedy.

Due to their discriminatory, degrading, and harmful nature, conversion practices are qualified as torture by the United Nations and the Council of Europe. They are currently being banned in a growing number of EU Member States. Nevertheless, these practices still remain legal in several countries.

A potential ban, as called for by the initiative, must cover both sexual orientation and gender identity.

We count on the Commission to listen to the voices of the more than 1 million signatories of the initiative, and take decisive action against conversion practices. Commissioner, please do not let us down.

Cristina Guarda, autrice. – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, a nome della commissione PETI, è un piacere partecipare a questo momento di discussione sulla ECI "Ban on conversion practices in the European Union", organizzata con LIBE, commissione competente, e con la partecipazione di tante e dei tantissimi colleghi della commissione FEMM.

Il tema riguarda direttamente la dignità umana, l'uguaglianza, i diritti fondamentali, che sono valori costitutivi dell'Unione. E, soprattutto, questo tema non è riducibile a una differenza valoriale tra destra e sinistra. Qui si parla di umanità, si parla del rispetto della dignità umana e le pratiche di conversione ledono la dignità e l'integrità delle persone e non possono trovare alcuna legittimazione nello spazio pubblico.

L'Unione europea ama presentarsi come portatrice garante di valori, di bene comune, di diritti fondamentali. Ma questi valori devono tradursi in tutela concreta e coerente perché nessuno si senta escluso o messo ai margini. L'Unione europea deve essere quello spazio in cui tutte e tutti si sentano accolti e protetti.

Complimenti quindi agli organizzatori. Avete raccolto oltre 1,1 milioni di firme e raggiunto le soglie di undici Stati membri: è un segnale politico chiaro, è una dimostrazione della partecipazione civica rispetto a un tema che non è da escludere nel dibattito politico, perché l'iniziativa dei cittadini europei è strumento centrale di democrazia partecipativa, che avvicina le istituzioni ai cittadini e rende l'agenda politica europea più responsabile, più civile.

Come commissione per le petizioni riceviamo regolarmente petizioni sui diritti fondamentali e sulle discriminazioni, incluse quelle che riguardano la tutela delle persone delle comunità LGBTQIA+.

Per noi questo, quindi, non è un tema astratto: è un bisogno reale che emerge dal contatto diretto con i nostri cittadini. Quindi la richiesta netta di ban a livello europeo delle pratiche di conversione con regole chiare e standard di protezione più omogenee in tutta l'Europa e l'attenzione concreta alle vittime con supporto, protezione e prevenzione è centrale.

Grazie di essere parte di questa discussione, grazie ai cittadini di aver fatto questa iniziativa e di averci sollecitati degnamente.

Hadja Lahbib, membre de la Commission. – Madame la Présidente, chers membres du Parlement européen, je voudrais tout d'abord, à mon tour, remercier et féliciter aussi toutes celles et tous ceux qui ont porté cette initiative, qui l'ont soutenue et qui l'ont organisée. Elle a commencé en France avant de se répandre à travers l'Union européenne et elle a surtout mis en lumière ces pratiques de conversion et leur véritable souffrance, la véritable souffrance qu'elle peut causer. Et croyez bien que s'attaquer à ces pratiques est une claire priorité de notre stratégie «LGBTIQ+ equality» pour les cinq prochaines années.

You have also shown the power of the European citizens' initiative itself. It's a unique and important democratic tool. It allows EU citizens to bring forward what they care about by starting a debate and shaping the EU agenda. European citizens' initiatives reflect the views of many people across the Union. When an initiative reaches the required support, the Commission has six months within which to decide what action, if any, it will take. During our analysis, we must consider all relevant interests and viewpoints. That's why a debate like this one and the hearing that took place on 2 March with the LIBE and PETI committees are so important and relevant. Our assessment is ongoing within the scope set out when the initiative was registered in January 2024 and within the limits of EU competences. We have not taken a position yet. Today is much more about listening carefully to you and and to this debate.

Honourable Members, the World Health Organization removed homosexuality and the so-called gender identity disorder from its classification of disease in 1990. There is absolutely nothing to cure. Conversion practices are based on a false idea that LGBTIQ+ people are somehow sick. You don't need me to tell you that obviously this is a false perception of the reality. And what is true and real is that conversion practices cause real harm. They can lead to deep psychological trauma, they can cause physical damage, and just as importantly, they attack a person's dignity. One in four LGBTIQ+ people and almost half of transgender people report having been subjected to these practices. Many have faced violence, abuse and humiliation.

In my mission letter, President von der Leyen entrusted me with combating these practices. I take that responsibility very seriously. In our LGBTIQ+ strategy, we announced a study to better understand the scale and impact of conversion practices. That study was launched in January. We need facts, we need clarity and we need to base our actions on evidence. We are also stepping up coordination.

We will use our expert group on LGBTIQ+ equality, bringing together Member States and the Commission to support dialogue and cooperation. We will listen closely to civil society, to experts and, above all, to those directly affected. As we develop our approach to combating conversion practices, we will take this citizens' initiative into account. As set out in our LGBTIQ+ strategy, we will assess the most effective way forward. We will consider how we can support Member States who play a crucial role in preventing and banning these practices. Eight Member States have already done so. That shows change is possible.

Parliament has long played an active role in advocating for banning conversion practices, calling on the Commission to explore possible avenues to counter these practices and to urge Member States to ban them. I count on the continued support of Parliament to protect people from practices that harm, that stigmatise and dehumanise them. Honourable Members, I'm here to listen and I look forward to an open and thoughtful discussion.

Ελεονώρα Μελέτη, εξ ονόματος της ομάδας PPE. – Κυρία Πρόεδρε, κύριε Επίτροπε, αγαπητοί συνάδελφοι, η ομοφυλοφιλία δεν είναι ασθένεια και οι πρακτικές μεταστροφής δεν είναι θεραπείες. Κι όμως, ακόμη και σήμερα υπάρχουν άνθρωποι —πολλές φορές ανάμεσά τους ανήλικα παιδιά— που υφίστανται τέτοιες πρακτικές. Πρακτικές που βασίζονται στον φόβο, στην ενοχή, στην απόρριψη, όχι στην επιστήμη.

Δεν υπάρχει η παραμικρή επιστημονική ένδειξη πως αυτές οι πρακτικές, ακόμα και αν υπάρχει συναίνεση, τελικά λειτουργούν. Υπάρχει όμως ξεκάθαρη απόδειξη ότι βλάπτουν, προκαλούν βαθύ ψυχικό τραύμα, κατάθλιψη, απώλεια αυτοεκτίμησης, ακόμα και αυτοκτονικό ιδεασμό. Περιλαμβάνουν πρακτικές όπως η εξαναγκαστική ψυχοθεραπεία, φαρμακευτική αγωγή, ηλεκτροσόκ, εξορκισμούς και άλλες επαχθείς μεθόδους που δεν έχουν καμία σχέση με την ιατρική, καμία σχέση με την επιστήμη.

Κι όμως, σύμφωνα με τα τελευταία στοιχεία, το 24 % των ατόμων της LGBT κοινότητας δηλώνει ότι έχει υποστεί κάποια μορφή τέτοιας μεταστροφής. Έχει δηλαδή υποστεί μια μορφή κακοποίησης, μια μορφή βίας. Γιατί οι θεραπείες μεταστροφής είναι κακοποίηση, είναι βία, προσβάλλουν την ανθρώπινη αξιοπρέπεια, παραβιάζουν θεμελιώδη ανθρώπινα δικαιώματα και αφήνουν βαθύ ψυχικό τραύμα.

Οκτώ κράτη μέλη της Ευρωπαϊκής Ένωσης, ανάμεσά τους και η χώρα μου, η Ελλάδα, έχουν ήδη απαγορεύσει αυτές τις πρακτικές σε εθνικό επίπεδο. Πρέπει να ακολουθήσουν και τα υπόλοιπα κράτη μέλη, αν θέλουμε να λεγόμαστε μια Ευρώπη που δεν μιλά απλά για αξίες, αλλά τις εφαρμόζει.

IN THE CHAIR: SABINE VERHEYEN

Vice-President

1-0194-0000

Marc Angel, *on behalf of the S&D Group. – Madam President, dear Commissioner, dear colleagues, verbal and physical abuse that can go as far as corrective rape, forced injections of hormones, exorcism and much more – that is what young gays, lesbians, trans and intersex persons must endure in this so-called conversion therapy. That is torture.

So, let me thank all the activists of ACT who organised the European Citizens' Initiative, supported by 1.1 million Europeans, to ban conversion therapies. Torture is never therapy. And anyway, there is nothing to heal, nothing to fix and nothing to repair in queer people and in me. I am gay. Not because I learned about it in school or because I read it in a book, nor because I saw a movie about homosexuality. No, I am born gay as a result of the beautiful diversity of nature.

Those who believe that lesbians, gays, bisexuals, trans and intersex persons are mistakes of nature, please look around. Look at yourself. We are all different and that is precisely what makes us human. The culture of everyone must be the same and of a perfect human, that has a name. It is called Nazism. That is what the Nazis preached and I absolutely refuse that history be ignored and repeated by those who cannot accept differences.

This is why we Socialists and Democrats call on the European Commission to develop strong recommendations in order to introduce a full ban of conversion practices across all European Member States because we believe in a Europe that defends human dignity. In such a Europe, we cannot tolerate torture.

Margarita de la Pisa Carrión, *en nombre del Grupo PfE. – Señora presidente, señoras comisarias, señorías, todos merecemos amor, respeto y acompañamiento digno, sin presiones ni abusos físicos ni psicológicos, por supuesto. Pero esta iniciativa ciudadana trata de perseguir cualquier intervención que no esté exclusivamente dirigida a favorecer una reafirmación.

Esto pone en riesgo cualquier acompañamiento, tanto de profesionales como de educadores y padres, por miedo. Este miedo puede impedir una necesaria orientación, sobre todo en etapas cruciales y cambiantes de la vida, donde se pueden esperar que surjan dudas y necesidades muy variadas que deben atenderse.

Este papel no lo puede desempeñar cualquiera, y menos alguien de una ONG con una visión ideologizada en una conversación de diez minutos. El acompañamiento desde el respeto favorece decisiones libres.

Sin duda, lo que no ayuda es que solo se acepte un camino muchas veces irreversible, como son las terapias hormonales o las intervenciones quirúrgicas en niños. ¿No es esto también presión? No digan que no pasa: saben que hay personas —muchas— que se han arrepentido.

Condenamos cualquier abuso y velamos por la libertad, la prudencia y la seguridad en el acompañamiento de quienes lo necesitan.

Paolo Inselvini, a nome del gruppo ECR. – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, la violenza e la coercizione vanno sempre e comunque condannati e infatti sono già reati in tutti i nostri ordinamenti. Il problema dell'iniziativa che stiamo discutendo oggi, tuttavia, è un altro.

Se leggiamo bene il testo, infatti, capiamo che non si limita agli abusi, ma va oltre, ben oltre. Si parla di tutte le pratiche, tutte, che possono influenzare una persona, citando addirittura famiglia, amici e religione. Un padre e una madre, quindi, mi chiedo legittimamente, non potranno più consigliare il proprio figlio? Non potranno più dirgli di rispettare la propria identità biologica? O un sacerdote dovrà avere paura a trattare certi temi alla luce del catechismo e della Chiesa cattolica?

Con la scusa quindi di alcuni casi specifici – che chiaramente, ripeto, condanniamo – pare che si voglia tappare la bocca a tutti coloro che non la pensano come la vulgata LGBT. Tappare la bocca a chi vuole esprimere il proprio pensiero o i propri legittimi principi religiosi, compromettendo quindi la libertà di espressione.

E allora, come altre volte, ci pare che questa sia una strategia di qualcuno che vuole destrutturare alcune ideologie e imporle nel nostro mondo, attraverso l'imposizione di una ideologia che vuole sfruttare casi specifici di violenze, che condanniamo sempre e comunque, per imporre una visione parziale. E noi a questo non ci stiamo.

Fabienne Keller, au nom du groupe Renew. – Madame la Présidente, chère Sabine Verheyen, Madame la Commissaire, chère Hadja Lahbib, chers collègues, j'aimerais commencer en soulignant le fait que j'ai un problème avec la traduction française, le terme de «thérapie» de conversion. Ces pratiques ne sont en rien des thérapies. Vous l'avez dit vous-même, Madame la Commissaire, une thérapie, c'est un soin. Or, ici, il n'y a rien à soigner. «L'orientation sexuelle n'est pas une maladie, c'est une torture», a dit à raison le Conseil de l'Europe.

L'article 21 de la charte des droits fondamentaux de l'UE est clair: nul ne doit être discriminé en fonction de son orientation sexuelle. Nous avions déclaré – vous vous en souvenez peut-être – il y a quelques années, l'Union européenne, une freedom zone pour les LGBTIQ+ en réaction aux free zone déclarées en Hongrie et en Pologne pour les LGBT.

Aujourd'hui, plus d'un million de citoyens à travers 27 États membres ont soutenu cette initiative citoyenne européenne pour demander l'interdiction de ces pratiques de conversion. Leur cause est juste. Merci aux jeunes qui ont réussi à fédérer ce million de signatures.

Chers collègues, chère Commissaire, qu'attendons-nous donc pour bannir cette pratique? Nos citoyens nous y appellent.

Kim Van Sparrentak, *on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group. – Madam President, dear colleagues, dear Commissioner, dear activists, I'm a happily married lesbian. I am not sick and I do not need to be cured. Sure, some in this House will judge, although I do not know why you would waste your energy on hate, especially as a political strategy. But stop allowing harm to my community.

Today I want to speak on behalf of Benoît. When Benoît came out to his parents, their response was: 'Don't worry, we will help you'. Then for three years, his parents brought him to so-called 'healing retreats'. Here, while still a minor, he was told that his homosexuality was dirty and dangerous and would lead him to loneliness, HIV, and ultimately death. He was isolated, forbidden to speak and subjected to deprivation. Benoît became suicidal, but managed to escape when he was 18.

His parents thought they were helping him, but now his parents have apologised and are preventing similar harm by speaking up in their communities. And yet, almost 20 years later, he still lives with severe PTSD.

It's high time to bring an end to these torturous practices. Europe needs to end conversion practices.

Manon Aubry, *au nom du groupe The Left. – Madame la Présidente, être LGBTI n'est pas une maladie. Pourtant, quelle personne gay, lesbienne ou trans n'a pas déjà entendu de la part de ses proches ou de sa famille «ça te passera, tu vas guérir»? Comme si c'était un choix, comme si c'était une mode, comme si c'était une maladie. Mais on ne guérit pas de son orientation sexuelle ou de son genre, car cela fait partie intégrante de son identité. Le nier, c'est nier l'existence même des personnes LGBTI.

Pourtant, dans 21 États européens, les thérapies de conversion sont encore possibles. Des centaines de milliers de personnes en sont victimes. Ces pratiques barbares infligent de telles souffrances, physiques ou mentales, qu'elles sont considérées comme de la torture par plusieurs rapporteurs des Nations unies.

Alors, collègues d'extrême droite, vous n'inventerez jamais le vaccin contre l'homosexualité ou la transidentité. Vos discours de haine des personnes LGBTI disent tout de votre vision de la société: un monde patriarcal dans lequel se poursuivent les rapports de domination.

Alors je voudrais ici, depuis cet hémicycle du Parlement européen, m'adresser à toutes les personnes gays, lesbiennes, transgenres et queer: jamais nous ne laisserons l'extrême droite l'emporter et nier votre existence même. Heureusement, les anticorps des personnes LGBTI sont plus forts, plus forts que la haine de l'extrême droite. Et plus d'1,2 million de personnes ont signé une initiative citoyenne européenne pour interdire les thérapies de conversion. À eux, je veux leur dire que nous sommes à leurs côtés.

Et maintenant, c'est à vous, la Commission européenne, d'agir. Son interdiction doit être totale et ne doit souffrir d'aucune exception, ni en matière d'orientation sexuelle ni en matière d'identité de genre. Madame la Commissaire, vous ne pouvez pas être juste spectatrice de ce débat, mais vous devez agir, agir parce qu'il n'y a plus aucun moment à attendre. Car s'il y a bien une chose dont nos sociétés doivent guérir, c'est du fascisme et de son homophobie et de sa transphobie.

Irmhild Boßdorf, im Namen der ESN-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin! Folter, schreckliche Erniedrigungen, grausame Misshandlungen bis hin zur Teufelsaustreibung: Wer von Ihnen glaubt wirklich, dass Konversionstherapien in Europa heute noch so aussehen? Bereits seit 2020 sind Konversionsmaßnahmen in Deutschland verboten. Die Folgen davon sind drastisch: All jene Eltern, die ihre Kinder mit Liebe und großer Fürsorge aufziehen, dürfen sich nicht mehr einmischen, wenn es um das Erwachsenwerden ihrer eigenen Kinder geht.

Zweifel an der geschlechtlichen Identität sind in der Pubertät vollkommen normal und auch berechtigt. LGBTQIA+-Lobbygruppen – bezahlt übrigens oft von Geldern der EU – stehen dann bereit, um Kinder und Jugendliche in ihrer Unsicherheit zu bestärken. Die eigenen Eltern hingegen dürfen sich kaum noch äußern. Tun sie es doch, laufen sie Gefahr, dass das Jugendamt ihnen ihre Kinder entreißt. In Deutschland waren es allein im Jahr 2024 70 000 Fälle. Unsere Erfahrungen in Deutschland sind also nicht so sehr gut, und deshalb lehnen wir alle EU-weiten Regelungen zum Konversionsverbot ab.

Danuše Nerudová (PPE). – Madam President, conversion therapy is torture, and yet, this is still happening in Europe. One in four LGBTIQ+ people in the European Union have experienced conversion practices. One in four. Let that sink in.

At a time when we are facing a mental health crisis among the young generation, how can we tolerate practices that are linked to depression, anxiety or suicide? This is not healthcare. It does not protect them. It just isolates them.

Let's criminalise this practice. Let's provide victims with psychological support because we do not have to fix them because they are not broken.

Lukas Sieper (Renew). – Frau Präsidentin! Ich beziehe mich wie so oft in solchen Debatten auf Artikel 10 Absatz 4 der Geschäftsordnung, der die Hassrede verbietet. Und es geht um die Rede der Frau Kollegin Boßdorf gerade. Mir ist bewusst, dass das, was wir als Hassrede kennen, normalerweise starke, diffamierende, eindeutige Aussagen sind. Aber ich glaube, gerade Sie, Frau Präsidentin, als auch Deutsche wissen, dass Hassrede heutzutage in unserer Gesellschaft auch die ständige Verschiebung des Sagbaren ist, der ständige unterschwellige Versuch, solche widerlichen, demokratiefeindlichen Ideen zu einem legitimen Bestandteil unseres demokratischen Diskurses zu machen.

Die Behauptung, dass die Findung der eigenen Homosexualität, Transsexualität, Intersexualität oder einer anderen nicht heteronormativen Sexualität eine bloße jugendliche Verwirrung ist, die, wenn sie denn ausgelebt und erwachsen wird, von irgendwelchen Lobbygruppen unterstützt wird, ist genau diese Verschiebung der Grenze des Sagbaren in den Bereich der Hassrede. Und das ist der Punkt, wo wir als Demokraten aufstehen müssen und wo ich das Präsidium darum bitte, einzuschreiten.

Die Präsidentin. – Vielen Dank, wir werden das zur Überprüfung ins Präsidium geben und prüfen – es ist eine grenzwertige Geschichte –, ob es Hassrede ist und so definiert werden kann.

Sandra Gómez López (S&D). – Señora presidenta, «homosexualidad: ayudamos a la persona a explorar su identidad y a corregir las causas de su confusión». Esto es un anuncio que se ha encontrado en diversos sitios que deberían ser un lugar de paz. «La homosexualidad se produce porque los hombres han sido seducidos por su madre, y al no tener sexo con ella debido al tabú del incesto, enfocan la energía sexual hacia los hombres». Este texto se ha encontrado en uno de los panfletos que dan en las terapias de conversión.

Gracias a los peticionarios por esta iniciativa, pues es evidente que hacía mucha falta, porque en Europa se siguen practicando estas terapias y es inaceptable la tortura psicológica a la que someten a niños y niñas durante meses o incluso años; torturas que incluyen encierros, humillaciones, trabajos forzados y medicación para anular el deseo, pero, sobre todo, una violencia psicológica constante que les hace creer que lo que son está mal, que ellos están mal. Y no lo contamos nosotros, lo cuentan sus víctimas: un valenciano como Xavi Martínez, que fue sometido a una terapia durante cuatro años y aún se está recuperando psicológicamente de ello.

Pero no todos han tenido la misma suerte, ya que hay documentados casos de suicidio después de estas terapias. Y no nos engañemos: esto no es solo un caso de fanatismos marginales. A veces tienen cobertura institucional y política. En Valencia, mi tierra, se ha eliminado una ley que prohibía las terapias de conversión del Gobierno del Partido Popular y VOX.

En mi país se dan pasos, pero hay Gobiernos que desandan, y por eso es inaceptable que el amor, aún en Europa, se considere una enfermedad o una acción del diablo. Quien así lo considere, el enfermo, el desorientado y el inadaptado es él y, por lo tanto, debe ser castigado.

Lukas Sieper (Renew). – Madam President, dear people of Europe, put me into a camp and tell me that being with a woman is a sin, and I will still be heterosexual at the end of the day. Put me into a camp and parade the most attractive man in the world in front of me, I will still be heterosexual at the end of the day. Put me into a camp and beat me up until I say differently, I will still be heterosexual at the end of the day. No matter what you do to me, I will still be myself at the end of the day.

Dear colleagues, every human being has one fundamental right: to be who they are. You cannot torture identity out of a person. You cannot legislate it away, and you cannot correct it. This initiative is exactly about that. There is only one choice: let the people be who they are.

Rasmus Nordqvist (Verts/ALE). – Madam President, to all the young LGBTQI people who are being told to change yourself: don't listen, because you're good just as you are. There's nothing wrong about being gay or lesbian, being trans or being intersex. But unfortunately, far too many people in Europe have been going through the extremely damaging practice of so-called 'conversion therapy'.

And it's still happening. It's happening because in far too many countries in the EU, it's still legal. In my own home country, Denmark, I proposed a ban six years ago and still nothing has happened.

So that's why I look up to the activists, and I thank you, because we have to listen to you. We have to listen to you when you rally more than a million Europeans behind you.

So let's all listen. Let's ban this so-called 'conversion therapy' and let's protect Europeans.

Carolina Morace (The Left). – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, le pratiche di conversione non sono terapie, come è già stato detto. Sono violenze, sono tentativi di spezzare ciò che una persona è, di trasformare l'amore in colpa e l'identità in vergogna.

Dietro questi fantomatici trattamenti ci sono storie di paura, di isolamento, di giovani che non riescono a essere loro stessi. Ma la sofferenza nel vedersi diversi dagli altri non si elimina rimuovendo la propria identità, ma accettandola. Questo è il primo insegnamento che ho appreso quando ho capito che avrei potuto innamorarmi anche di una donna.

Mettere fine alle pratiche di conversione significa proteggere persone come me. Significa dire a ogni ragazzo, a ogni ragazza e a ogni persona LGBTQ+: "Non c'è nulla in voi che debba essere curato".

Chiedo a quest'Aula di scegliere il coraggio, la scienza, l'umanità. Le persone gay non sono di sinistra o di destra: sono figli, figlie, cittadini che tutti noi rappresentiamo qui.

E allora fatevi una domanda, la sola lecita: i vostri figli sono felici?

Maria Walsh (PPE). – Madam President, colleagues, often we hear the term 'conversion therapy', we imagine something from the past: an outdated practice that no longer takes place in our community and is banned in our laws. We've heard several colleagues refer to that to date, but that is simply not true.

Only eight EU countries have banned these so-called therapies, and as an Irish MEP, it is difficult to accept that Ireland, my own Member State, is not among them. Despite being a country that has shown real leadership on LGBTQI+ rights, notably by being the first country that voted for marriage equality by popular vote over ten years ago, sadly, we still haven't banned conversion therapy. Despite clear commitments and two programmes for government, we simply do not have legislation. Legislation that would ban conversion practices would not just be symbolic; it would clearly say that we do not accept practices that seek to erase who people fundamentally are.

So, I am calling on my own country to finally act and bring forward this legislation, I am calling on the Commission and not just the Commission, but our Council leaders, who ultimately have the decision to make this change, and to take this citizens' initiative seriously. A total of 1.2 million people have signed it. They are asking Europe to stand up and defend and protect their fundamental rights, rights that we debate and discuss and vote on here in this House. We cannot continue to let our rainbow community suffer silently. I am just conscious, even in tonight's debate that hundreds of LGBTI+ kids are going through conversion therapy – hundreds – and we simply are sitting here with an empty Chamber yet again, talking about the protection of our citizens.

Lukas Sieper (Renew), blue-card question. – Dear colleague, if you would have the chance to talk to one of these kids that's going through this horrible process, that indeed is not worthy of the name 'therapy', what would you tell them?

1-0210-0000
Maria Walsh (PPE), blue-card answer. – Thanks for gifting me my own personal story, because like my colleague MEP Angel, – we call him 'angel' in this House – I'm a gay kid living from a rural part of Ireland, very Catholic-driven when I was growing up, and I couldn't even imagine the psychological, the spiritual, the physical degree of discrimination that I would go through if I was another kid living in different part of Europe.

And the fact of the matter is, I'd like to openly share that while there's a small cohort here tonight, every time there is a debate on LGBTI+ rights, every time there is an amendment to be placed, every time there is a vote to be had, there is a growing number of MEPs, Commissioners and Councillors – while we might feel that small, but they are out there and they are speaking large.

And to specifically shout to our NGOs and CSOs, who do not have the luxury of coming in here defending their rights every day, we are with them in great spirit and love.

Alessandro Zan (S&D). – Madam President, thank you Commissioner.

'It was the darkest time of my life.'

'If conversion therapy had been banned, I would have suffered less trauma and perhaps I would not have tried to take my own life.'

'They told me I was sick.'

These are the voices of people who have endured what are called conversion practices. Physical, sexual and verbal abuse, a form of torture, as recognised by the United Nations.

We know what the consequence is: broken lives, denied identities and young people made to believe that suicide is their only way out. And it is happening today in Europe and even in my own country, Italy, where no law exists to ban these practices. How can we stay silent in the face of such discrimination, violence and hate?

I just heard some awful and anti-scientific statements from right-wing colleagues. I want to remind them that sexual orientation or gender identity is not a choice, but an individual's condition that must always be respected. So, no one can be convinced or no one can be converted. Some Member States have taken action and banned them, but in a true Union of equality, rights must not stop at borders.

Thank you to the ACT initiative, thank you very much. More than one million citizens are urging us to be brave, go behind fear and adopt common concrete measures. Europe must respond strongly and together to end these inhuman practices across our Union.

Juan Fernando López Aguilar (S&D). – Señora presidenta, señora comisaria Lahbib, ¿qué estamos discutiendo aquí? Pues increíblemente, porque estamos en 2026, que la homosexualidad no es ninguna enfermedad —la homofobia sí lo es— y que las mal llamadas «terapias de conversión» no son ninguna terapia, son una violación grave de derechos fundamentales provista por la Carta de Derechos Fundamentales en el el artículo 21. Además, cuando son coercitivas, intrusivas y no digamos con violencia, son torturas, prohibidas por artículo 4 de la Carta de Derechos Fundamentales.

Por tanto, ¿qué es lo que pedimos de la Comisión? Lo que piden esas firmas —1 200 000— que han motivado esta petición ante el Parlamento Europeo: que la Comisión ejerza acción, que convierta las terapias de conversión en un delito europeo y, por tanto, imponga uniformemente en todos los Estados miembros una sanción penal, además de las civiles y las administrativas, y que incorpore también a la Directiva de protección de víctimas el respeto debido a quienes han sido víctimas de esas mal llamadas «terapias de conversión» con gravísima violación de sus derechos fundamentales.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Arvoisa puhemies, en kannata eheytyshoitoja. Niillä ei voi saavuttaa sitä, mitä niillä yritetään saavuttaa. Ihmisen seksuaalisuus ei muutu puhumalla. Tällainen on vain itsensä huijaamista.

Sitten tulee iso mutta. Se mutta on se, että eheytyshoitojen kieltäminen EU-tasolla on kokonaan toinen kysymys. Haluammeko todella astua alueelle, jossa kontrolloimme ihmisten keskinäisiä rukoushetkiä? Vielä samaan aikaan kun uskonnollisten yhteisöjen sisältä löytyy suoraa pahuutta, joka ei näytä liikuttavan EU-päättäjiä. Moskeijoissa kylvetään radikalisaation siemeniä. Islam luo pohjan naisten alistamiselle ja pakottaa heidät peittämään itsensä. Mitä tulee homoihin, islamilaisessa kulttuurissa on valloillaan käsitys, että homot pitäisi kivittää kuoliaaksi. Joten muistakaa, sielunhoidollinen kristillinen keskustelu ei uhkaa demokratiaa, radikaali islam uhkaa.

Anna Stürgkh (Renew). – Madam President, time and time again, the far right speak about protecting children. So let's see what conversion practices do to protect children.

These so-called therapies are not based on any scientific or medical evidence, but there is a lot of evidence about what they do – they increase shame, they increase anxiety, they increase not just suicidal thoughts, but suicide attempts. So when the far right calls for continuing such practices, they break our children. They violate and they abuse them.

So I'd love for them to tell me, what do you actually do to protect our children? But all I see are empty rows. I'm not surprised that they are not participating in this debate because they know about their own hypocrisy. They know that the only time they shout 'protect our children' is as a front for their racism, for their homophobia and for their hatred. But it is exactly that hatred that our kids need to be protected from.

It is about time that the last child in Europe has suffered under the cruel and torturous idea of conversion therapies.

Gordan Bosanac (Verts/ALE). – Madam President, dear colleagues, this was really a pleasure to listen to this debate because I hear a lot of echoing from you supporting what the citizens and activists are also requiring: to ban the conversion practices in the European Union, and I am convinced we will do it.

But we should do more. In my gay life, I haven't met any LGBTQI person who became straight, but also in my gay life, I met more than 100 people who were being homophobic and then they changed, so actually what we can convert, where we can do the progress is, we can heal homophobia.

So, dear Commissioner, let's put more efforts into the health public system and give support to the homophobic people to have access to the mental health support. Heal homophobia – because this really, really works.

Thomas Bajada (S&D). – Madam President,

'I was forced to fake my own funeral.'

'I passed through eight exorcisms.'

'I was told to pray the gay away.'

These are the voices of young Europeans we have failed to protect.

In 2018, this very House already called for a ban of conversion practices. Ten years ago, my country, Malta, was the first in Europe to prove that such a ban is possible. And yet, a decade later, here we are. These practices still persist across the Union. We have been too slow, but over one million citizens have not waited. They demand that Europe acts decisively. Thank you, ACT.

Through these practices, young people are made to believe that who they are is something to fear, to hide, to change. And dear colleagues, a ban alone is not enough. We must also ban the advertising of these practices. This kind of torture has no place in our Union because no one, anyone in Europe, should ever feel and be made to feel that who they are must be corrected.

Bert-Jan Ruissen (ECR). – Voorzitter, de roep om een verbod op conversietherapieën roept grote vragen op. Om te beginnen is de EU niet bevoegd op dit terrein. Alleen daarom moeten we dit verzoek afwijzen. Maar ook de strekking van het hele voorstel is zeer dubieus. Dwang of mishandeling zijn immers al bij wet verboden. Daarom is duidelijk dat de strekking van dit voorstel veel verder gaat dan dat. We moeten het vooral zien tegen de achtergrond van het woke denken, dat iedereen zelf zijn gender kiest, dat twijfel over gender heel goed zou zijn en dat de hulpverlener die twijfel vooral moet voeden. Pastorale gesprekken waarin niet direct bevestigend of aanmoedigend wordt opgetreden, passen kennelijk niet in dat verhaal. Die worden gezien als vervelende stoorzenders die verboden moeten worden. Dat is de gedachte achter dit hele voorstel. Eén ding weet ik zeker: jongeren die worstelen met hun identiteit helpen we hier niet mee.

Raquel García Hermida-Van Der Walle (Renew). – Voorzitter, als het gaat om transpersonen en specifiek jonge mensen die gebruik willen maken van genderbevestigende zorg, staat extreemrechts hier moord en brand te schreeuwen dat we jonge mensen moeten beschermen tegen iets wat hen vanuit woke cultuur — hebben we weer net gehoord — opgelegd zou zijn. Vandaag hebben we het over therapie die precies dat doet: een wereldbeeld opleggen aan jonge mensen. Een therapie waarvan we weten dat ze jonge mensen schaadt, tot zelfmoord leidt en jarenlange trauma's tot gevolg heeft, want "vrijheid van geloof". Maar nee, want het geloof van religieuze fanatici verdient geen vrijheid. Wat wij niet accepteren voor praktijken zoals vrouwelijke genitale verminking, zouden we niet moeten accepteren voor dingen zoals conversietherapie. Dat moet verboden worden.

Vytenis Povilas Andriukaitis (S&D). – Madam President, Commissioner, of course, we know very well how dangerous it is. Don't call it conversion therapy. It has nothing to do with therapy – nothing.

Only in eight of 27 EU Member States have they implemented nationwide bans on conversion practices. But there is significant variation in what the legislation covers. It is very important to know that even where banned, enforcement varies between Member States.

A very, very difficult question: why? Because many practices occur in private or religious settings, making tracking very difficult. We need, first of all, to say very clearly: it's about fundamental human rights. The EU can introduce a ban in all European Union space because it is defending fundamental human rights. I am very, very much with those who argue for a ban.

Cristian Terheş (ECR). – Doamnă președintă, s-a vorbit aici mult despre tortură. Știți ce e tortură? Să-ți trimiți copilul la școală și în loc să învețe să citească, să socotească și să înmulțească, să-ți vină acasă și să-ți spună că nu mai e băiat sau fată, ci e indecis.

Știți ce tortură? În momentul în care un judecător trimite un bărbat pervers să-și ispășească o pedeapsă penală într-o pușcărie de femei, punând femeile respective în pericol, aia e tortură.

Știți ce tortură? Un copil minor care e trimis la școală și e forțat de către profesori să treacă prin ceea ce voi numiți gender affirmation care.

Lăsați copiii în inocența lor. Cine e adult și cine decide să aibă relații homosexuale are tot dreptul să o facă. Nimeni nu persecută în Europa pe cineva care are orientări sexuale de genul acesta.

Lăsați însă copiii să își păstreze inocența lor în școală. Lăsați-i să învețe carte. Lăsați-i să învețe știință și lăsați-i să învețe matematică.

Moritz Körner (Renew). – Frau Präsidentin, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Wir haben eigentlich keine sinnvollen Argumente gegen dieses Verbot der Konversionstherapie gehört. Das einzige Argument, das ich gehört habe, war ein bisschen: Wenn die Jugendlichen und Kinder unsicher sind, dann könnte man in Zukunft auch verbieten, dass die Eltern mit ihnen reden. Das ist so ein Nichtargument, und es zeigt einfach, dass diese Menschen, die das vorgebracht haben, sich noch nie mit Menschen, die zum Beispiel homosexuell sind, beschäftigt haben.

Wer glaubt, dass man einfach so aus Jux und Tollerei sich outet, der hat sich noch nie ernsthaft damit beschäftigt. Es ist eine extrem schwierige Entscheidung – auch heute noch – zu sagen, auch zu seinen Eltern zum Beispiel zu gehen und zu sagen: „Ich glaube, ich bin schwul". Das ist immer noch eine extrem schwierige Entscheidung. Und wer glaubt, dass das so etwas ist wie Werbung und dass man da möglichst irgendwas machen müsse, der hat einfach nicht verstanden, dass immer noch junge Menschen im Zweifel Selbstmord begehen in Europa und dass wir das bekämpfen müssen, statt zusätzlich noch etwas zu tun, um diese Menschen zu unterdrücken, zu missbrauchen für diese schreckliche Agenda. Ich bin da leidenschaftlich, weil ich finde, dass wir in Europa das nicht zulassen dürfen und weil wir unsere Kinder beschützen müssen davor.

Hadja Lahbib, membre de la Commission. – Madame la Présidente, tout d'abord, chers membres du Parlement européen, j'aimerais vous remercier d'avoir contribué à ce débat passionnant et passionné, sans doute l'un des plus passionnants auxquels j'ai assisté. Merci aussi d'avoir partagé vos expériences, vos histoires personnelles, Alessandro Zan, Maria Walsh. Je pense que grâce à votre implication, vos témoignages personnels, on comprend à quel point ces pratiques de conversion sont dangereuses, pénibles, sources de souffrance et peuvent être comparées à de la torture.

Je crois que, grâce à ces témoignages, on comprend à quel point cela peut laisser des traumatismes psychologiques importants et porter atteinte à la vie sur le long terme, voire coûter la vie, comme cela a été dit. Merci aussi d'avoir relevé l'histoire de Benoît. Cela met aussi des noms, des prénoms, des visages sur des histoires. Je crois que c'est important de ne pas rester dans l'abstrait.

Merci aussi à Fabienne Keller d'avoir souligné l'embarras qu'on a à traduire «pratiques de conversion» en francais, parce que «thérapies de conversion», c'est vrai, c'est un peu compliqué, il n'y a rien à soigner effectivement. Donc on devrait trouver peut-être une autre forme d'appellation pour parler de ces «thérapies de conversion» autrement et qui sont lourdement impactantes pour l'être humain. Je prendrai en compte aussi tout ce qui a été dit.

Merci à Margarita de la Pisa Carrión. Je crois aussi qu'il faut être très prudent, effectivement. Nous sommes tous appelés à faire des choix, à certains moments, à certaines étapes d'évolution de notre vie en tant qu'être humain. Et c'est pour cela, justement, qu'il faut accompagner chaque enfant, chaque adolescent, avec toute la bienveillance, l'attention et l'écoute nécessaires pour lui permettre in fine de faire son choix, son choix à lui, sans rien lui imposer.

As put forward in our LGBTIQ+ strategy, the Commission will carefully consider the best way forward and take appropriate action to combat conversion practices.

We will take the Citizens' Initiative into account. We will focus in particular on how to support Member States while fully respecting the division of competences based on the Treaties as stated in the registration decision.

Today's debate and the hearing of 2 March are important steps in our assessment. We will take into account all the views expressed today. The Commission will present its reply to the Citizens' Initiative by 20 May.

I totally agree with Cristina Guarda, who said that it is not a question of being on the left or the right of the political spectrum, or a question of religion or ideology, but a question of simply being human.

Kira Marie Peter-Hansen, rapporteur. – Madam President, tomorrow we are voting on the CMDI packages. It's one of the most important pieces of banking legislation that we have.

Let me first start as a rapporteur by thanking the other groups for their constructive cooperation, especially Irene and Luděk, as co-rapporteurs, and especially also Gilles for having to be in the middle of three rapporteurs. I appreciate very much the cooperation and as well to the Commission and the Council for your support and efforts to find an agreement.

As you all know, the 2008 global financial crisis exposed the devastating consequences of unmanaged bank failures. Taxpayers across Europe were forced to bail out failing banks, and the economic and social costs were disastrous. Since then, we've all worked to build a resolution framework that ensures that that never happens again., but that framework has not worked as intended for all banks. In practice, many small and medium banks have lacked the loss-absorbing capacity to enter resolution, leaving national authorities with no real alternative to liquidation or taxpayer-funded bailouts.

The CMDI reform addresses these gaps. By broadening access to industry-funded safety nets, by clarifying and strengthening the public interest assessment and by improving depositor protection, we are making the resolution framework more credible and more consistent for banks of all size.

For the Greens/EFA, this package is also an important step towards completing the banking union, a project that we have long supported but which sadly remains unfinished. Our priorities in these negotiations have been clear. First of all, we wanted to make sure that taxpayers and depositors are protected. Secondly, we've pushed for a framework that works not just for the largest banks, but also for the small and medium-sized institutions. Thirdly, we've used this to remain committed to completing the banking union, including by creating a European deposit insurance scheme as the third pillar.

Today's reform is an important step towards the completion of the banking union, but it's not the end of the road.

Before I conclude, allow me also to make one procedural observation before we vote on this file tomorrow because this legislative package consists of three separate files, each with one rapporteur. I say from experience that coordinating across three rapporteurs on a single legislative package creates real challenges. In this regard, I would like to once again acknowledge the efforts of my co-rapporteurs and the shadows in navigating this complexity, and also the secretariat for the support. Driving the process forward efficiently and ensuring cohesion and consistency between files while respecting the mandates and priorities of each rapporteurs is a difficult exercise, and in this regard, I also want to wish the three rapporteurs on the SIU package and the Commission the best of luck, as the Parliament has chosen to do it in the same way. However, I also hope that we, as a Parliament, will raise some reflections on whether these procedural choices serve Parliament's interest or the legislative output that we want to achieve effectively.

Leaving the procedural note aside, I want to once again thank the other groups and the Commission and the Council for their constructive engagement, and I look forward to making another step with you towards completing the banking union.

Luděk Niedermayer, rapporteur. – Madam President, the CMDI work that we will conclude tomorrow started in 2023 and it represents an important step in improving the banking architecture of the EU.

But let me go at the beginning a little bit more farther in the history. The banking union itself remains unfinished more than 10 years after it was launched. Some important parts were introduced quickly, but the overall framework is still incomplete. The reason is that some Member States are not happy to continue and finish it. Fragmentation of the European banking market persists and barriers prevent banks to operate effectively across the single market. That is why we are losing the efficiency, and customers, firms and citizens pay a higher price.

The CMDI proposal was not the revolution in the crisis management framework, but it is the evolution – the evolution that should demonstrate that we can do better. We can move further. Long and difficult negotiations prove that we are able to find compromises if we have in mind that the goal is to improve the situation.

My lesson from the negotiation is that the main barrier in the progress is on the political side, not on the technical side. And also narrow, well-defined reforms can be blocked by the political positions. If this continues, badly needed progress in key economic agenda of the EU, removing the single market barriers, is at stake, and we could fail in delivering improvement and strengthening of the EU economy.

Mario Draghi warned us that Europe faced a choice between further integration or gradual decline. In this context, deeper integration of the banking market has no option. It is an absolute necessity and delivering on the banking union is one of the easiest things to do.

To talking about the CMDI, and I guess Kira said it very clearly: this is an important improvement, but not a huge improvement in the crisis management frameworks. It improves the ability of the small banks to be resolved and reduce the cost of the potential banking crisis. It makes it easier to use the resolution tools instead of liquidation, where there is the public interest, helping preserve the critical function and the financial stability it would significantly cost for the economy.

I am glad that we enhanced the situation of DGS, improved the flexibility and also kept the safeguards for using such funds. It strengthens the single resolution framework and includes better cooperation between the Member States' authority and the authorities of the EU. Overall, the file improves the financial stability, makes the system more credible, flexible and better prepared for possible crises. And it is important today, despite the fact that the European banks have proven very strong resilience in past few years.

To conclude why the outcome is the compromise: it represents not huge, but very important improvement of EU architecture. The success in the negotiation of the difficult package creates good conditions for being successful in improving the single market and concluding the banking union. I guess this is what we have to do because otherwise it would be hard to reach a stronger European economy, more resilience and future prosperity. Once more, let me thank the others and I will keep the thanks for the rest of the team to my concluding remarks.

Irene Tinagli, *rapporteur. – Madam President, Commissioner, colleagues, on CMDI we have delivered a strong, balanced and genuinely European result. This agreement is not only a technical improvement of the framework, it is above all a political sign. It shows that when we choose integration over fragmentation, we can strengthen financial stability, better protect depositors and significantly reduce the likelihood that taxpayers are called upon.

From the outset, we set clear objectives to strengthen the crisis management framework, expand the toolkit available to resolution authorities, make progress in harmonising national instruments and reinforce European-level solutions.

Today, we can say that these objectives have been met. The introduction of the bridge the gap mechanism is a key achievement. It makes resolution more credible and more accessible, especially for small and medium-sized banks, which in the past often faced a binary and inefficient choice between disorderly liquidation and public intervention.

This tool allows, in specific and well-defined circumstances, the combination of loss-absorbing instruments issued by banks with resources from national deposit guarantee schemes. In doing so, it enables institutions to reach the 8 % total liabilities and own-funds threshold required to access the Single Resolution Fund.

This is a structural improvement. It means that a larger pool of banks can still be resolved in an orderly manner, without resorting to depositor bailing or public funds. It strengthens the credibility of the entire European crisis management framework.

Throughout the negotiations, we worked to make this mechanism truly operational. Relying on technical assessments, we removed the overly restrictive conditions while preserving a prudent architecture where MREL remains the first line of defence and moral hazard is avoided.

We also addressed the key asymmetries that would have disadvantaged countries with smaller deposit guarantee schemes, eliminated blocking mechanisms that could have paralysed the tool, and ensured a largely consistent application across banking-union and non-banking-union countries.

Another key achievement has been the defence of truly European governance. We preserved the independence and integrity of the Single Resolution Board, resisting attempts to rationalise decision-making. We recognise the concerns of some Member States, which are often excluded from supervision and crisis management of banks operating on their territory, while still bearing responsibilities through their national deposit guarantee schemes.

However, the answer to this asymmetry is not to roll back integration, but to deepen it, starting with a genuinely European deposit insurance scheme. Safeguarding a strong and independent European authority is essential for credibility, consistency and legal certainty and remains a cornerstone of a fully functioning banking union.

At the same time, we made meaningful progress on harmonisation: from preventive and alternative measures to the treatment of institutional protection schemes, we have integrated national specificities into a more coherent European framework.

So what matters here are the achievements – robust and solid – but also their direction. The negotiations have delivered a balanced and credible framework, reopening the prospect of completing the banking union.

So looking ahead, these must now translate into renewed political momentum to take the final steps towards a truly European deposit insurance scheme.

Maria Luís Albuquerque, *Member of the Commission. – Madam President, honourable Members, this proposal on crisis management and deposit insurance (CMDI) is strengthening the foundations of Europe's banking sector. We have reached a significant milestone in our collective journey to safeguard financial stability across the European Union, ensuring that our banking sector remains resilient, competitive and trustworthy. This progress is the result of your commitment and engagement, and of the Council, leading to a political agreement on the reform of the bank crisis management and deposit insurance framework. I would like to personally thank to the rapporteurs for their work on this file, recognising the challenges of the way it was built or how it worked.

So, the reform of the CMDI framework builds on the lessons of past situations. Our endeavour began in the aftermath of the 2008 global financial crisis and the euro area sovereign debt crisis, which exposed vulnerabilities that demanded action. In response, we established the banking union, a pivotal advancement in strengthening our financial infrastructure. Central to this was the introduction of the single resolution mechanism (SRM), which has an objective to efficiently address banking failures without overburdening taxpayers.

A decade since the establishment of the SRM, crisis management remains a priority. We face new challenges driven by technological advancements, interconnectedness, and emerging geopolitical tensions, all of which necessitate our attention.

The negotiations on CMDI were challenging, yet guided by the goal of upholding the reform's objectives. Open-minded and fair dialogue among all stakeholders was crucial in reaching political agreement. The revised framework will give additional tools to resolution authorities to manage failures, especially of small and medium-sized banks. By broadening the resolution scope and ensuring depositor protection, it aims to preserve financial stability and avoid economic disruption. The improved CMDI framework reinforces the essential promise of the banking union – that bank failures can be managed effectively, fairly and in the interests of businesses, citizens and society.

Isabel Benjumea Benjumea, *en nombre del Grupo PPE. – Señora presidente, señora comisaria, el acuerdo que mañana votamos es una gran noticia: es un paso adelante para reforzar la estabilidad financiera y mejorar nuestro marco de gestión de las crisis bancarias. Por eso, quiero felicitar a los colegisladores por este acuerdo.

Como decía, es un primer paso, pero si queremos un sistema bancario más fuerte, integrado, resiliente y capaz de competir con otras jurisdicciones, tenemos que culminar el proyecto de la unión bancaria, completando con ambición el sistema europeo de garantía de depósitos.

El sector bancario no necesita más fragmentación, necesita más integración, reglas claras y menos burocracia para poder desarrollar plenamente su función: hacer que la economía circule, financiar proyectos y mejorar la vida de las pymes y, en general, de los ciudadanos europeos.

Y, hablando de la unión bancaria, quiero aprovechar para pedirle a la señora comisaria que en el documento en el que están trabajando sobre la competitividad del sector bancario hagan una mención específica a la importancia de conseguir la unión bancaria y que, además, incluyan medidas concretas, emplazando, por ejemplo, a las autoridades supervisoras a que trabajen por luchar por la competitividad del sector bancario, como ha hecho el Reino Unido.

En definitiva, no podemos afirmar que defendemos el mercado único y, al mismo tiempo, levantar barreras. Europa no ganará relevancia global con mercados bancarios encerrados en fronteras nacionales.

Jonás Fernández, *en nombre del Grupo S&D. – Señora presidenta, yo creo que hoy es un momento de felicitarnos, un momento en el que, después de largos años de negociación, podremos votar mañana un buen acuerdo que no es una revolución en el marco de resolución bancaria, pero que sin duda es un paso en la buena dirección y es un paso firme.

Quisiera también congratularnos como Parlamento por el trabajo estrecho entre las fuerzas proeuropeas en una negociación con el Consejo realmente difícil. Yo creo que no es el momento de lanzar reproches a nadie, pero es justo decir que el texto del Consejo complicaba enormemente la vocación, el objetivo, de la propuesta de la Comisión.

Cuando hablamos de simplificar las normas, entre ellas las normas bancarias o las normas de resolución, hay que ser honestos y decir que la posición del Consejo era cualquier cosa menos simplificadora del marco de resolución. Por lo tanto, yo creo que este Parlamento y las fuerzas proeuropeas con los ponentes de distintos grupos y los ponentes alternativos que han trabajado intensamente han conseguido de alguna manera llevar al Consejo a un texto más practicable.

Por lo tanto, esa colaboración entre las fuerzas europeas debe continuar y debe ser la base de lo que nos queda por delante. Y ahí hablamos del informe de competitividad y de lo que queda pendiente en la unión bancaria.

Yo creo que es importante que, en esta reflexión que nos tiene que llevar a ver cómo podemos mejorar nuestro sistema bancario, seamos capaces de centrar los esfuerzos para mejorar la competitividad en consolidar la unión bancaria, en consolidar el mercado único, en eliminar las barreras nacionales que impiden explotar las eficiencias, que impiden movilizar la liquidez y el capital de los bancos a lo largo de la unión bancaria, que permiten simplificar de verdad el marco de depósitos teniendo un Sistema Europeo de Seguro de Depósitos, y que facilitan también las operaciones corporativas transfronterizas.

En fin, la agenda es complicada. Es día de felicitaciones hoy, y estamos pendientes y emplazamos a la Comisión a seguir trabajando.

Jaroslav Knot, *on behalf of the PfE Group. – Madam President, dear colleagues, Madam Commissioner, I propose to support this file as protecting depositors and preserving financial stability is essential. At the same time, the framework introduces a broader set of tools, deposit guarantee schemes, including earlier intervention in certain situations. The key question is, therefore, how these tools are applied in practice. The use of the risk-cost principle must remain transparent, well-grounded and consistently applied to ensure confidence in the system.

Moreover, the framework must preserve the right incentives across the system. Stability relies not only on intervention tools, but also on responsibility and sound risk management. We should therefore closely monitor the implementation of this framework, and remain ready to adjust it where necessary to ensure that interventions remain limited and do not create unintended incentives. Intervention must remain the exception, not the expectation.

Marlena Maląg, *w imieniu grupy ECR. – Pani Przewodnicząca! Czy da się wypracować dobre regulacje? Okazuje się, że tak. Szczególnie, gdy w ich centrum jest człowiek. Klient małego banku, często w małym mieście. W Polsce to bank spółdzielczy, w którym klient jest znany z imienia i nazwiska, a nie tylko po numerze konta.

CMDI to kawałek dobrej roboty. Szczególnie cieszy, że przyjęte rozwiązania są przyjazne dla mniejszych banków. Systemy ochrony międzyinstytucjonalnej, mechanizm DGS Bridge, szczególnie kryterium interesu publicznego – to bardzo potrzebne zmiany. Bo interes publiczny to nie tylko stabilność systemu. To także dobro lokalnej społeczności. Brawo! Pierwszy krok zrobiony!

Pamiętajmy, że małe banki są fundamentem europejskiego ekosystemu finansowego. Tymczasem dziś muszą spełniać te same wymogi co największe instytucje. To zabija konkurencję i lokalność. A bez konkurencji tracą klienci, szczególnie kredytobiorcy.

Gilles Boyer, *au nom du groupe Renew. – Madame la Présidente, Madame la Commissaire, nous avons beaucoup travaillé avec les trois rapporteurs sur ce dossier, avec Kira, Irene et Luděk, que je remercie. Nous avons beaucoup travaillé et, en fait, j'espère que nous avons travaillé pour rien, parce que ça signifierait que la prochaine crise financière que nous avons préparée ici ne surviendra jamais.

Si elle survient malgré tout, c'est possible, je crois que nous avons ici de nouveaux outils précieux qui permettent de réagir: d'abord, qui permettent de réagir rapidement pour éviter la contagion; qui permettent de réagir dans la solidarité européenne; qui permettent de réagir pour résoudre la crise sans utiliser l'argent du contribuable européen, sans récompenser les banques qui prennent des risques inconsidérés et en protégeant l'épargne des Européens.

Je crois que nous devons aller plus loin vers une véritable union bancaire et une union de l'épargne et de l'investissement pour continuer à allier compétitivité et sécurité financière.

Siegbert Frank Droese, *im Namen der ESN-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin, Frau Kommissarin, verehrte Kollegen! Ich kann mich diesen vielen positiven Worten über dieses Papier nicht unbedingt anschließen. Was uns hier als Fortschritt verkauft wird, ist in Wahrheit ein weiterer Schritt hin zu mehr Zentralisierungen und zur Haftungsunion im europäischen Bankensystem.

Die Ausweitung der Einlagensicherung, die flexiblere Nutzung von Sicherheitsfonds und die stärkere grenzüberschreitende Zusammenarbeit klingen gut. Doch sie bergen erhebliche Risiken: Nationale Verantwortung wird verwässert, und solide wirtschaftende Banken und Staaten haften zunehmend für die Fehler ihrer Nachbarn. Die geplanten Eingriffsmöglichkeiten in einer frühen Phase werfen Fragen auf: Wer entscheidet, wann eingegriffen wird, nach welchen Kriterien, und wie stellen wir sicher, dass dies nicht politisch, sondern ausschließlich nach klar marktwirtschaftlichen Prinzipien geschieht?

Auch bei der Abwicklung und Finanzierung sehen wir eine gefährliche Entwicklung: immer komplexere Mechanismen, die am Ende vor allem eins tun: Risiken verlagern, statt sie zu reduzieren. Für die ESN-Gruppe ist klar: Ein stabiles Bankensystem braucht klare Haftungsregeln, Transparenz und nationale Verantwortung – keine versteckte Vergemeinschaftung von Risiken durch die Hintertür.

Europa braucht weniger Bürokratie und mehr wirtschaftliche Vernunft, nicht neue Instrumente der Eurokraten, die am Ende Vertrauen untergraben.

Angelika Winzig (PPE). – Frau Präsidentin, Frau Kommissarin! Morgen schließen wir ein wichtiges Kapitel für die europäische Bankenunion ab. Das Ziel der CMDI-Reform war von Anfang an klar: Wir wollen den Steuerzahler schützen und die Finanzstabilität sichern.

Für mich war dabei eines entscheidend, nämlich die Verhältnismäßigkeit. Wir haben erfolgreich verhindert, dass bewährte nationale Sicherheitssysteme, wie wir sie gerade bei Sparkassen und Genossenschaftsbanken haben, durch die Hintertür ausgehöhlt werden. Meine Bilanz ist daher positiv: Erstens haben wir einen Schutz der Sparer erreicht und stärken so das Vertrauen in den Binnenmarkt. Zweitens betonen wir Eigenverantwortung. Im Krisenfall haften zuerst die Banken selbst und nicht der Bürger. Drittens haben wir eine europäische Lösung gefunden, die lokale Besonderheiten respektiert, statt Einheitslösungen zu erzwingen.

Damit sagen wir Ja zur Kooperation, aber Nein zu einer schleichenden Schuldengemeinschaft. Wir machen Europa krisensicher, ohne die Stabilität unserer bewährten nationalen Säulen zu opfern. Das ist ein guter Kompromiss für die Bevölkerung und auch für die Wirtschaft.

Pierre Pimpie (PfE). – Madame la Présidente, chers collègues, le Fonds de garantie des dépôts doit protéger nos concitoyens.

Ce n'est pas un filet de sécurité pour les banques en difficulté. Ce glissement n'est pas sain. Il brouille la finalité du système et restreint la responsabilité des établissements bancaires. Les épargnants ne doivent pas, même de façon indirecte, supporter le coût des choix de gestion qu'ils n'ont ni faits ni validés.

La protection des dépôts doit rester une ligne claire, lisible et crédible. Nous devons protéger les épargnants, maintenir une logique de prudence et refuser que les mécanismes de secours deviennent des instruments de gestion convenus. Nous ne voulons pas de cette dérive vers une mutualisation toujours plus large des risques.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Arvoisa puhemies, nyt kaikki säästäjät kuulolla. Eikö kuulostakin hienolta, kun täällä puhutaan pankkien, talletussuojan ja kriisinratkaisuvalmiuksien kehittämisestä? Talletukset paremmin turvassa ja kriiseiltäkin vältytään.

Mutta todellisuus on karu, komissio haluaa pelastaa konkurssikypsiä eurooppalaispankkeja suomalaisten säästäjien selkänahalla. Ei toden totta käy minulle. Jos EU:ssa on pankkeja, jotka eivät kykene selviämään, sijoittajien tappiot eivät kuulu suomalaisten maksettaviksi. Mitä varoitti Suomen eduskunta? Sitä, että nyt ehdotettavat muutokset saattavat johtaa siihen, että komissio ehdottaa kansallisten talletussuojajärjestelmien yhdistämistä yhteiseksi pankkiunionin talletussuojajärjestelmäksi. Ei toden totta käy minulle. Jos jäsenmaissa ei yksin pystytä takaamaan kansalaisten talletuksia, tämän takaaminen ei kuulu suomalaisten maksettavaksi. Piste.

Maria Luís Albuquerque, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, honourable Members, this achievement is indeed an improvement to the existing framework. But, most importantly, it moves us one step closer to completing the banking union.

As we move forward, we must not become complacent. Persistent fragmentation of EU banking markets is preventing our economy from reaping the benefits of a genuine single banking market. The CMDI review serves as a catalyst to strengthen our single market, but more work remains to be done. We must focus on completing the banking union and implementing rules that push us towards a robust, integrated competitive banking sector.

Looking ahead, our report on the competitiveness of the EU banking sector, due in Q3 is a key deliverable of our savings and investments union strategy. It will put forward our vision for a competitive European banking sector supportive of the competitiveness of the European economy.

I want to acknowledge the constructive engagement of this Parliament and the Council throughout CMDI negotiations. The result reflects compromises but also progress – a balance between national concerns and the share the European good.

Let us persevere in laying the foundations for a banking union that aligns with the aspirations of European citizens and businesses who want the reassurance that their savings are protected against future challenges.

Kira Marie Peter-Hansen, *rapporteur. – Madam President, thank you very much and thanks for all the remarks and the contributions. As Jonás said, today is a day where we should congratulate each other, because this package shows that, despite political disagreements and despite national specificities, we can actually deliver on Europe's economy and resilience, together, in a broad political majority. So I will just end by congratulating you and then giving the floor back to Luděk.

Luděk Niedermayer, *rapporteur. – Madam President, thank you very much, and thank you, Kira. First of all, I am very encouraged by the clear support and understanding of the importance of this work by the majority of speakers here today. Let me also join others in thanking very much the rapporteurs, the shadow rapporteurs. We should not forget that without the strong engagement of the Polish Presidency, it would be very difficult to strike the deal.

Also, let me thank the Secretariat and all our staff. But most importantly, I want to encourage the Commission to submit the proposals that would move us further in single market integration, in completing the banking union, because this is what Europe needs and we should deliver on that quickly.

So, once more, thank you, and I see this as not the end of the work, but a continuation.

Irene Tinagli, *rapporteur. – Madam President, as I said earlier, I think that CMDI is not an end point, it's a decisive step towards completing the banking union. I think that what these reforms make clear is that the more we operate within the current architecture of the banking union, the more its structural limitations come up and become apparent.

So we have addressed many of the technical obstacles; what remains now is a political choice. If we truly want to ensure a level playing field, strengthen confidence and unlock the full potential of financial integration – which we always mention – then we must take the next step. I think we know what this step is, I already said it, I think the next step is a European deposit insurance scheme.

I know many people thinks it's difficult, but believe me, when we started CMDI, many people said the same, and they told us: 'you will not be able to strike an agreement on this one'. But we did, we did and we got a good result. So this should encourage all of us to push and keep moving forward.

Die Präsidentin. – Als nächster Punkt der Tagesordnung folgt die Aussprache über die Anfrage zur mündlichen Beantwortung an die Kommission über die Umsetzung der Richtlinie über die Behandlung von kommunalem Abwasser und Risiken für die Versorgungssicherheit bei Arzneimitteln von Oliver Schenk, Peter Liese und Tomislav Sokol im Namen der PPE-Fraktion (O-000013/2026 – B10-0008/2026) (2026/2652(RSP)).

Oliver Schenk, Verfasser. – Sehr geehrte Frau Präsidentin, Frau Kommissarin, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Wir diskutieren heute Abend ein Thema, das technisch klingt – Abwasserbehandlung. Doch in Wahrheit geht es um eine Grundsatzfrage: Wie verbinden wir Umweltschutz mit einer sicheren Arzneimittelversorgung? Die Ziele der neuen kommunalen Abwasserrichtlinie sind richtig. Die vierte Reinigungsstufe wirkt. Sie ist ein Fortschritt für unsere Gewässer. Aber der Weg dorthin wirft zentrale Fragen auf. Denn mit der erweiterten Herstellerverantwortung verlangen wir hohe Kosten auf die Pharmaindustrie und greifen damit direkt in die Arzneimittelversorgung ein. Und genau hier liegt das Problem. Unsere Versorgung ist bereits heute fragil. Lieferengpässe sind in vielen Mitgliedstaaten Alltag, und sie nehmen weiter zu. Gleichzeitig arbeiten wir hier im Parlament etwa mit dem Critical Medicines Act daran, die Versorgung zu stabilisieren. Umso widersprüchlicher ist es, wenn wir gleichzeitig neue Belastungen schaffen, die genau diese Ziele gefährden.

Besonders betroffen sind Generika. Sie sichern rund 70 Prozent der Versorgung. Sie werden zu stark regulierten Preisen produziert und treffen auf ein Gesundheitssystem, das unter massivem Kostendruck steht. Preiserhöhungen sind faktisch ausgeschlossen, das heißt, die Kosten bleiben bei den Herstellern. Die Folge ist absehbar: wirtschaftlicher Druck ohne echte ökologische Lenkungswirkung. Am Ende drohen Produktionsrückgänge und weitere Engpässe. Das Risiko tragen die Patientinnen und Patienten. Wir müssen deshalb ehrlich sein: Das Verursacherprinzip ist richtig, ein Grundpfeiler unserer Umweltpolitik. Aber im Gesundheitsbereich stößt es an Grenzen. Andere Länder wie die Schweiz zeigen, dass breitere Finanzierungsmodelle möglich sind. Deshalb brauchen wir jetzt Klarheit. Wie belastbar sind die Kostenschätzungen? Wie verhindern wir neue Engpässe? Und sind Sie bereit, einen Stop-the-Clock-Mechanismus zu prüfen? Europa braucht saubere Gewässer. Aber Europa braucht auch eine sichere und bezahlbare Arzneimittelversorgung. Beides darf nicht gegeneinander ausgespielt werden, beides muss zusammengehen. Darum geht es.

Jessika Roswall, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, honourable Members, thank you for this opportunity to discuss a vital topic for European citizens and our industry. Strong competitive pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries are, and will remain, a central pillar of the EU. So too is our commitment to environmental and public health, and to water resilience. Micropollutants in water bodies impact negatively on the environment and public health. The revised Urban Wastewater Treatment Directive, agreed by the co-legislators in 2024, introduced an extended producer responsibility to meet the cost of tackling these issues in line with the 'polluter pays' principle.

Pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries have been identified as the most responsible for micropollutants reaching urban wastewater. However, I want to stress that extended producer responsibility covers the cost of the most advanced quaternary treatment only. The cost of the primary, the secondary and tertiary treatment are exclusively borne by public budgets and citizens.

Honourable Members, since I took office, I have visited wastewater treatment facilities, I have met with the pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries, I have listened carefully to their concerns. Last December, the Commission services presented an updated study in light of the many additional studies conducted by national authorities and industries. I know that the numbers differ a lot and – just like you – I wanted to know why. For example, some numbers are not based on the narrow scope of the final trilogue agreement, and so they will naturally overestimate the cost.

But a number of the more recent studies provide valuable additional evidence, including actual experience from Switzerland, Denmark and Germany. Our research centre looked at this – the analysis indicated that by 2045, when the directive is fully implemented, the potential cost of removing micropollutants could amount to EUR 2.70 to 3.20 per citizen per year. This does not indicate a fundamental change of cost estimate compared to the initial impact assessment at this stage. Still, we need to be prudent as medicines are critical – the Commission is committed to ensuring that no action results in shortages of medicines, and will work closely with Member States to avoid unintended consequences, undermining the availability of medicines.

So, how do we get there? Firstly, the directive will allow flexibility for Member States and the industry to ensure the affordability and availability of specific products, such as generics. Secondly, the Commission will step up our work with Member States and all stakeholders, including the pharmaceutical and cosmetic industries, and we will share best practices to avoid unintended consequences on price and availability. And, thirdly, we must learn from practical experience, because, by 2033, about 10–20 % of the treatment plans will be in place – this will also allow us to evaluate the directive based on real life experience.

Finally, let me just stress that the revised directive applies to all cosmetic and pharma products on the EU market, including those produced in third countries. I understand the concerns that some of you have, which is why the Commission takes the implementation of these rules very seriously, and I am committed to explain our work so that we can continue to protect human health and our environment, ensure the supply of medicines, and support a strong pharma and cosmetic sector here in Europe.

Peter Liese, im Namen der PPE-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Es ist doch klar: Wir alle wollen sauberes Wasser. Trotzdem stellen sich hier Fragen im Zusammenhang mit dieser Gesetzgebung. Es sind zu viele Fragen offen aus meiner Sicht. Erstens: Wir haben bestehende Regeln in der EU, die seit Jahrzehnten beschlossen sind und in vielen Bereichen noch immer nicht umgesetzt sind. Und die Antworten, die ich von Mitarbeitern der Kommission dazu bekommen habe, haben mich eher verstört, als dass sie mich beruhigt haben. Ich habe nicht gehört, die Kommission wird da jetzt härter rangehen und erst einmal dafür sorgen, dass bestehende Gesetze umgesetzt werden, bevor wir mit neuen Belastungen kommen.

Dann wird immer von der Flexibilität geredet. Aber Flexibilität gibt keine Planungssicherheit. Und wenn jemand überlegt, ob er in Europa in die Produktion von Arzneimitteln, von Generika, die wir dringend brauchen, investiert, dann wird dem nicht helfen, wenn wir sagen, es gibt doch Flexibilität. Dann wird er im Zweifel nicht investieren, und dann haben wir ein Problem. Und wir wollen mit dem Critical Medicine Act die Produktion von Arzneimitteln in Europa anreizen. Und wir müssen höllisch aufpassen, dass wir durch eine Implementierung dieser Gesetzgebung nicht das Gegenteil erreichen. Ja, das Parlament hat diese Regelung beschlossen, aber wir hatten im Detail durchaus andere Vorstellungen. Und warum gibt es überhaupt Omnibusse? Alles, was wir in der letzten Periode beschlossen haben, darf überprüft werden, auch diese Richtlinie. Lassen Sie uns erst mal Zeit nehmen, ein Jahr Verlängerung. Die Lösung ist nicht einfach, aber wir müssen uns noch einmal zusammensetzen und bessere Lösungen finden.

L'obiettivo di questa direttiva, cioè migliorare le condizioni di sicurezza e salubrità delle acque europee, non è obiettivo da trattare con leggerezza.

Mi rammarico che su un tema così importante e delicato il Partito popolare abbia deciso di affiancarsi, ancora una volta, ai partiti di estrema destra. Sono dispiaciuta perché è una deriva pericolosa, non solo per questo provvedimento specifico, ma per l'Europa in generale.

Abbiamo visto il buon lavoro che possiamo fare se i gruppi europeisti negoziano in buona fede, ad esempio col pacchetto farmaceutico appena approvato in via definitiva. Mi auguro che il Partito popolare se ne renda conto al più presto.

Come socialisti, siamo disponibili a negoziare al fine di aggiustare aspetti tecnici di questa normativa, verificare i dati e i numeri sulla base di evidenze scientifiche. Siamo da sempre convinti che i farmaci europei debbano essere accessibili a tutti e a prezzi equi. Se ci sono aspetti da valutare, discutiamone.

Ogni decisione che il gruppo socialista ha preso in passato e che prenderà in futuro è sempre orientata alla difesa del bene pubblico, nell'interesse dei pazienti e dei cittadini.

Per questo motivo difendiamo l'impianto e gli obiettivi di questa normativa; e come socialisti, dunque, non saremo disponibili a rinunciare al principio di "chi inquina, paga". Non saremo disposti a sfasciare una legge che punta ad acque pulite e sicure, così come non saremo disposti a scaricare il costo dell'inquinamento sui cittadini.

Mi rivolgo al Partito popolare e a tutti i gruppi della maggioranza che sostiene la Commissione: lavoriamo insieme per un compromesso ragionevole, senza farci trascinare dai populismi. Aggiustiamo la norma, se necessario e se sostenuto da dati e ricerche indipendenti, ma non distruggiamo un lavoro prezioso fatto a difesa dell'ambiente e a tutela della salute dei cittadini.

Ondřej Knotek, *on behalf of the PfE Group. – Madam President, Commissioner, good evening. No one questions protection of the water environment, but our measures shall not contradict. And I am afraid that our global rivals must be laughing sometimes when it comes to EU actions, because look what we are doing. The critical medicines act – I would say a very good proposal – tries to get medicine production back on EU soil, and now implementing the European Urban Wastewater Treatment Directive basically expels medicine out of European soil. So this does not make sense.

What was wrong for this directive? The Commission provided most likely very wrong calculations, targets and also assessments. So I really believe that now it's time to stop the clock and invite the Commission for new assessment, together with the industries, so that we do not fight about the figures, that there is real clarity, and also then provide the review that would also take responsibility for the non-EU players.

Also, allow me to state that environmental measures and standards in Europe are already on an extremely high level, so further uncontrolled pressure in this direction could be a showstopper for the EU as a global player. So I'm afraid we cannot do more for climate, or not much more than the others do, and definitely not on the cost of availability of medicines, and especially generics, in the EU.

Mentre la Commissione parla di costi sostenibili, gli operatori denunciano incertezza e mancanza di chiarezza, soprattutto sul meccanismo di responsabilità estesa del produttore, tant'è che si scaricano oneri pesanti su farmaceutico e cosmetico senza criteri trasparenti e senza una valutazione seria di tutte le fonti di inquinamento.

Questo non è equilibrio: è una distorsione che crea un problema reale di equità e di certezza giuridica. E non è solo una questione industriale.

Il rischio concreto è che aumentino i prezzi dei farmaci essenziali. E i medicinali non sono beni qualsiasi: sono diritti, sono salute.

Difendere l'ambiente è assolutamente giusto, farlo scaricando i costi sui pazienti no.

Vlad Vasile-Voiculescu, *în numele grupului Renew. – Doamnă președintă, vorbim despre două lucruri extrem de importante. Vorbim despre mediu și vorbim despre sănătate. Ambele sunt lucruri esențiale. Vorbim despre cele mai importante lucruri pe care le are omul, precum sănătatea lui, respectiv de ceea ce vom lăsa mai departe.

Este esențial să ne asigurăm că toate tratamentele rămân accesibile pentru pacienți și că avem cifre clare privind impactul financiar al noilor măsuri.

În același timp, principiul consacrat în Tratatul de funcționare a UE, conform căruia poluatorul plătește, trebuie respectat, așa încât costurile să fie asumate de cei care pun pe piață substanțe care generează micropoluare.

Doar prin echilibru, și acesta este cuvântul, echilibru între protecția mediului și accesul la medicamente, putem avea o politică sustenabilă și corectă.

Jutta Paulus, im Namen der Verts/ALE-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin, Frau Kommissarin, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Familien, Rentner, kleine Betriebe: Sie kämpfen jeden Tag mit steigenden Preisen an der Tankstelle, im Supermarkt – demnächst vielleicht noch mit höherer Mehrwertsteuer; wenn es nach der CDU geht, zukünftig auch auf der Wasserrechnung. Denn statt das Verursacherprinzip ernst zu nehmen und die mit überwältigender Mehrheit beschlossene kommunale Abwasserrichtlinie adäquat umzusetzen, stellen Sie sich auf die Seite der Pharma- und der Kosmetikindustrie.

Die vierte Reinigungsstufe für Kläranlagen ist entscheidend für sauberes Wasser in unseren Flüssen und letztlich dann auch in unseren Städten und Gemeinden. Aber die Kommunen stehen finanziell unter Druck, die Kassen sind klamm. Deshalb gilt: Wer verschmutzt, muss zahlen. Ob man in Europa produziert oder in Indien oder in China, ist egal – so steht es im Gesetz. Genau das bedeutet ja Verursacherprinzip!

Alles andere ist ungerecht, kurzsichtig und ein fatales Signal in Zeiten steigender Lebenshaltungskosten. Sauberes Wasser darf keine Frage des Geldbeutels sein.

Per Clausen, for The Left-Gruppen. – Fru Formand!

Vi står her, fordi den konservative EPP-Gruppe vil diskutere og udfordre en aftale, som kan sikre en forsvarlig rensning af industriens spildevand.

En aftale, de selv har været med til at indgå og stemme for, og en aftale, der sikrer, at de store virksomheder, der forurener mest, skal betale for det - i stedet for at det er borgerne, skatteyderne.

Jeg har godt konstateret, at industrien er utilfreds over, at de skal tage det her ansvar.

Men jeg vil stille tre spørgsmål, som jeg i grunden synes er vigtigere end det spørgsmål, som EPP har rejst.

For det første:

Hvorfor arbejder I aktivt på at underminere en aftale, I selv har været med til at forhandle og indgå, og som I stemte for?

Hvorfor synes I, at alle skatteydere skal være med til at betale den ekstraregning, der kommer fra nogle ganske få, meget klart identificerede industrier, som er industrier, som vel at mærke har et meget stort overskud?

Det synes jeg er de relevante spørgsmål, som vi burde få et svar på.

Anja Arndt, im Namen der ESN-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin, meine Damen und Herren! Diese neue Richtlinie hat gefährliche Nebenwirkungen. Sie gefährdet ausgerechnet unsere Versorgung mit günstigen Medikamenten.

Es geht darum, in Kläranlagen eine vierte Reinigungsstufe einzubauen, um Medikamentenrückstände aus dem Abwasser zu entfernen. Natürlich wollen wir saubere Abwässer, aber nun sollen Pharma- und Kosmetikhersteller mindestens 80 Prozent der Kosten der vierten Reinigungsstufe zahlen. Bezahlt wird nicht pauschal, sondern nach Menge und Gefährlichkeit der Stoffe, und am Ende müssen unsere Patienten die Folgen tragen, weil günstige und unverzichtbare Medikamente, sogenannte Generika, durch diese Kosten vom Markt gedrängt werden.

Das ist wieder Brüssel im Blindflug: groß ankündigen, schlecht durchdenken und andere zahlen lassen. Diese Regeln müssen für Humanarzneimittel ausgesetzt werden, um unsere kranken Menschen vor einem gefährlichen Medikamentenmangel zu schützen. Europa braucht sauberes Wasser, aber auch eine saubere Gesetzgebung. Deutschland braucht die AfD, und Europa braucht die ESN.

Tomislav Sokol (PPE). – Poštovana predsjedavajuća, povjerenice, kolegice i kolege, Europa se sve češće suočava s nestašicama lijekova. To je jasan signal da moramo ojačati svoju farmaceutsku konkurentnost, stratešku autonomiju i vratiti proizvodnju lijekova na europsko tlo.

Predstavnici industrije upozoravaju na ozbiljne manjkavosti u postojećim procjenama. Na primjer, prema procjeni Europske komisije, četiri lijeka se smatraju odgovornima za čak 58 % ukupnog toksičnog opterećenja. Međutim, laboratorijski podaci pokazuju da njihov stvarni udio iznosi manje od 1 %. Ovakav raskorak između procjene znanstvenih dokaza ne može i ne smije biti temelj za donošenje dalekosežnih odluka.

Osim toga, ključni problem leži u nedostatku pouzdanih podataka o stvarnom utjecaju njezine provedbe. Različite analize i procjene daju oprečne rezultate, što znači da u ovom trenutku naprosto ne znamo kakve će biti posljedice primjene Direktive. Iskreno, i ova prevelika fleksibilnost o kojoj smo danas dosta čuli sigurno ne pomaže sigurnosti i dugoročnom planiranju. Takva nesigurnost posebno je opasna u sektoru proizvodnje lijekova gdje i najmanji poremećaji mogu dovesti do nestašice.

Ukratko, previše nepoznanica da bi se krenulo u implementaciju Direktive. Dapače, što je više konzultacija, sve je više novih pitanja bez odgovora.

Zbog svega navedenog, inzistiramo na uvođenju jednogodišnjeg moratorija na provedbu te provođenju objektivne, znanstveno utemeljene studije utjecaja na opskrbu lijekovima u Europskoj uniji. Radi se o preozbiljnoj temi da naslijepo uvodimo nešto što može imati teške dugoročne posljedice.

Christophe Clergeau (S&D). – Madame la présidente, chers collègues, «de la source à la mer», ce n'est pas un slogan, c'est une réalité.

Nous avons à gérer un seul écosystème. La qualité de l'eau a un impact direct sur nos vies, sur notre santé, sur notre économie et, notamment, sur les pêcheurs et sur les cultures marines qui sont les premières victimes de la dégradation de la qualité de l'eau. Nous devons donc nous attaquer aux pollutions à la racine, nous attaquer aux plastiques, aux produits chimiques, aux PFAS, aux pesticides, aux nitrates.

Et au cœur de ce combat figure le principe pollueur-payeur. C'est une question de justice. Si les pollueurs ne payent pas, ce sont les pollués qui passent à la caisse. Et partout en Europe, les citoyens nous disent leur inquiétude face à l'explosion du prix de l'eau. Bien sûr, nous devons encourager, sécuriser la production de médicaments en Europe. Mais cela ne justifie pas de s'attaquer au principe pollueur-payeur. Cela ne justifie pas de s'attaquer au portefeuille des citoyens et des Européens.

Et puisque j'en ai encore le temps, je le dis à l'extrême droite dans cet hémicycle: le pouvoir d'achat des citoyens, vous n'en avez rien à faire. Votre intervention, c'est la défense des intérêts des multinationales du médicament. Vous défendez les intérêts privés, vous défendez les profits, vous défendez des intérêts qui souvent ne sont même pas européens. Et pendant ce temps-là, les gens voient la dégradation de la qualité de l'eau, ils voient l'augmentation du prix de l'eau. Et ça, ce n'est pas votre sujet. Vous êtes vendus aux intérêts du grand capital, vous êtes vendus à la finance internationale et chaque mois qui passe, les citoyens s'en rendent compte et vous le feront payer dans les urnes.

Laurent Castillo (PfE). – Madame la Présidente, Madame la Commissaire, chers collègues, tous les traitements ne sont pas toujours bénéfiques pour la santé des Européens. Le traitement des micropolluants dans les eaux usées en est aujourd'hui une illustration préoccupante.

Oui, il faut agir et nous sommes tous ici d'accord qu'il faut agir. Cependant, faire peser jusqu'à 100 % du coût sur l'industrie pharmaceutique, notamment sur les génériques, est à mon sens une faute. Peut-on parler de souveraineté sanitaire tout en fragilisant la production de nos médicaments essentiels? Le coût de cette mesure peut atteindre jusqu'à un quart du prix du médicament dans sa production. Les conséquences seront immédiates: pénuries aggravées pour les antibiotiques comme l'amoxicilline, difficulté d'accès aux traitements pour des patients, notamment pour les antidiabétiques oraux.

C'est pourquoi j'en appelle à sa suspension, suspension transitoire dans l'attente d'une étude indépendante et d'une véritable prise en compte de l'impact pour les patients européens. À vouloir tout traiter, ne prenons pas le risque de priver les Européens de l'essentiel: se soigner.

Aurelijus Veryga (ECR). – Madam President, Commissioner, colleagues, some people who are observing what we are doing might ask why we are making decisions that harm ourselves. What do I mean? We are all working hard to do everything possible to ensure that the EU has secure production and supply of critical medicines. We are developing mechanisms that could motivate pharmaceutical industries to invest in R&D and production here in Europe, to maintain stable production and supply. However, on the other hand, we have mechanisms to penalise industry for doing what we are asking. The best example of this is the Urban Wastewater Treatment Directive. If enforced, it will impose an excessively high financial burden on the pharmaceutical sector. Assessments show that expenditures for some medicines, such as critical antibiotics or diabetes treatments, could increase by up to eight times. Who will bear those costs? Ultimately, it will be either the patients themselves or the health budgets of Member States which reimburse these medicines. This is not just unfair; it goes against all other policies we are trying to implement to secure the health of our citizens.

Tilly Metz (Verts/ALE). – Madam President, dear Commissioner, what we are hearing from many colleagues this evening is the result of a sustained and aggressive lobbying.

It's deeply shameful that a measure designed to deliver clean water and safeguard public health is being deliberately distorted, simply to protect profit margins from companies that continue to generate billions each year.

Industry demanded a reassessment of the foreseen cost of the policy. The reassessment was carried out and it confirmed that the Commission's analysis was sound. But industry has chosen to ignore it and push for further delay.

Even more concerning is that colleagues here in the House – EPP and ECR – are now repeating these false claims. This is a political choice from their part to side with industry over public interest.

Meanwhile, those facing environmental and economic consequences – our cities, wastewater operators, healthcare providers and civil society – are demanding a swift implementation of this directive and these are the voices that we really must listen to.

Kateřina Konečná (NI). – Paní předsedající, vážená paní komisařko, schéma rozšířené odpovědnosti výrobců přenáší náklady na čištění odpadních vod na výrobce léčiv, a to na základě toho, že pacienti léky vylučují. To je daň za nemoc, neboť vzhledem k tomu, že žijeme ve spravedlivém kapitalismu, tak budou náklady přeneseny na pacienty. Když to nezaplatí výrobci ani pacienti, budou to muset zaplatit obce jako vlastníci a zřizovatelé čističek odpadních vod. Přitom vědecký základ celého opatření je velmi pochybný. Tvrzení Komise o 66% podílu léčiv na toxické zátěži odpadních vod nemá oporu v laboratorních datech. Evropská agentura pro léčivé přípravky taková počítačová modelování pro hodnocení ekotoxicity ani nepřijímá. Výsledek? Hrozba tsunami lékových výpadků. Výpadků léků, na kterých závisí životy.

Žádám tedy Komisi: „Zastavte se, odložte to. Následně prosím proveďte řádnou transparentní studii dopadů a zajistěte, aby zdravotní politika, průmyslová politika seděly u stejného stolu jako politika životního prostředí". Pacienti ani obce nemohou platit za systémová selhání.

Esther Herranz García (PPE). – Señora presidente, señora comisaria, un placer verla de nuevo aquí. Llevamos varios meses debatiendo sobre la aplicación de la Directiva sobre el tratamiento de las aguas residuales urbanas y llegamos siempre a la misma conclusión: existen dudas —más que razonables— sobre la estimación de costes de cada sector.

Comparto que los objetivos de la Directiva son legítimos y que se debe seguir el principio de que «quien contamina paga», en línea con el régimen de responsabilidad ampliada del productor. Sin embargo, se está pidiendo que las empresas farmacéuticas y cosméticas tengan que hacer frente al 80 % del tratamiento cuaternario y de las aguas residuales, pudiendo llegar al 100 %.

Me ha encantado oírle en su declaración inicial, señora comisaria. Tiene usted razón en lo que ha dicho: las cifras son demasiado elevadas, y nos preocupa que la calidad de las estimaciones utilizadas para su cálculo no sea la adecuada. Nos preguntamos por lo que corresponde a otras empresas y su corresponsabilidad en parte de las sustancias que están en las aguas residuales.

Señora comisaria, necesitamos una evaluación de impacto exhaustiva a nivel de producto, capaz de analizar correctamente las estimaciones de costes y que tenga en cuenta la repercusión sobre los sectores.

La Unión Europea no se puede permitir poner en riesgo la disponibilidad, la asequibilidad y el suministro de estos productos, en particular con respecto a los medicamentos genéricos, que no pueden faltar a ninguno de los ciudadanos europeos porque son los que curan a la mayor parte de la población.

Señora comisaria: no hay que jugar con la salud de nuestros ciudadanos.

Vytenis Povilas Andriukaitis (S&D). – Madam president, Madam Commissioner, colleagues, this debate is a political choice. Let us name it clearly: once again, the conservatives have joined forces with the far-right to amplify an industry narrative before we even have independently verified evidence. That is not responsible law-making; that is political theatre on behalf of industry interests.

So this debate is about who should pay for the environmental harm: polluters or taxpayers? Pharmaceuticals and cosmetics are responsible for most of the micropollutants that require wastewater treatment. Yes, we must examine carefully any real risk to medicine supply, especially for the generics.

I am calling on the Commission to carefully assess those claims and present updated, independent data. After, we can talk about improving the implementation where needed, but the 'polluter pays' principle must remain intact.

Clean water is a public good and public money should not be used to clean up private pollution. It is absolutely clear for all of us. That is the situation. Let's see. Let's go into deep analysis and then, after, discuss what should be improved, how can we change and where we have real data. It is not about supply-chain shortages. It's about an absolutely necessary situation to defend people's health. Because 'One Health' requires one approach to people, to the environment, to water, to all of us.

Letizia Moratti (PPE). – Signora Presidente, signora Commissaria, onorevoli colleghi, durante la pandemia abbiamo visto che i nostri sistemi sanitari sono vulnerabili: basta un'interruzione nelle catene di fornitura per lasciare migliaia di pazienti senza cure. E la direttiva acque reflue rischia di aggravare questa fragilità.

Parliamo di costi aggiuntivi che possono arrivare fino a 40 milioni di euro l'anno per azienda, con aumenti potenziali dei prezzi dei medicinali che arrivano, secondo stime governative, fino a 875 %.

Parliamo di farmaci fondamentali per il trattamento di patologie diffuse, dal diabete ai tumori, oggi esposti al rischio concreto di carenze. Parliamo di farmaci generici che sono a prezzi bloccati e sono i più colpiti. Parliamo anche di risorse sottratte alla ricerca, ad esempio sulle malattie rare, dove le alternative terapeutiche sono limitate e ogni pressione sui costi rischia di tradursi in minore innovazione e minore accesso alla cura per i pazienti più vulnerabili.

Vogliamo tutelare l'ambiente, ma non vogliamo norme basate su modelli scientifici incerti che si traducono in una tassa sui farmaci e sui prodotti cosmetici essenziali per l'igiene. Il rischio è concreto: meno disponibilità di farmaci e più pressione sui sistemi sanitari.

Occorre una sospensione emergenziale della direttiva acque reflue e una rivalutazione immediata dell'impatto ambientale, economico e sociale.

Elżbieta Katarzyna Łukacijewska (PPE). – Pani Przewodnicząca! Pani Komisarz! Podzielam i popieram obawy moich kolegów dotyczące sektora farmaceutycznego, jednakże chciałabym, aby dzisiaj także wybrzmiały obawy sektora kosmetycznego. Obydwa sektory, bo na ich działanie ma wpływ ta dyrektywa, mają prawo oczekiwać od nas rzetelnych danych, proporcjonalności i uczciwej zasady: zanieczyszczający płaci za swoje zanieczyszczenia. I tutaj mam pytanie do Komisji: jak to możliwe, że w analizie Komisji permetryna została przypisana sektorowi kosmetycznemu jako jedno z głównych źródeł mikrozanieczyszczeń, skoro nie jest ona stosowana w produktach kosmetycznych w rozumieniu rozporządzenia kosmetycznego. Jest to substancja czynna stosowana w produktach leczniczych przeciwpasożytniczych oraz w środkach owadobójczych.

I moje drugie pytanie kto zapłaci za zanieczyszczenia z kosmetyków sprowadzanych spoza Unii Europejskiej? Podczas kontroli celnej 65% skontrolowanych kosmetyków nie spełniało norm unijnych. Większość pochodzi z Chin. Nie wiemy jakie substancje zawierają, ani jakie procesy produkcyjne za nimi stoją. Kto więc będzie płacił zanieczyszczenia pochodzące z tych produktów i czy automatycznie ten rachunek będzie wystawiany europejskim sektorom?

Ingeborg Ter Laak (PPE). – Voorzitter, Nederland ligt in een delta. Daardoor weten wij als geen ander wat het betekent om met water te leven, om water schoon te houden. Laat me beginnen met een heel simpel voorbeeld: het Reinier de Graaf-ziekenhuis in Delft. Dat heeft zijn eigen waterzuiveringsinstallatie gebouwd. Het water wordt vervolgens in het ziekenhuis hergebruikt en de medicijnresten worden eruit gehaald en goed verwerkt. Wat niet in het water komt, hoeven we er ook niet uit te halen. Daar begint het.

Het is terecht dat we in Europa geen vervuild water willen, maar deze vervuiling willen we ook niet verplaatsen naar andere delen van de wereld. Schoon water is een basisvoorziening waar iedereen recht op heeft. Het is geen luxe. Het is cruciaal voor onze volksgezondheid, voor ons voedsel en voor onze economie.

Maar we moeten ook eerlijk zijn. Waterbeleid moet wel uitvoerbaar blijven, en de implementatie van de richtlijn heeft impact op, met name, de farmaceutische industrie. Dit raakt aan een ander fundamenteel punt van ons debat: de beschikbaarheid van medicijnen. De kosten van deze transitie zijn aanzienlijk. Maar zonder de transitie zijn de kosten ook aanzienlijk. Mijn eerste vraag luidt dan ook: hoe verdelen we die lasten eerlijk, zonder dat we innovatie afremmen en productie wegduwen uit Europa? En mijn tweede vraag luidt: hoe zorgen we ervoor dat de kosten voor waterzuivering proportioneel blijven?

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Arvoisa puhemies, kun suomalainen ottaa hanasta juomavettä, kaipaako se EU:ta varmistamaan juomavetensä laadun? Kun suomalainen käy vessassa, kaipaako se EU:ta huolehtimaan, että putken toisessa päässä jätevesi käsitellään oikealla tavalla? Kun suomalainen kauniina kesäpäivänä pulahtaa uimaan, kaipaako se EU:ta varmistamaan, että snorkkeli ei mene tukkoon saasteista? Ei, eihän se suomalainen kaipaa, mutta ei täällä ennenkään suomalaista ole kuunneltu.

Nyt täällä käsitellään vesidirektiiviä, jotta jäsenmaille saadaan syötettyä uudet standardit pinta- ja pohjavesiä koskien. Diana Iovanovici Şoşoacă (NI). – Doamnă președintă, nu știu dacă știți, dar România deține 25 % din rețeaua hidrografică a Uniunii Europene și 40 % din rețeaua de ape minerale a Uniunii Europene. Și totuși, au falimentat tot ceea ce a însemnat apă minerală și apă potabilă în România.

Nu știu dacă știți, dar de câteva luni de zile, orașele Curtea de Argeș și Câmpina în România nu mai au apă, iar deștepții de la conducerea României, susținuți de conducerea Uniunii Europene, au băgat pe toate instalațiile oamenilor apă cu fecale, astfel încât există un mare pericol de îmbolnăviri grave. Nimeni nu spune nimic.

În ceea ce privește medicamentele, aș dori să vă întreb de ce nu recurgeți la medicație naturală, la medicație naturistă, astfel încât să avem și aici tratamente naturiste? Într-adevăr, nu costă mult și ar falimenta toată industria farmaceutică.

În ceea ce privește aceste medicamente, aș vrea să știu de ce nu sunt despăgubiți oamenii care au pierdut în pandemie din cauza vaccinării experimentale în oameni.

Jessika Roswall, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, honourable Members, thank you very much for this important discussion. What I hear is that we all want a strong pharmaceutical and cosmetic industry here in Europe, and we all want and agree that we need to remove micropollutants from waste water. The question is, who will pay for this – or who should pay for this. The directive implies a balanced share of necessary investment between the industry, water authorities and consumers, as was agreed by the co-legislators.

Many speakers also raised the point that it's a lot of different figures. I tried to give some clarity in my first intervention on the new JRC study, but of course we will continue as always to look into studies.

On the medical supply, I also hear different views, and also of course on the unintended consequences that could arise, for example when it comes to generics. The directive provides that the Member States should take these into account when they implement the directive. As I also said in the beginning, we are also stepping up our discussions with the Member States and with the stakeholders to avoid exactly these unintended consequences on prices and availability that can arise.

I just want to add, also, in addition to what we have discussed here, the implementation is progressive. By December 2028 we will have the financial plans for the producer responsibility organisation, by December 2030 we will have the risk areas that really need the quaternary treatment in small plans, and by 2033, when the Commission will review the directive, the deployment of the quaternary treatment will still be in its infancy, with no more than 20 % of all large plants and 10 % of all small plants equipped. Only by 2045 will it be fully in place. So, ladies and gentlemen, that is 20 years from now.

Honourable Members, the Commission will continue, as I said, to provide all necessary help to Member States and the industry with the implementation of the directive. I look forward to continue cooperation with you, the European Parliament, on this critical issue. Thank you very much for the debate.

The vote will be held at the next part-session.

Written Statements (Rule 178)

Susana Solís Pérez (PPE), por escrito – La protección de nuestras aguas es un objetivo legítimo y compartido. Y el principio de que quien contamina paga forma parte de una política ambiental razonable que apoyamos. Pero ese principio debe aplicarse siempre con rigor, proporcionalidad y justicia.

No es ni justificable ni proporcionado cargar de forma casi exclusiva sobre dos sectores, el farmacéutico y el cosmético, el coste del tratamiento cuaternario de las aguas residuales, especialmente cuando siguen existiendo dudas relevantes sobre la metodología empleada por la Comisión, la distribución de costes y el impacto real que tendrá sobre los consumidores y la economía.

Europa tampoco puede permitirse una normativa que genere riesgos de escasez de medicamentos en la Unión, ni poner en riesgo la competitividad de sectores en los que seguimos siendo líderes mundiales.

Proteger el medio ambiente, preservar nuestra base industrial y garantizar el acceso a productos esenciales no son objetivos incompatibles. Por ello, desde el PPE pedimos un "stop the clock" en la aplicación de la Responsabilidad Ampliada del Productor hasta que la Comisión garantice el abastecimiento de medicamentos en Europa y presente una estimación de costes sólida, transparente y justa.

17. Imminent death penalty threats in Iran in the light of the latest executions, including on 18 and 19 March 2026, by the Iranian regime (debate)

President. – The next item is the debate on the Commission statement on imminent death penalty threats in Iran in the light of the latest executions, including on 18 and 19 March 2026, by the Iranian regime (2026/2664(RSP)).

I would like to inform Members that there will be only one round of political group speakers for this debate. Therefore, there is no catch-the-eye procedure and no blue card will be accepted.

Michael McGrath, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, honourable Members, in January, peaceful protesters in Iran asked for dignity, freedom and a better life. The security apparatus responded with brutal violence. Thousands of people were killed and injured, and many were arrested. Accountability for this unacceptable tragedy is crucial. In February, in response, the Council added the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps to the EU terrorist list. This has sent a clear message: there can be no impunity for the brutal repression of peaceful demonstrations.

Our strong commitment to human rights in Iran did not begin today. Since 2011, the EU has adopted targeted restrictive measures or sanctions against individuals and entities responsible for serious human rights violations in Iran. We have introduced additional listings in the last weeks against those responsible for the recent repression, and this approach will continue as long as is necessary.

But we don't stop there: we support civil society in line with their aspirations for a future where human rights and fundamental freedoms are respected, protected and fulfilled in the UN context. The EU, together with the Member States, is mobilised in the Human Rights Council and remains a strong supporter of the work of the international independent fact-finding mission and of the Special Rapporteur on Human Rights in Iran.

Last week, Mehdi Ghasemi, Saleh Mohammadi and Saeed Davoudi were executed after being arrested and sentenced to death in connection with the recent protests. A Swedish citizen was also executed for alleged espionage. We have strongly condemned these executions and called once again on the Iranian authorities to end the practice of imposing and carrying out death sentences against protesters.

The brave Iranian people are now also facing the consequences of current military escalation following the military operation of the US and Israel. This adds to the severe human rights situation in Iran. We deplore the loss of civilian life and the extensive damage inflicted on civilian infrastructure. Since the beginning of the conflict we have been in contact with leaders in the Middle East and the Gulf partners to express our solidarity and support. The EU is committed to working for stability and security in the region. We must work to de-escalate and prevent the conflict from spreading. De-escalation, diplomacy and dialogue must be the compass that guides us all.

Dear President, honourable Members, we will continue to urge Iran, both publicly and through diplomatic contacts, to refrain from using capital punishment. We will also further intensify our support to civil society and to human rights defenders, who are playing a crucial role supporting the Iranian people in a very challenging environment. I look forward to the contributions of the Members of the House, and thank you for the opportunity to participate in this debate.

Hildegard Bentele, *on behalf of the PPE Group. – Madam President, dear Commissioner, dear colleagues, the main concern of European and Western leaders and the focus of the media is the economic impact of the war between Israel, the United States and Iran. When and how the Strait of Hormuz will reopen and when oil and gas production will resume.

The Iranian regime, in contrast, is waging war abroad and using the death penalty as a tool of terror at home. On 18 and 19 March, the 19-year-old wrestler Saleh Mohammadi and two others were executed following grossly unfair trials.

Human rights organisations warn this is only the beginning of a new wave of executions. The factual leader of Iran may no longer be a cleric, but Mohammad Ghalibaf, the key figure of the Revolutionary Guards, continues to implement a policy of executions, repression and intimidation against his own people. Women and young people are at the forefront of those targeted.

So I ask whoever now seeks to strike a deal with the Iranian regime must demand an immediate halt to executions, the release of political prisoners, an end to sham trails and torture, and access to detainees and prisoners and medical care.

I would like to point out that Donald Trump has an astonishingly good record of getting prisoners free. I ask every European politician meeting with representatives of the Iranian regime to carry a list of names of those sentenced to death for the mere crime of protesting for freedom.

My list carries the names of Mohammad Amin Biglari, 19 years old, sentenced to death for so-called enmity against God, together with six others: Shahin Vahedparast Kolor, Shahab Zohdi, Abolfazl Salehi Siavashani, Amirhossein Hatami, Yaser Rajaifar, Ali Fahim. Also, and again in continuously in the focus, minorities like the Baha'i Peyvand Naeimi.

Our eyes – those of the European Parliament – continue to be with the terrorised people of Iran. We will not forget you.

Daniel Attard, *on behalf of the S&D Group. – Madam President, right now, the world is consumed by one question: the war, its legality and its consequences. While that question dominates, we are missing something critical; repression in Iran has not paused – in fact, it is accelerating. People are still being arrested, tortured and forced into confessions.

Just yesterday, I received information about a young man, Peyvand Naeimi, detained, tortured, subjected to mock executions, pushed to confess to crimes he simply did not commit. No trial or evidence, just fear and brutality. This is not an isolated case. This is a system – a system that targets anyone who dares to disagree: protesters, journalists, minorities, ordinary citizens, European citizens. This is where Europe, in my opinion, is getting it wrong. We debate wording while people are being beaten into submission. We hesitate while others are paying the price.

It took us three years – three years – to designate the IRGC as a terrorist organisation. I am freely against foreign political interference, but this is not about that. This is about responsibility, our responsibility to protect, to speak with clarity, to act with purpose, to demand concrete action, the release of political prisoners, unrestricted internet freedom, the enforcement of sanctions which are still being bypassed as we speak. Only these critical tools can create the conditions for a democratic transition, because if this regime survives this moment, it will not get better. It will not reform, it will only get worse.

So our choice is simple: do we keep observing or do we start leading? We will always be against war. War is not simply a failure of diplomacy – war is a failure of humanity. In no uncertain terms, we condemn the killing of innocent people, especially children, whether in Iran, in Lebanon, in Gaza or in neighbouring countries. But being against war does not mean being indifferent, being neutral in the face of a brutal regime. It means defending human life everywhere, without exception. This is about human dignity, not geopolitics, and that is simply not negotiable.

To the people of Iran – one final message: unity is your strength. Unity is your way forward. Only together can you overcome a system that is built to divide and conquer. We stand with you.

Angéline Furet, *au nom du groupe PfE. – Madame la Présidente, Monsieur le Commissaire, en Iran, ces derniers jours, deux jeunes hommes ont été pendus. Parfois en public, parfois après des aveux extorqués sous la torture. Les 18 et 19 mars encore, plusieurs exécutions ont été confirmées et des dizaines d'autres prisonniers attendent leur tour, condamnés à mort dans des procès expéditifs.

Oui, ce régime utilise la peine de mort comme une arme politique. Mais une question se pose: à quoi servent les déclarations de l'Union européenne? Car, face à un régime qui tue pour se maintenir, il ne peut y avoir de naïveté. On ne négocie pas avec un pouvoir qui pend ses opposants.

Le 1er mars 2026, la France, l'Allemagne et le Royaume-Uni ont publié une déclaration commune condamnant les actions du régime iranien et affirmant leur coordination, en se disant prêts à agir pour défendre leurs intérêts et ceux de leurs alliés.

C'est à ce niveau que la coopération existe. L'Union européenne doit la soutenir dans ses compétences, pas s'y substituer. Pendant que l'Europe parle, le régime iranien, lui, exécute. La seule Europe qui agit, c'est celle des nations. Et l'Union européenne doit les soutenir, pas parler à leur place.

Sebastian Tynkkynen, *on behalf of the ECR Group. – Madam President, dear Iranian people, I am so sorry. There are genuinely good people in Europe, but this Union is rotten to the core. For decades, EU leaders have watched the prison being built around you. They have appeased your torturers and shaken hands with your male leaders while your beautiful women have been veiled into darkness.

Dear Ukrainian people, I am also so sorry for you. Our leaders praise you for sacrificing yourselves for our security, but the lack of help has kept your beautiful people being thrown into Russia's meat grinder for over four years already.

In the Iranian case, our stance goes beyond all parody. When the USA and Israel help the Iranian people, and European security, by taking down the regime's killing capabilities, this House shows them the middle finger. Yes, gas prices hurt, but nothing hurts like an Islamist nuclear bomb. That is what we cannot afford.

How is it possible that European countries cannot come together and focus on what really matters, instead of letting the EU micromanage everything, down to naming food particles? Let's stop licking the boots of bombers and join the USA and Israel's campaign to free Iran.

When Iran is free, I see a beautiful country that Persians will have rebuilt – so beautiful and developed that it could one day join the European Union. But they will never join us, because they will never forgive us – the club that watched them being butchered.

Hannah Neumann, *on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group. – Madam President, this war has raised hopes among many Iranians, hopes for change and hopes for freedom. But today, there is a real threat that it may end in a disaster, leaving them with nothing but an emboldened, even more repressive and aggressive regime.

While the world is watching missiles and internet memes, the Islamic regime is tightening its grip at home. Political prisoners are held in overcrowded cells, executions rising, a regime determined to destroy every little bit of resistance, of hope, of life under a nationwide internet blackout designed to control reality, to kill in the dark.

And now there is Donald Trump's 15-point plan. A plan without a single point on the people of Iran, a rush for a quick deal, an attempt for Donald Trump to save Donald Trump, by replacing mullahs with mullahs and selling out the future of an entire nation.

We have seen this before, dear colleagues. In 2020, in Doha, Trump rushed to a deal with the Taliban. He celebrated it as a good one, when in reality he got nothing. And the people of Afghanistan are paying the brutal price for this until today.

This is not a game. This is about the lives of millions of human beings. And that is why Europe, together with our partners in the Gulf, must push back.

Any serious path forward must begin with two non-negotiable demands to the Islamic regime: stop the executions, stop the internet blackout. And we need to find a way to get the real Iranians to sit at these tables and to have a say in all of this. Nothing less.

Marc Botenga, *au nom du groupe The Left. – Madame la Présidente, chers collègues, tous les jours, des enfants iraniens sont retrouvés morts ou à peine vivants sous les décombres de leur maison. Tous les jours, des enfants libanais ou palestiniens partagent le même sort. Pourtant, leurs vies, leurs morts ne méritent pas ici un débat, ne méritent pas ici une condamnation claire. Et pourquoi? Parce que les coupables sont vos amis, à Tel-Aviv, à Washington.

Plus fort encore, le jour même où Israël avance une loi permettant d'exécuter par pendaison des centaines de prisonniers palestiniens, vous, vous organisez un débat uniquement sur la peine de mort en Iran. Pourquoi cette sélectivité? Parce que moi, je suis contre ces exécutions. Qu'elles se passent en Iran, en Arabie saoudite ou en Israël. Mais vous, vous fermez les yeux quand les bourreaux sont vos amis.

Et c'est systématique. Vous sanctionnez la Russie qui attaque l'Ukraine, mais vous soutenez les États-Unis qui bombardent l'Iran. Vous condamnez la Russie qui occupe l'Ukraine, mais vous soutenez Israël qui occupe la Palestine et le Liban. Vous condamnez l'Iran – système religieux, sort des femmes, manque de démocratie –, mais vous vous alliez à l'Arabie saoudite, monarchie religieuse sans démocratie ni droits des femmes. Vous condamnez l'Iran et son soutien au Hezbollah libanais, mais faites du business avec les Émirats qui, eux, arment des milices génocidaires au Soudan. Vous accusez le Venezuela de manque de démocratie, mais vous vous taisez quand le Qatar abolit les élections.

Quand nos alliés occupent, annexent, tuent, là ça va, pas grave, parce que c'est pour notre pétrole, nos intérêts, alors tranquille. L'enfer, c'est toujours les autres. Nous reprochons aux adversaires ce que nous permettons à nos alliés de faire allègrement et nous allons serrer des pinces, tout sourire, à Tel-Aviv et à Washington.

Le «deux poids, deux mesures» de cette Europe n'est pas seulement une honte. Cela permet aussi de créer un monde de chaos et de guerres dans lequel on ne veut pas vivre et on ne veut pas que nos enfants grandissent. Donc ayez honte, parce qu'aujourd'hui, cette Europe n'est pas une force du bien, mais complice du crime. Ça suffit!

Michael McGrath, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, I thank all of the honourable Members for their contributions to this debate this evening. I want to reaffirm to all of you that the EU is very focused on the appalling human rights situation in Iran and calls again on the Iranian regime to cease the violence and the repression against its own people. As I said earlier, we strongly condemned the executions that have taken place. And we call once again on the Iranian authorities to end this practice of imposing and carrying out death sentences against protesters, against its own people.

The new leadership in Tehran must understand that it now has a historic opportunity to genuinely change Iran's behaviour towards its own people and towards the rest of the world. Until then, we will continue to defend, with determination, our security and interests vis-à-vis Iran, including through new sanctions. And I want to reiterate once again that it is the right of the Iranian people to determine their own future.

18. Combating corruption (debate)

President. – The next item is the debate on the report by Raquel García Hermida-Van Der Walle, on behalf of the Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs, on combating corruption (COM(2023)0234 – C9-0162/2023 – 2023/0135(COD)) (A9-0048/2024).

Raquel García Hermida-Van Der Walle, rapporteur. – Madam President, dear Commissioner, dear colleagues, tomorrow this Parliament will vote on a historic piece of legislation: a binding law to tackle corruption all around the European Union. A first. But not all of our citizens will get to celebrate.

Journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia, who exposed corruption in Malta. Slovak investigative reporter Jan Kuciak and his fiancée Martina Kusnirova. The passengers on a bus on a road that was poorly maintained near Svoge, Bulgaria. The travellers, most of them students in their 20s, on trains near Tempi, Greece, running on tracks that were out of date. Those just waiting under a railway station canopy in Novi Sad, in Serbia. And without a doubt, so many more, maybe still unknown to most of us.

All of them had hopes and dreams for their lives in Europe. But they are no longer among us as a result of corruption and fraud, sometimes at the highest level. And this is why this law matters. Corruption kills. It costs us billions. It hurts trust in our governments. It undermines our democracy and eventually, our Union. Because corruption, more and more intertwined with transnational international crime, does not understand borders and differences in legal provisions.

That is why this law is necessary and urgent. Member States will need to evaluate their anti-corruption measures and update them where needed. They will have to develop strategies to combat and prevent corruption and include preventive measures. Authorities will get more time to investigate and prosecute corruption offences, and those offences will be punished in a more similar way across the EU, to avoid a race to the bottom. Judges will be able to apply higher, more deterrent penalties.

But also, exactly because the stakes are so high and this subject is so important to so many of our citizens, I have to tell the honest story that this law could have been better. More ambitious, more hard-hitting, more in line with the wishes of this Parliament. Yes, all of that is true. And it was a tough fight. The national governments on the other side of the negotiating table did not make it easy. And at some point, I think all of us were afraid that this would slip through our fingers and be put on hold, with an uncertain future. But we pulled through. We all came back to the negotiating table. We talked, and most importantly, we listened to each other and we got a deal and a number of major wins.

'We' plural. Because yes, I am speaking here today as your rapporteur, as chief negotiator. But every major step forward in European history is, per definition, a collective effort. So let me use this moment to acknowledge the work of all those involved: my own team, Parliament staff, the LIBE Secretariat, the Legal Service, the lawyer-linguists, the interpreters whose life was not made easy by me switching from English to Spanish in the middle of a meeting without notice. And also the ambassadors of both Poland and Denmark and their teams, the European Commission, and in particular, Commissioner McGrath, for their role as honest broker.

And above all, the team of shadow rapporteurs. You were committed and sharp, fierce in defending our mandate but willing to compromise where needed. And I am certain that our unity has been crucial in delivering the best possible result for our citizens. It was a pleasure and a privilege to work with you, and I thank you.

The new anti-corruption directive will bring a Europe free of corruption a few steps closer. A safer Europe for journalists and travellers. A Europe where getting a job or a permit does not depend on your connection to people in high places. A Europe where citizens trust that their governments are looking out for them, instead of for themselves.

So colleagues, help us achieve that Europe. I look forward to the debate.

Michael McGrath, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, thank you very much, and thank you very much honourable Members. I am delighted to join you for this evening's debate on the directive on combating corruption. I would like to join with the rapporteur in acknowledging the work of all of those who have got us to this point. Thank you, rapporteur García Hermida-Van Der Walle, all your shadow rapporteurs and colleagues in the European Parliament for your intense work over a long period of time working with co-legislators, the Commission and indeed others.

The fight against corruption is an important priority for the Commission. Corruption seriously damages citizens' trust in democracy. It acts as an enabler for other serious crimes and it hampers fair competition and economic growth. Citizens and businesses alike regularly ask public authorities to take more action to combat corruption. Against that background, the political agreement reached in December is truly a milestone in the fight against corruption. For the first time, we will have a common legislative instrument setting EU-wide standards on fighting corruption. The directive replaces an outdated framework that limited corruption to bribery offences. But, nowadays, corruption, as we know, takes many other forms, and there was a clear need to harmonise and expand the definition of corruption across the EU to also include other offences, such as misappropriation, enrichment and trading in influence.

The directive will also contribute to making investigations and the prosecution of corruption more effective. Member States will have to ensure that law enforcement and prosecutors have adequate investigative tools to fight corruption at their disposal. These can, for example, include special investigative tools similar to those used in countering organised crime. In addition, the directive sets minimum rules on limitation periods to ensure sufficient time to bring corruption offences to justice. By harmonising minimum levels of penalties across the EU, we increase deterrence and prevent criminals from exploiting legal differences between our Member States.

The response to corruption needs to be strengthened. That is what the directive sets to do. But we also need to strengthen our ways to prevent corruption in the first place. This is why it is particularly important that the directive includes a strong chapter on prevention and integrity. This is also thanks to Parliament's continuous efforts and your ambition to increase our common standards.

The directive puts a particular emphasis on raising awareness and strengthening integrity measures in public administrations. Such measures can include asset declarations for high-level officials, lobbying registers, or rules on transparency in political party financing. They help to create a culture of integrity, in which corruption and impunity are not tolerated. Member States will also be required to have national anti-corruption strategies in place and to carry out sector-specific risk assessments.

Preventing and fighting corruption goes hand in hand with our work to protect our democracies from undue influence. Citizens must be confident that public institutions operate with transparency, accountability and with integrity. By reinforcing our common framework, we are enhancing public trust. We are upholding the rule of law and strengthening the resilience of our democratic institutions.

Let me finish by thanking you, honourable Members, for Parliament's continuous push for an ambitious text in these negotiations. And I witnessed that ambitious push in the trilogue negotiations that we worked our way through. Thanks to your support to the Commission's proposal, the agreed text is, I believe, a crucial step forward to tackle corruption in a comprehensive manner across our Union.

Finally, I wish to underline the strong commitment of the rapporteur and that of all the shadow rapporteurs involved. It has been key for defending an ambitious text and for reaching an agreement with the Council on this directive. You can count on the Commission's commitment and my personal commitment in further supporting Member States in the implementation of this directive. Thank you for your attention and I look forward to the contributions this evening.

U bl-appoġġ tagħhom u tagħkom, se nwasslu standards aktar b'saħħithom illi jaħdmu fil-prattika madwar l-Ewropa; u li se jagħtu messaġġ ta' tama lil dawk iċ-ċittadini li jinsabu fuq in-naħa t-tajba fil-ġlieda kontra l-korruzzjoni.

Fl-aħħar nett, irrid anke jiena, Sinjura President, nirringrazzja lil negozjaturi, dawk li nnegozjaw, fosthom naturalment lil Raquel u nixtieq li nirringrazzja wkoll lill-President tal-Kumitat għal-Libertajiet Ċivili. Rajt minnkom: onestà, determinazzjoni, insistenza, persistenza biex ikollna l-aqwa Direttiva kontra l-Korruzzjoni; u nirringrazzjakom talli iva, ħdimna flimkien bl-iktar mod unit li qatt stajna naħdmu bih. Grazzi ħafna u ejja jkollna din il-liġi li nagħmluha suċċess.

Chloé Ridel, au nom du groupe S&D. – Madame la Présidente, Monsieur le Commissaire, chère Raquel, chers collègues, il y a trois ans, le scandale du «Qatargate» atteignait profondément la réputation du Parlement européen. Plus d'un million en petites coupures étaient retrouvés au domicile d'une vice-présidente de cette institution. Trois ans plus tard, nous adoptons enfin, aujourd'hui, la première grande directive européenne qui vise à lutter contre la corruption partout en Europe. Il était temps.

La corruption des agents publics et des responsables politiques n'est pas seulement une atteinte à la démocratie et à la confiance populaire. C'est aussi l'un des principaux vecteurs d'ingérence étrangère. Elle offre aux puissances qui cherchent à déstabiliser l'Europe une prise directe sur ses décisions politiques, et donc garantir la probité et l'intégrité en politique est aussi un défi de souveraineté.

Pour la première fois aujourd'hui, les États membres de l'Union européenne se dotent d'un cadre commun pour prévenir, détecter et sanctionner la corruption. Cette directive fixe des définitions communes et des sanctions pénales pour la corruption active et passive, le trafic d'influence, le détournement de fonds ou encore l'abus de fonctions. Elle impose aussi à tous les États membres de prévenir la corruption avant qu'elle n'advienne, en luttant contre les conflits d'intérêts, en encadrant le lobbying et le pantouflage ou en protégeant les lanceurs d'alerte.

L'ensemble de ces règles préventives devront être appliquées par un organisme indépendant du pouvoir politique dans chaque État membre. Songez qu'il y a des pays où, en Europe, les ministres ne sont même pas tenus de faire des déclarations de patrimoine et de conflits d'intérêts à leur entrée en fonction. Avec cette directive, cela va changer. Stop à l'impunité!

Nous accusons aujourd'hui une avancée majeure, mais elle ne règle pas tout. Nous devons faire plus: en régulant le financement des partis politiques, pour qu'il soit transparent et qu'il ne donne pas l'avantage aux milliardaires; en renforçant aussi les moyens du Parquet européen et ses pouvoirs d'enquête; en interdisant aussi, une bonne fois pour toutes, au Parlement européen, que des députés ne puissent cumuler leur mandat avec l'exercice de fonctions professionnelles dans des entreprises privées. Aujourd'hui, on peut encore être lobbyiste et député.

Alors, chers collègues, la corruption prospère là où la volonté politique fait défaut. N'attendons pas de prochain scandale pour avancer.

Jorge Buxadé Villalba, *en nombre del Grupo PfE. – Señora presidenta, tras escándalos como el Qatargate o el Moroccogate, en lugar de perseguir a los Estados extranjeros y a las ONG por los sobornos a diputados y burócratas, la Comisión lanzó esta propuesta de Directiva contra la corrupción que, por desgracia, en su texto final se va a convertir en el lavado y blanqueo de la corrupción política en países como España.

Es una propuesta tibia de la Comisión, que en el Parlamento fue ligeramente mejorada con nuestras enmiendas, que proponían prohibir amnistías e indultos a los políticos corruptos, práctica generalizada en el Gobierno de Pedro Sánchez, provocando titulares grandilocuentes en las filas populares. Pero el texto final es un gravísimo error político y un absoluto desastre técnico, por culpa de esa funesta coalición de populares, socialistas y progresistas que es un lastre para Europa, más empeñados en aprobar normas que en la justicia y el bienestar de la gente.

Un documento apoyado por los socialistas españoles en materia de corrupción no puede ser bueno. Solo será bueno para ellos, para los familiares de Sánchez, sus secretarios de organización y demás dirigentes socialistas y separatistas enfangados en prevaricaciones y malversaciones.

Una Directiva que santifica la reforma penal de Sánchez para beneficiar a los golpistas en lo relativo al delito de malversación de caudales públicos, que permite a los Estados miembros optar entre que la conducta típica sea el ánimo de lucro propio o de terceros o perjudicar los intereses de la entidad es una estafa. Una Directiva que habilita que el delito de prevaricación se reduzca a los casos y a los funcionarios que el Gobierno decida —en este caso Sánchez, cuando tiene a su hermano y a su candidato por Extremadura encausados en este tema— es una traición. Una Directiva que no prohíbe indultos a políticos corruptos es nefasta.

Hoy en Moncloa brindarán con champán y en la calle de Génova venderán titulares a sus medios.

Mariusz Kamiński, w imieniu grupy ECR. – Pani Przewodnicząca! Prace nad dyrektywą antykorupcyjną trwały trzy lata. Ten dokument miał stanowić odpowiedź na aferę katarską, która wstrząsnęła europejską opinią publiczną. To miał być przełom w walce z korupcją w Unii Europejskiej. Jednak projekt, nad którym debatujemy, takim przełomem na pewno nie będzie. Dyrektywa w tym kształcie jest rozczarowująca. Zamiast podnosić standardy, obniża je, harmonizując w dół do najniższego wspólnego mianownika.

Celem dyrektywy miało być dostosowanie przepisów do norm ustanowionych w konwencji ONZ przeciw korupcji. Została ona ratyfikowana przez wszystkie państwa członkowskie, ale zobowiązania wdrożono wybiórczo i dyrektywa tego nie zmienia.

Największym zaniechaniem dyrektywy jest to, że nie odnosi się ona adekwatnie do instytucji unijnych i jej urzędników. Dyrektywa zastępuje konwencję o zwalczaniu korupcji z udziałem urzędników Wspólnot Europejskich i jest miejscem właściwym do uregulowania tych spraw. Z tego powodu zgłosiłem kilka poprawek.

Jedną z najważniejszych wad dyrektywy jest brak obowiązku składania przez urzędników unijnych jawnych, weryfikowanych i złożonych pod odpowiedzialnością karną oświadczeń majątkowych. Taka powinna być odpowiedź na haniebną aferę komisarza do spraw sprawiedliwości Reyndersa. Prokuratura postawiła mu zarzut prania pieniędzy w okresie, gdy pełnił tę funkcję.

Kolejna kwestia to zobowiązanie wynikające bezpośrednio z konwencji ONZ przeciw korupcji. Dotyczy ona konieczności powoływania wyspecjalizowanych organów do zwalczania korupcji. By skutecznie walczyć z korupcją w XXI wieku niezbędna jest ekspercka wiedza, niezależność i dostęp do najnowocześniejszych narzędzi śledczych. Taką instytucją jest polskie Centralne Biuro Antykorupcyjne, skutecznie działające od dwudziestu lat, będące wzorcem dla podobnych służb w regionie. Dziś Biuro i zasłużeni w walce z korupcją funkcjonariusze są niszczeni przez rząd Tuska.

Dyrektywa osłabia także inne kluczowe międzynarodowe zobowiązania Unii i państw członkowskich. Odchodzi od obowiązkowego ścigania osób prawnych dopuszczających się korupcji poza granicami Unii. To są najczęściej wielkie korporacje, dewastujące korupcyjnie państwa postkolonialne.

Szanowni Państwo, Parlament Europejski musi wysłać obywatelom Europy jasny sygnał – jesteśmy zdeterminowani w walce z korupcją i mamy do tego odpowiednie narzędzia. Dość pustych deklaracji – czas na działanie. Stop korupcji w Unii Europejskiej!

Cynthia Ní Mhurchú, on behalf of the Renew Group. – A chairde, a Choimisinéir, corruption hurts people first. It steals from citizens. It drains public money. It destroys trust in democracy. That's why this directive really matters. This vote brings Europe's anti-corruption rules into the real world.

Thanks to rapporteur Raquel, it creates clearer common rules across the EU, strengthening sanctions, improving investigations, prosecuting those who abuse power for personal gain. It's really simple. If you steal public money, if you abuse public office, if you profit from corruption, then watch out – Europe will respond effectively.

Our voters expect fairness and transparency and the same standards applying to everyone, and they expect state integrity to be protected and corruption to be punished.

Rapporteur Raquel, this directive rocks – thanks to you, thanks to your never-give-up attitude. Gracias. Bedankt.

Daniel Freund, im Namen der Verts/ALE-Fraktion. – Frau Präsidentin, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen! Wissen Sie, was mich wirklich wütend macht? Mich machen die wütend, die hier immer am lautesten gegen die EU wettern, die meinen, Brüssel wäre voll von korrupten Bürokraten, die Leute von Le Pen, von Orbán, und die AfD. Jetzt reden wir ja heute hier über das erste europäische Antikorruptionsgesetz – gemeinsame Standards aller Mitgliedstaaten bei Bestechung, bei Veruntreuung, bei Amtsmissbrauch. Wenn es also darum geht, wirklich was gegen Korruption zu tun, dann sind die Rechtsextremen entweder nicht da oder sie stimmen gegen dieses Gesetz. Weil es ihnen nämlich gar nicht darum geht, Korruption zu bekämpfen, sondern es geht ihnen nur darum, sich die eigenen Taschen voll zu machen. Le Pen ist im größten Korruptionsskandal, den dieses Parlament je gesehen hat, verurteilt worden. Bei der AfD ist jeden Tag Familienfeier im Büro, und die Ermittlungen bei den Millionenbetrügen, die laufen noch. Die Korruption von AfD, von Orbán, von Le Pen, die macht mich wirklich wütend. Aber dieses Gesetz, das ist ein erster Schritt, dass wir den Sumpf von Orbán und von der AfD endlich trockenlegen. Und das ist auch genau der Grund, warum sie nämlich nicht für dieses Gesetz stimmen, weil sie korrupte Rechtsextreme sind.

Giuseppe Antoci, a nome del gruppo The Left. – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, grazie relatrice, grazie per questo lavoro importante, lungo, complesso, delicato.

Domani noi non votiamo una direttiva qualsiasi. Domani noi votiamo per la tutela della dignità del Parlamento. La corruzione è uno strumento attraverso il quale la criminalità organizzata entra nelle istituzioni, nell'economia, nella vita democratica.

Un punto dà il senso politico del nostro lavoro ed è l'esercizio illecito della funzione pubblica: è il cuore cruciale.

Un articolo che l'Italia, il mio paese, ha tentato di bloccare per mesi per salvaguardare il lavoro fatto dal ministro della Giustizia Carlo Nordio, che ha cancellato nel 2024 il reato di abuso d'ufficio nel nostro paese. Non ci saranno più, da domani, zone franche in Europa e non lo saranno più neanche in Italia. Grazie anche alla commissione, grazie al presidente Zarzalejos.

Domani noi rimarginiamo una ferita e, quando voteremo, penseremo senz'altro a coloro che per la legalità e la giustizia hanno perso in tutti questi lunghi anni anche la vita.

Milan Uhrík, za skupinu ESN. – Vážená pani predsedajúca, hovoríme tu o korupcii v Európskej únii. Ale prosím vás, nehrajte sa tu na nejakých anjelikov a dobrodincov, pretože európske peniaze patria k jedným z najskorumpovanejších, lebo ste to tak vymysleli. Ryba smrdí, ako sa hovorí, od hlavy. Najprv zoberiete ľuďom a štátom peniaze, ktoré potom vládam vo forme eurofondov dávate, buď ich vydierate, alebo si ich týmto spôsobom kupujete. Množstvo európskych peňazí ide naozaj na absolútne nezmysly: na mimovládne organizácie, na imigrantov, na zvláštnu podporu do zahraničia. Ďalšia časť eurofondov sa, bohužiaľ, naozaj rozkradne na predražených zákazkách, na dotáciách, na pochybných projektoch. A treba takúto korupciu vyšetrovať? Určite áno, ale nemôže to vyšetrovať obchodníčka s vakcínami Leyenová, ktorá by mala byť sama vyšetrovaná. A pokiaľ ona nebude stáť pred spravodlivým súdom, tak jednoducho celý tento boj proti korupcii bude pre ľudí tam vonku len jedna obyčajná veľká fraška a paródia. My vravíme, že áno. Korupciu treba vyšetrovať, ale vyšetrovať ju majú nezávislé štátne národné orgány. A ak sú pochybnosti o nezávislosti týchto orgánov alebo ide o európske peniaze, tak v poriadku, nech to vyšetruje nejaký nezávislý európsky orgán OLAF, Európsky dvor audítorov alebo Súdny dvor, ale nie politici a politické výbory, lebo to nejde potom o boj proti korupcii, ale o obyčajnú politiku.

Javier Zarzalejos (PPE). – Señora presidenta, señor comisario, nuestra ponente —a quien agradezco su trabajo— decía que «la corrupción mata» y, efectivamente, la corrupción mata la democracia, la corrupción mata la confianza en las instituciones y la corrupción mata la igualdad de oportunidades.

Tenemos un instrumento legislativo valioso que, sin duda, puede ser mejor y más ambicioso, pero quiero denunciar la impostura de quienes lo critican por no ser suficientemente ambicioso y, al mismo tiempo, se erigen en representantes de la soberanía nacional para impedir los avances que muchos queríamos que se hubieran reflejado en este texto. No se puede estar a las dos cosas a la vez. Y ahora sí.

Pero el trabajo ha empezado, señor comisario, porque es la Comisión la que tiene que asegurar que esta Directiva se traspone en tiempo y forma y de una manera leal con sus objetivos; porque, sí, sabemos que hay todavía demasiados procedimientos a través de los cuales los Estados eluden las obligaciones derivadas de la lucha contra la corrupción: diferentes formas de definir los delitos, jugando con los plazos de prescripción, debilitando las unidades judiciales y policiales de lucha contra la corrupción, con el uso abusivo e injustificado de indultos o promoviendo amnistías que determinan la impunidad de los criminales y que lo único que hacen es beneficiar a los amigos o a los socios políticos.

Georgiana Teodorescu (ECR). – Doamnă președintă, corupția, acest cancer al societății noastre, pervertește toate categoriile sociale și toate domeniile de activitate, de la funcționari publici, magistrați, polițiști, până la medici, profesori sau simpli angajați în privat.

Corupția paralizează de multe ori administrația publică și creează inechități sau discriminări, acolo unde statul ar trebui să funcționeze ireproșabil în interesul cetățenilor.

Mai grav decât atât, corupția irosește banul public. Orice euro care pleacă în buzunarul unui corupt este un euro care se pierde de la un spital, o autostradă, o școală sau o fabrică.

Corupția nu poate fi combătută însă politizând, e nevoie de întărire a structurilor anticorupție și de excluderea factorului politic din orice formă de numire sau controlare a acestor unități.

Pentru a fi cu adevărat independentă justiția, deci și lupta anticorupție, avem nevoie de magistrați cinstiți, incoruptibili, neinfluențabili politic și curajoși. Magistrați care să răspundă atunci când greșesc și care să avanseze în carieră exclusiv pe criterii de meritocrație.

Și dacă tot vrem să luptăm împotriva corupției, haideți să verificăm cum și unde a ajuns fiecare euro care a plecat de la Bruxelles, nu numai în statele membre, dar mai ales în afara lor. Atunci vom avea adevărata măsură a corupției.

Malika Sorel (NI). – Madame la Présidente, chers collègues, lorsque des responsables échappent aux règles communes, semblent intouchables, la confiance collective s'effondre et les citoyens se détournent des institutions. Platon le disait déjà, la cité se corrompt quand les dirigeants poursuivent leur intérêt personnel.

Il nous faut être clairs, cohérents, agir avec détermination. Les sanctions doivent être réellement dissuasives. Nous devons renforcer le contrôle des conflits d'intérêts, accélérer les procédures judiciaires, instaurer l'inéligibilité automatique pour toute condamnation liée à la corruption ou au détournement de fonds publics. Donnons davantage de moyens au Parquet européen pour poursuivre fraudes, abus, corruption active et passive.

Chers collègues, dans une démocratie, l'autorité ne vient pas de la force, mais de la confiance. La règle doit être simple: plus la responsabilité est élevée, plus l'exigence d'exemplarité doit être forte. C'est à ce prix que nous préserverons la confiance des citoyens et donc la solidité de notre démocratie.

Tomáš Zdechovský (PPE). – Paní předsedající, pane komisaři, měl jsem připravenou docela zajímavou řeč o tom, jak je potřeba věci sjednocovat, ale kolega Uhrík mě inspiroval k jedné věci: „Pane kolego, pokud se někde krade, pokud se někde podvádí, jako je příklad Slovenska, tak je potřeba zasáhnout, a proto tady děláme standardy mezi evropskými zeměmi, aby někdo neohýbal legislativu pro své kamarády, jako to dělá na Slovensku současná vláda, a aby si neurčovala pravidla pro ty, kteří jsou zkorumpovaní a kradou evropské prostředky, a aby ty evropské prostředky sloužily skutečně občanům. Asi souhlasíte s tím, že je potřeba, aby peníze šly na stavbu dálnic, aby šly na infrastrukturu a aby Slovensko nebylo na chvostu Evropské unie, ale aby šlo nahoru, aby peníze sloužily evropským občanům. A co jste udělali na Slovensku? Rozkradli jste to. Krade se tam každý den, předražené zakázky za předraženými zakázkami". A to je odpověď. David Casa udělal skvělou věc a já mu za to gratuluji. To je nejlepší věc, která v tomhle Evropském parlamentu byla udělaná jako prevence korupce.

Dariusz Joński (PPE). – Pani Przewodnicząca! Jestem dumny, że dyrektywa Unia bez korupcji, stanowiła jeden z priorytetów polskiej prezydencji w Radzie Unii Europejskiej. Ale dzisiaj trzeba powiedzieć nieco więcej. Jest takie powiedzenie: walka z korupcją przypomina zwalczanie pluskiew. Czasem trzeba zburzyć cały dom, żeby pozbyć się tej plagi. I my właśnie dzisiaj musimy za wszelką cenę wyeliminować nie tylko korupcję, ale również wszystkich zdrajców, bo ich korupcja sięga dużo dalej niż tylko do kwestii materialnych.

Oni sprzedają nasze bezpieczeństwo, bo tym właśnie jest donoszenie na Kreml. Jeśli ktoś donosi wrogowi, to powiem tylko, że historia z takimi zdrajcami rozliczała się w sposób brutalny. A dziwne, że ci, którzy do tej historii tak często się odnoszą, również w moim kraju, dzisiaj udają, że nie widzą kolaboracji rządu Węgier z Putinem. A ten nie cofnie się przed niczym i nikim, i potrzebuje takich Orbánów i niestety również Nawrockich. I stąd chęć wpływu na wyniki wyborów w państwach Unii Europejskiej.

Unia Europejska musi być dziś bezwzględna wobec wszelkiej formy korupcji, ale również zdrady. Bez wyjątków i bez kompromisów. Bo nie bronimy tylko interesów politycznych, bronimy bezpieczeństwa naszych obywateli, naszej wolności i naszej przyszłości. A tych wartości nie oddamy nikomu.

Juan Fernando López Aguilar (S&D). – Señora presidenta, una Directiva efectiva penal europea contra la corrupción es un paso adelante, pero no porque sea una respuesta al Qatargate, que lo que quiera que sea a lo que responda a ese nombre está siendo enjuiciado por la ley penal belga ante la justicia penal belga en defecto de ley europea. Tampoco para señalar a un país concreto, como algún discurso de la ultraderecha ha intentado para infamar de nuevo a su propio país.

No, es por fin la definición común de nada menos que seis tipos de delitos relacionados con la corrupción, imponiendo además penas mínimas, que deberán ser transpuestas uniformemente por fin por los veintisiete Estados miembros en sus respectivos códigos penales. Y esa es la misión que tiene que vigilar la Comisión exactamente para asegurar un estándar común europeo de compromiso contra la corrupción en la integridad del manejo de los fondos públicos que sea, además, determinante para el comportamiento uniforme de la justicia penal en el conjunto de la Unión Europea.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Arvoisa puhemies, korruptio on kuin myrkky. Se on myrkky, jota liian moni päättäjä on erehtynyt juomaan. Sitä myrkkyä on juotu ja syljetty päin kansalaisten näköä myös täällä EU:ssa. Osa on jäänyt kiinni, osa todennäköisesti ei.

Täällä on jyllännyt vuorollaan Qatar-kohu sekä Huawei-kohu. Kummankin tahon on epäilty maksaneen EU-päättäjille, jotta ne saisivat näille tahoille mieluista politiikkaa. Miettikää tätä äänestäjän kannalta. Hän uskoo oman ainoan äänensä henkilölle, joka sen turvin pääsee päättävään asemaan. Ja tämä päättäjä sitten päättää ottaa nämä likaiset rahat ja päättää ajaa ei oman äänestäjiensä etua, vaan esimerkiksi Qatarin tai kiinalaisen yhtiön etuja. Jos päättäjä näin päättää toimia, niin toivon hänelle vain yhtä kohtaloa, vankilaan kulkematta lähtöruudun kautta.

Maciej Wąsik (ECR). – Pani Przewodnicząca! Rząd Donalda Tuska w Polsce usiłuje zlikwidować Centralne Biuro Antykorupcyjne. CBA to wyspecjalizowana służba, która przez ostatnie 20 lat ścigała korupcję w polskim życiu publicznym, także na szczytach władzy. Ostatnio w Polsce, ku zdumieniu opinii publicznej, umorzono wiele ujawnionych przez CBA głośnych spraw korupcyjnych wobec polityków partii rządzącej. Pomimo twardych dowodów umorzono sprawę posła Romana Giertycha, podejrzewanego o pranie brudnych pieniędzy, marszałka Senatu Tomasza Grodzkiego, wobec którego ponad 200 osób zaznało, że wręczało łapówki, czy byłego ministra w rządzie Tuska Sławomira Nowaka, pomimo zabezpieczenia w tajnej skrytce kilku milionów złotych pochodzących z przestępstwa.

Próba likwidacji służby antykorupcyjnej to element zemsty obozu rządzącego za ujawnienie afer korupcyjnych oraz zapewnienie sobie bezkarności na przyszłość. Nie dość tego, władza Tuska represjonuje prokuratorów, którzy prowadzili sprawy korupcyjne, a ci, którzy powinni odpowiadać przed sądem za korupcję, inicjują sprawy karne przeciw prokuratorom. Szanowni Państwo, to nie obraz jakiejś republiki bananowej, to obraz Polski Donalda Tuska.

Cristian Terheş (ECR). – Doamnă președintă, am ascultat cu foarte mare atenție dezbaterea și pozițiile colegilor din acest Parlament.

Corupția reprezintă folosirea abuzivă a funcției pentru un folos necuvenit pentru sine sau pentru altul. Această directivă însă ajunge să incrimineze nu fapte, ci vorbe. Dacă citiți cu atenție definiția de la traficul de influență, Trading in influence, de la articolul 10, o să vedeți că o persoană care promite că va da unei alte persoane un folos necuvenit, fără însă să dea folosul respectiv necuvenit, conform acestei definiții, va fi condamnabilă pentru trafic de influență. Persoana căreia i se adresează, dacă primește promisiunea că va primi, dar fără să primească și fără să acționeze într-un fel în capacitatea publică pe care o are, este trafic de influență.

Ce ați legiferat aici este incriminarea vorbelor, nu a faptelor. Or, dacă vorbele sunt de încriminat, cred că tot acest Parlament ar trebui să fie aruncat în pușcărie pentru că primește solicitări de la ...

Diana Iovanovici Şoşoacă (NI). – Doamnă președintă, am să continui eu ceea ce spunea colegul meu, domnul Terheș.

Toți ar trebui să fim condamnați, pentru că fiecare promitem alegătorilor noștri că o să încercăm să le rezolvăm problemele în Parlamentul European. Mai mult decât atât, ca avocat și ca senator al României, am făcut peste 1 600 de plângeri penale împotriva conducerii României, împotriva parlamentarilor de la socialiști și liberali. Ce să vedeți, niciun procuror nu a dat curs vreunei plângeri, pentru că și ei sunt corupți din cauza politicului.

Cu cine ați negociat dumneavoastră această directivă? Cu cei care conduc corupția în România și care apoi sunt trimiși inclusiv aici, în Parlamentul European, din partea socialiștilor și liberalilor, după ce au furat România? Vorbiți de instituții care să facă să controleze corupția? Avem! Avem Departamentul Național Anticorupție, care a distrus tot antreprenoriatul românesc, pentru că așa a primit ordin de la Uniunea Europeană ...

Michael McGrath, Member of the Commission. – Madam President, thank you very much, and thanks to all of the honourable Members for their contributions to this debate this evening. At the moment, 7 in 10 Europeans believe that corruption is widespread in their country, and only 3 in 10 think that enough is being done to effectively combat corruption. The bottom line is that corruption is not a victimless crime. And like many of you, I this evening remember too those brave journalists and citizens who paid, in some cases, the ultimate price for investigating and exposing corruption, and we owe to them our relentless commitment to root out corruption at all levels in our society.

Citizens and businesses can feel the consequences of corruption in their daily lives. We know it diverts public resources meant for community services, from healthcare to infrastructure, from education to innovation. We know that it leads to a misallocation of scarce public resources, and we know that corruption undermines trust in public institutions and undermines trust in democracy itself. So combating corruption is therefore not only a moral imperative, but a political priority for the Commission, and I know for the vast majority in this House, and the adoption of this directive will be a decisive step forward in this direction. It will establish stronger, clearer and better enforcement rules to combat corruption across the EU. It will improve the prevention of corruption and help to foster a culture of integrity. It will enhance public trust, strengthen accountability and ensure that public resources are spent where they are most needed.

To complement and underpin this legislative achievement I hope we are about to reach, the Commission has started working on the first EU anti-corruption strategy. Our plan is to present this strategy by the end of this year. The strategy will allow us to go one step further, complementing the directive, building synergies in the practical application of the legislation and formulating strategic priorities for the coming years. We will develop the strategy in close consultation with the European Parliament and the Council, and consult extensively throughout the process.

All of this is in addition to the other work that we will continue to do, which will involve, for example, through the annual rule of law report, a very sharp focus on the issue of corruption across Member States, looking at the evidence of there being a track record for tackling high-level corruption, in particular. I can assure you that as we approach and finalise the report for 2026, this is an issue that will have my full attention.

But in relation to this directive, can I also assure you that, subject to the final ratification, we will very carefully monitor the transposition. We will support the Member States, and we will ensure that this directive is fully implemented, because it is an important step forward in the fight against corruption.

So can I again thank the rapporteur, the shadow rapporteurs, the Chair of the LIBE Committee, Javier Zarzalejos, and all of the colleagues in this House for your unstinting work in getting us to this point. I will be watching with interest the outcome of the vote tomorrow.

Raquel García Hermida-Van Der Walle, rapporteur. – Madam President, I should like to thank the Commissioner for his kind words and for his commitment again.

Gracias al presidente de la Comisión LIBE, al señor Javier Zarzalejos, por la buena colaboración, y cuando ha sido necesario, también, el buen consejo.

I would like to address some of the issues that have been raised by colleagues, because I acknowledge that, as I said in my opening statements, this directive could have been a bit more ambitious. But I don't like that we spread things that are not exactly true. This directive does cover Union officials. Union officials are residents of Member States. We live in Member States. We are political functionaries in a Member State, and in that sense we are covered by this law. I think it is important to say this, because it is the reality and it will make a difference in investigating and prosecuting corruption also at the European level. So I wanted to set that straight.

I would also like to emphasise the need for fast and appropriate implementation by Member States. I truly hope that Member States do not choose an approach of the minimum common denominator, but that they go for the maximum allowed by this directive and that they are ambitious in the transposition.

I would also like to say the following: I am very happy as rapporteur to accept that not everyone is equally happy about the result. I appreciate that, particularly from colleagues who have engaged at every step of the way in these negotiations. But I would also like to say: if you didn't take the time to come to the table, don't come saying that this directive is not what it should be. That's something that we have heard today, and I really don't like that. I think that's not a courtesy to our citizens.

Lastly I would like to say this: it has been said already, but our work is not done and it won't be done for a very long time. But nothing of value is easy. Jan, Daphne and so many others paid the highest price. May their names be the last ones we need to remember in such a way. For them, and for all 450 million Europeans, we must go on. This directive will be the stepping stone to do so with confidence and determination.

President. – The debate is closed and the vote will be held tomorrow.

1-0319-2500
Caterina Chinnici (PPE), per iscritto – La corruzione rappresenta una seria minaccia per la democrazia, lo Stato di diritto, la sicurezza e le libertà dei cittadini: mina la fiducia nelle istituzioni, le indebolisce e ne compromette la capacità di fornire servizi di qualità. Attraverso la corruzione, inoltre, i gruppi della criminalità organizzata si infiltrano nelle pubbliche amministrazioni, asservendole ai propri interessi.

Un'ampia maggioranza di cittadini e imprese dell'UE percepisce la corruzione come fenomeno diffuso: è quindi necessaria un'azione comune europea per la lotta contro la corruzione.

La nuova direttiva aggiorna il quadro giuridico vigente, armonizzando le definizioni dei più gravi reati di corruzione e le relative sanzioni.

Si introducono inoltre – punto su cui ho fortemente insistito come Relatore del parere della Commissione CONT – significative misure volte alla prevenzione, per rafforzare la trasparenza e l'integrità delle pubbliche amministrazioni.

Gli Stati membri poi dovranno adottare strategie nazionali di prevenzione e lotta alla corruzione, e istituire organi dedicati a tali compiti.

Viene infine rafforzata la cooperazione tra autorità nazionali e attori chiave dell'UE, quali Europol, Eurojust, EPPO e OLAF.

Questo nuovo provvedimento, quindi, rappresenta un altro importante tassello dell'azione europea di contrasto alla criminalità, soprattutto organizzata, di cui occorrerà garantire la piena ed efficace attuazione.

Marcin Sypniewski (ESN), na piśmie – Szanowni Państwo,

Korupcja jest jednym z najbardziej destrukcyjnych zjawisk dla państwa i społeczeństwa.

Niszczy instytucje publicznych, podważa zaufanie obywateli do prawa oraz demoralizuje kolejne pokolenia. Nie da się jej całkowicie wyeliminować – wynika to z natury ludzkiej. Dlatego należy się odcinać od państwa, które mają skorumpowanych polityków takich jak Ukraina. Z żalem patrzę jak pieniądze, które mają tam trafić zamiast do potrzebujących trafiają do skorumpowanych polityków i są rozkradane.

Jednocześnie należy krytycznie spojrzeć na działania podejmowane na poziomie Unii Europejskiej. Dotychczasowe inicjatywy często prowadziły do nadprodukcji regulacji, zamiast zwiększać przejrzystość, a w niektórych przypadkach mogły nawet sprzyjać nadużyciom – jak wskazują doświadczenia związane z wykorzystaniem funduszy unijnych.

Szczególną ostrożność należy zachować w kontekście rozszerzenia Unii. Wskaźniki międzynarodowe oraz doniesienia medialne pokazują, że w niektórych państwach kandydujących problem korupcji pozostaje poważny. Ich akcesja bez odpowiednich gwarancji może prowadzić do wzrostu postaw antyprawnych, osłabienia standardów oraz zwiększenia obciążeń budżetowych.

Dlatego potrzebujemy skutecznej, realistycznej polityki antykorupcyjnej, opartej na odpowiedzialności, przejrzystości i poszanowaniu kompetencji państw członkowskich.

1-0321-0000

President. – The next item is the one-minute speeches on matters of political importance, in accordance with Rule 179. I would like to inform you that for the one-minute speeches, you are invited to take the floor from your seat. And remember, it's one minute. It's late, also, so I hope that you will respect the speaking time.

Matej Tonin (PPE). – Gospa predsednica, kolegice in kolegi!

Rad bi vas seznanil, da smo imeli zadnjo nedeljo v Sloveniji volitve. Koalicija je na teh volitvah izgubila 13 sedežev, opozicija pa je pridobila osem sedežev. Razlika med prvo in drugo stranko je manj kot odstotek, kar pomeni, da so možnosti za sestavo prihodnje vlade še zelo odprte.

Me je pa presenetil intervju predsednika vlade Goloba, ki je za Politico dejal, da v primeru, da v Sloveniji pride do desnosredinske vlade, da to predstavlja veliko nevarnost za prihodnost Evrope.

Gre za veliko laž. Če kaj, potem lahko zelo odgovorno rečem, da je bila desna sredina v Sloveniji vedno najbolj proevropsko usmerjena politična sila v državi.

Močno upam, da bo mojim kolegom uspelo oblikovati desnosredinsko vlado, ker je to najboljše za Slovenijo, odmik od venezuelskega koncepta, predvsem pa bo to dobro tudi za Evropo.

Davor Ivo Stier (PPE). – Poštovana predsjedavajuća, prije 35 godina, u ožujku '91. pala je prva žrtva Domovinskog rata - Josip Jović. Ovdje, u najvišem domu europske demokracije odajemo počast njemu i svim hrvatskim braniteljima koji su položili živote za domovinu.

Krvavi Uskrs nije bio izolirani incident. Bio je početak velikosrpske agresije na Hrvatsku. Agresije koja se pomno planirala, a pripreme su krenule prvo manipulacijom povijesti, a onda lažnim narativom o fašizaciji Hrvatske. Ta agresija je trebala dehumanizirati prvu žrtvu kako bi kasnije opravdala taj pokušaj da se uništi sam identitet hrvatskoga naroda.

Agresija je pobijeđena na bojnom polju, ali agresorski narativ nije nestao. On je bio nešto se stišao, ali sada se ponovno glasnije čuje i neki žele da se čuje čak i ovdje u Europskom parlamentu. Nije to slučajno.

To je pomno osmišljeno i dobro financirano, ali mi im poručujemo: nismo zaspali na straži. Borit ćemo se protiv takve moćne propagande, na to nas obvezuje sjećanje na...

Nina Carberry (PPE). – Madam President, in Ireland, there are an estimated 9000 defibrillators, but only half are publicly registered. And across Europe, the story is much the same. Patchy records, fragmented data, incomplete mapping. Whether you're on a holiday in Spain or driving down the Wild Atlantic Way or sightseeing in Paris, it should be easy for you to find your nearest defib.

So my question today is simple: we share health data across our borders, why can't we show the same ambition when it comes to defibs? Because heart disease remains Europe's biggest killer, and around 90 % of out-of-hospital cardiac arrests result in fatality without quick intervention.

The starting point should be an EU-wide database to build on the great work carried out by local community groups, PPNs, or volunteer organisations. This is somewhere where Europe can add real value: better data sharing, better standards, better access. A defib cannot save a life if we can't find it.

Branko Grims (PPE). – Gospa predsednica! Načelo zakonitosti izvedbe volitev je evropska norma in temelj demokracije.

In parlamentarne volitve v Sloveniji to nedeljo očitno niso potekale na zakonit in pošten način, to se pravi skladno z evropskimi standardi.

Predčasno glasovanje je bilo nezakonito, in to vsaj za 24 od 90 okrajev, česar nihče niti ne zanika. Poskušajo samo zmanjšati vpliv te očitne nezakonitosti.

Potem, prepozno in premalo je bilo poslanih glasovnic v tujino, s čimer je bila nekomu odvzeta pač možnost glasovanja, ponekod pa so ljudje prejeli po dve glasovnici. Zmanjkalo je glasovnic ponekod na podeželju, brez da bi podaljšali možnost za glasovanje. Problematična je bila hramba teh glasovnic, skrinjic. Skratka, vse to so dejstva, na osnovi katerih je mogoče ugotoviti, da je samo en način za vzpostavitev zakonitosti - da se te volitve v zakonitem roku ponovi.

Bog vas živi, Bog živi Evropo in Bog živi mojo domovino Slovenijo.

Кристиан Вигенин (S&D). – Г-жо Председател, намираме се в условия на безпрецедентен енергиен натиск. Гражданите и бизнесът очакват от нас прагматични решения.

Схемата за търговия с емисии остава ключов инструмент за декарбонизацията и за насърчаване на инвестициите в чиста енергия. Подкопаването на нейната предвидимост би застрашило дългосрочната ни конкурентоспособност и енергиен преход. Но в настоящата криза трябва да проявим гъвкавост. Високите цени на енергията не могат да бъдат пренебрегнати. Европейската комисия трябва да използва всички налични инструменти, за да смекчи натиска върху домакинствата и индустрията чрез целенасочена подкрепа и временни мерки за стабилизиране на пазара.

Romana Jerković (S&D). – Poštovana predsjedavajuća, u Hrvatskoj smo obilježili Nacionalni dan invalida rada. Važno je naglasiti da za mnoge od njih svakodnevnica i dalje znači suočavanje s nizom prepreka: od nedostatka prilagođenih radnih mjesta i nedostatnog primanja do ograničenih mogućnosti prekvalifikacije i loše zdravstvene skrbi.

Moramo se zapitati i koliko se tih ozljeda moglo spriječiti da smo više ulagali u sigurnost na radu? Vrijeme je da odgovornost pretvorimo u djelovanje. Moramo snažnije poticati zapošljavanje i prilagodbu radnih mjesta, jačati socijalnu i zdravstvenu zaštitu te osigurati bržu i dostupniju rehabilitaciju.

No, najvažnije je donijeti i provoditi zakonodavstvo koje će sustavno sprječavati ozljede na radu. Radno mjesto ne smije ugrožavati zdravlje.

Juan Fernando López Aguilar (S&D). – Señora presidenta, señor comisario, el pasado 16 de marzo se reunieron en Tenerife los representantes de los Gobiernos de las nueve regiones ultraperiféricas de la Unión Europea, además de miembros del Parlamento Europeo nacidos o residentes en regiones ultraperiféricas y la sociedad civil con un mensaje compartido: apoyo a la continuidad de los fondos RUP en el próximo marco financiero plurianual, pero también apoyo a la contribución del Gobierno de España, expresada por el ministro de Política Territorial, Ángel Víctor Torres, a la Estrategia para las Regiones Ultraperiféricas 2027-2030 con una comunicación muy concreta.

Esta comunicación fue, en primer lugar, apoyo inequívoco al programa de opciones específicas del sector primario del POSEI; en segundo lugar, solidaridad en el Pacto de Migraciones, en particular en las regiones exteriores y apoyo a los realojamientos en los rescates y salvamento en la mar; y, en tercer lugar, una opción específica de intervención del mercado de la vivienda para abaratar los costes de la vivienda en lo relacionado con la compra por fondos buitre y por fondos especulativos.

Valérie Deloge (PfE). – Madame la Présidente, Mesdames et Messieurs de la Commission européenne, vous avez signé un nouvel accord de libre-échange avec l'Australie dans l'opacité et la précipitation, au mépris des alertes des agriculteurs. Vos négociations avec l'Australie prévoient l'entrée de plus de 30 000 tonnes de bœuf et autant de tonnes d'agneau en moyenne. Une fois de plus, l'agriculture sert de variable d'ajustement.

Votre scénario, nous le connaissons déjà, c'est le même que le Mercosur: promesses de contrôles, discours rassurants, mais, dans les faits, une réalité bien différente. Avec le Mercosur, les faits sont accablants, la traçabilité est défaillante. Des contrôles révèlent que des animaux traités à l'œstradiol 17β, hormone interdite en Europe, ont été déclarés éligibles à l'exportation. Ces produits ont été envoyés vers l'Europe sans que les importateurs en soient informés. Et voilà donc des produits dangereux dans nos assiettes.

Et pourtant, la Commission persiste. Allons-nous assister à un nouveau coup de force antidémocratique, une application sans vote des députés européens et des parlements nationaux? Nous avons alerté sur le Mercosur. Les faits nous donnent raison. Vous êtes responsables et coupables. Il faut arrêter cette fuite en avant.

Petra Steger (PfE). – Frau Präsidentin! Die Europäische Union ist mittlerweile die größte Gefahr für die Demokratie in Europa.

Bestes Beispiel: Ungarn. Das, was die EU dort betreibt, ist nichts anderes als Wahlmanipulation. Das Ziel ist offensichtlich: Die patriotische Regierung Viktor Orbáns, das letzte Bollwerk für Frieden, Sicherheit, Freiheit und Heimatliebe, der einzige, der sich gegen weitere Milliarden an die Ukraine stellt, soll fallen und stattdessen eine Brüsseler Marionette, Péter Magyar, installiert werden.

Dafür ist jedes Mittel recht: Manipulation, Angriffe, Fake News, Schmutzkübelkampagnen, Hunderte Millionen Strafen bis hin zum Entzug des Vetorechts und natürlich Zensur. Wegen angeblicher russischer Beeinflussung wurde das Rapid-response-System des DSA aktiviert, um Social-Media-Inhalte von Orbán im Wahlkampf zu drosseln und zu zensieren. Die Grundlage dafür liefern EU-finanzierte Medien, Faktenchecker und NGOs.

Gleichzeitig schaut die EU zu, wenn Selenskyj Orbán bedroht und die Energieversorgung blockiert, um Ungarn in den wirtschaftlichen Ruin zu treiben. Und jetzt – was für ein Zufall –, kurz vor der Wahl, kommt eine gewaltige, international koordinierte Schmutzkübelkampagne gegen den ungarischen Außenminister daher. Ja, offensichtlich ist jedes Mittel recht, um patriotische Regierungen zu Fall zu bringen.

Aber eines kann ich Ihnen versprechen: Die Ungarn haben genauso wie die restlichen Bürger in Europa dieses Spiel längst durchschaut und werden einen Strich durch die Rechnung ziehen.

Tiago Moreira de Sá (PfE). – Senhora Presidente, no passado sábado, em Lisboa, deu-se o encontro quase trágico entre duas conceções da vida humana. De um lado, uma marcha pela vida, pacífica, familiar, marcada pela presença de crianças e pela afirmação de que cada vida humana, mesmo a mais invisível, possui um valor próprio. Do outro, a negação dessa vida como valor, expressa de forma violenta através do lançamento de um cocktail molotov sobre essa mesma manifestação. Contraste claro e inquietante: de um lado, a criança, nascida ou por nascer, símbolo de promessa e dignidade; do outro, o fogo, instrumento de destruição lançado contra crianças. Um ato destes exige uma resposta firme.

Em Portugal, o partido Chega já propôs a classificação do movimento Antifa como organização terrorista, à imagem do que aconteceu nos Estados Unidos. A Europa, confrontada com o aumento da violência política por parte destes movimentos, não pode ficar à margem de uma condenação pública e legal deste tipo de intolerância.

No fundo, tudo regressa ao essencial: a defesa da vida e da dignidade humana.

Sebastian Tynkkynen (ECR). – Madam President, Afghanistan was once a Buddhist nation. Pakistan – once Hindu. Lebanon – once a Christian majority. You know what happened? They were conquered by Islam.

For years we have been told that mass migration is just a humanitarian phenomenon – something that we just must adapt to.

The reality is much more strategic. Modern hybrid warfare does not always involve tanks or missiles. Sometimes the most effective weapon is the flow of people.

When millions are directed towards Europe without control, the consequences are severe. Islam has used this method for 1 400 years, and they have no intention of abandoning this method of conquest.

When the Islamic movement gains enough strength, it seeks to seize power and establish a caliphate. This is why peace or coexistence between Islamic and non-Islamic societies is impossible.

(The President cut off the speaker)

Paolo Inselvini (ECR). – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, perché? Mi sono chiesto spesso in queste settimane il perché di questo silenzio assordante dell'Unione europea riguardo ai file Epstein: uno scandalo che unisce stupri, omicidi, cannibalismo, pedofilia, satanismo. Uno scandalo globale che ha coinvolto decine di personaggi dell'elite, se così si può chiamare, occidentale.

Epstein commetteva le peggiori atrocità insieme ai suoi complici e poi li ricattava per nome e per conto, forse, di qualche servizio segreto.

Ma perché c'entra l'Europa? C'entra perché il popolo ha il diritto di sapere se qualcuno, anche qui in Europa, è stato uno di quegli schifosi carnefici e se ha preso delle decisioni ricattato da Epstein.

Cristian Terheş (ECR). – Madam President, carbon emissions must have a price that will change our behaviour. Ursula von der Leyen said that in this Parliament in 2019 to secure the presidency of the European Commission. Seven years later, Europeans are paying that price every single day in higher energy bills, rising poverty, closing factories and many lost jobs. The Green Deal – that absurd policy sold as Europe's chance to lead the world – has instead left us weaker, poorer and a laughing stock on the global stage. A continent once rich in resources and industries now, in order to function, has to back authoritarian regimes for energy and raw materials. This is not strategic autonomy, but strategic absurdity and dangerous vulnerability. With the votes of the EPP, S&D, Renew, Greens and Left groups, the Commission drove Europe down a path of ideological decarbonisation that has proven to be economic suicide.

If Europe is to have a future, we must abandon ideological green excesses and return to pragmatic action. We must bring production back to Europe in order to restore prosperity across the continent.

Şerban Dimitrie Sturdza (ECR). – Doamnă președintă, stimați colegi, sunt îngrijorat. Europa s-a împrumutat masiv în ultimii ani, cu 700 de miliarde de euro în mai puțin de cinci ani.

Deși înțeleg de ce, trebuie să ne întrebăm sincer: unde se termină urgența și unde începe dependența? Și ceea ce mă doare cel mai mult este că România, țara mea, se împrumută de pe piețele externe și plătește 3 % din PIB doar pentru dobânzi, nu pentru dezvoltare.

Nu îmi doresc o Europă care depinde de China pentru materii prime, de America, pentru securitate și de piețele financiare pentru fiecare euro împrumutat. Nu îmi doresc o Europă cu două sau mai multe viteze, unde Vestul avansează și Estul plătește datorii. Îmi doresc o Europă care produce în toate statele, care inovează și care se autofinanțează.

(Președinta a retras cuvântul vorbitorului)

1-0336-0000

Barry Cowen (Renew). – Madam President, colleagues, we meet once again in the midst of an energy shock. Member States, including my own, have committed to, and are responding with, targeted and temporary supports. In Ireland's case, that is only possible because of the prudent economic management of recent years allowing interventions during past crises, the present situation and in the event of current circumstances persisting. Measures, I may add, that are costed and focused, not driven by the usual bluff and bluster or calls for action without any regard for cost or consequence.

But this moment must also sharpen our focus at European level, because the reality is this: Europe has the capacity. I see it at home, from the potential of offshore wind along Ireland's western seaboard to public-private partnerships such as Amazon working with Bord na Móna in my own home county of Offaly.

But if we're serious about energy security, we must now match ambition with delivery. That means accelerating a European super grid and putting in place planning and permitting systems that are predictable, that are efficient and bound by statutory timelines, not processes that take years while opportunity slips away. And that is how we will strengthen our energy security, reduce our exposure to global shocks, and ultimately, that is how Europe will take control of its own energy future.

Ciaran Mullooly (Renew). – Madam President, Commissioner, across the EU, our police forces are made up of brave men and women who uphold the rule of law and protect us. Retired Garda Cyril Smith and the late Thomas Britton, from County Monaghan, were two of those honoured this week with a Scott Medal for tackling an armed and dangerous criminal. We honour them now, even though while they were serving we didn't afford them the same respect, or indeed the labour rights that we grant to other employees in our societies.

In our Member State of Ireland, Commissioner, Garda representatives are still excluded from meaningful collective bargaining, excluded from national social dialogue and denied effective mechanisms to resolve disputes. Commissioner, this is an unjust situation, entirely out of line with the spirit of the social rights granted by the EU. Ireland remains an outlier in denying police officers direct wage negotiation, and where the right to strike is restricted, there must be surely a strong, genuine collective bargaining in its place. I appeal for your personal assistance on this matter.

Jaume Asens Llodrà (Verts/ALE). – Señora presidenta, señor comisario, ¿sabe quién es Karim? Un bebé de dieciocho meses torturado hace dos días en Gaza. ¿Y los hermanos Ozman y Mohamed? Son dos niños que, junto a sus padres, fueron acribillados a balazos en un coche en Cisjordania. Y el problema es que la mayoría de la sociedad israelí no los ve porque para ellos encarnan el mal absoluto: Amalek. Encarnan el futuro de un pueblo que quieren exterminar para quedarse con sus tierras.

El propio ministro Ben Gvir lo ha reconocido. Ha dicho: «Los niños son una amenaza retardada y deben ser eliminados. Los niños no son inocentes». Cuando una sociedad borra la inocencia de un niño, se borra a sí misma, su humanidad. Y la pregunta aquí es: ¿y nosotros? ¿Nosotros vemos a esos niños? ¿No nos conmueven? Usted tiene hijos. ¿No piensa en sus hijos? ¿Cuántos niños y niñas deben ser asesinados para que Europa deje de ser cómplice de ese infanticidio? Uno de los mayores infanticidios de la historia: más de 21 000 niñas y niños palestinos, más de 150 en el Líbano, 300 en Irán. ¿Hasta cuándo, señor comisario?

Ilaria Salis (The Left). – Signora Presidente, onorevoli colleghi, negli ultimi quattro anni i prezzi dei beni alimentari in Italia sono aumentati del 25 %. Nello stesso periodo gli affitti sono saliti del 34 %, invece i salari sono rimasti completamente fermi. Questo significa che il potere d'acquisto dei cittadini è calato drasticamente, che le classi lavoratrici si stanno impoverendo.

Altro che "i migranti di qua, i migranti di là": la vera emergenza sicurezza in Italia e in Europa è il carovita; è il fatto che sempre più persone fanno fatica a pagare l'affitto, a fare la spesa e ad arrivare a fine mese.

Quindi sono necessarie e urgenti normative europee che intervengano su salari, affitti e prezzi dei generi di prima necessità. Bisogna migliorare e rendere più stringente la direttiva sul salario minimo europeo, imponendo anche l'adeguamento automatico dei salari all'inflazione. Bisogna fissare un tetto massimo ai prezzi degli affitti e dei generi di prima necessità.

Tomasz Froelich (ESN). – Frau Präsidentin! Christen sind die am stärksten verfolgte Religionsgemeinschaft weltweit. Und gerade im Nahen Osten ist diese Verfolgung besonders brutal. In Syrien hat sich ihre Lage seit dem Sturz von Assad dramatisch verschlechtert. Dennoch rollt Brüssel den neuen Machthabern in Damaskus den roten Teppich aus, von der Leyen sagt al-Dschaulani Milliardenbeträge zu. Das ist inakzeptabel.

Die Verfolgung von Christen beschränkt sich jedoch nicht auf Syrien. Auch in anderen Teilen des Nahen Ostens werden Christen verdrängt – teils aus islamistischen Motiven, teils durch ethnopolitisch motivierte Landnahme. Im Westjordanland vertreiben radikale israelische Siedler palästinensische Christen aus ihren Dörfern. Lokale Pfarrer, der Lateinische Patriarch Pizzaballa sowie der Vatikan verurteilen die wachsende Gewalt gegen unsere Glaubensbrüder ebenso wie Israels ehemaliger Premier Naftali Bennett. Der Schutz der Christen im Nahen Osten muss unverhandelbare Konditionalität in unserer Außen- und Entwicklungspolitik werden. Wer Christen verfolgt, darf nicht von Brüssel finanziert und hofiert werden.

Ruth Firmenich (NI). – Frau Präsidentin! Die US-Politik gegenüber Kuba ist menschenverachtend. Kuba soll ausgehungert werden, um so einen Regimewechsel zu erreichen. Was 65 Jahre US-Wirtschaftsembargo nicht geschafft haben, will Präsident Trump jetzt durch das vollständige Abschneiden Kubas von Energielieferungen erreichen. Es gab schon mehrfach einen landesweiten Stromausfall. Das bedeutet nicht nur, dass öffentliches Leben, Verkehr und Produktion zum Erliegen kommen. Es bedeutet auch, dass Kühlketten nicht mehr funktionieren, Krankenhäuser die Patienten nicht mehr versorgen können, Impfstoffe verrotten.

10 Millionen Menschen leben in Kuba. Die USA nehmen diese gezielt ins Visier, um über ihr Leid das System zu stürzen. Und die EU schaut tatenlos zu. Doch wer schweigt, macht sich mitschuldig. Das Aushungern eines Landes ist völkerrechtswidrig. Aber Menschenrechte und Völkerrecht interessieren die EU nur, wenn es passt. Diese Doppelmoral muss ein Ende haben. Kuba braucht unsere Solidarität. Die EU muss dafür sorgen, dass Kuba Unterstützung erhält.

Diana Iovanovici Şoşoacă (NI). – Doamnă președintă, ați discriminat agricultorii români și ați distrus toată agricultura românească, ați distrus creșterea animalelor, ne-ați vândut, ne-ați luat resursele, dar considerați că toți membrii Uniunii Europene sunt egali? Nu, nu sunt egali.

Este o ipocrizie și o dublă măsură ce există în Uniunea Europeană. Măsurile de acum arată că Uniunea Europeană trebuie să se desființeze. Cea mai mare parte din români cer ieșirea din Uniunea Europeană, iar eu voi spune aici adevărul: Roexit!

Lefteris Nikolaou-Alavanos (NI). – Señora presidenta, condenamos el estrangulamiento económico de Cuba por parte de los Estados Unidos, que se está convirtiendo en un genocidio. El bloqueo de sesenta y siete años ha costado dos billones de dólares en daños, priva al pueblo de bienes básicos, medicamentos y servicios. Impide las importaciones de petróleo, generando graves dificultades en el suministro eléctrico. Es un peligro mortal para miles de personas con enfermedades crónicas, para las mujeres embarazadas. La UE apoya esta estrategia. Saludó las intervenciones norteamericanas en Venezuela e Irán. El Parlamento con resoluciones exige sanciones contra el pueblo cubano. Acoge todo tipo de mecanismos golpistas.

El pueblo griego está con Cuba con manifestaciones multitudinarias. Exige el cese inmediato del bloqueo, de todas las sanciones y que se elimine ya a Cuba de la vergonzosa lista de patrocinadores del terrorismo. El pueblo cubano lleva siete décadas frustrando los planes del imperialismo norteamericano de derrocar su revolución. Basándose en esta heroica trayectoria, y con la solidaridad de los pueblos del mundo hacia el Partido Comunista y su pueblo, lo logrará. Manos fuera de Cuba.
